Donaldson Elected To National Board

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) – Pennsylvania Farm Bureau president Guy Donaldson of Gettysburg has been elected to the board of directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF).

The election took place during AFBF's 79th annual meeting attended by an estimated 5,000 farmers Jan. 11-15 in Charlotte, North Carolina.

The AFBF board is comprised of 23 state Farm Bureau presidents elected for two-year terms, as well as chairs of AFBF's Women's Committee and Young Farmers & Ranchers Committee.

Donaldson will be one of three board directors representing Farm Bureau members in AFBF's Northeast Region.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is the nation's largest general farm group with 4,785,095 members in 50 state organizations and Puerto Rico. The organization has a general headquarters in Chicago, Illinois, and an office in Washington, D.C., American Farm Bureau was recently selected by Fortune Magazine as one of the nation's most effective lobbying organizations.

Avian Health Symposium Jan. 29

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A special avian health symposium to address issues related to the control of avian influenza (A.I.) in Pennsylvania poultry has been scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 29 at the Sheraton East Harrisburg from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

The symposium is to address specific issues related to the prevention and control of avian influenza in Pennsylvania poultry.

Issues include:

- Biosecurity in the marketing of live poultry.
- Reporting of A.I. and "look-a-like" poultry diseases.
- Industry and government response to outbreaks of A.I.
- Enforcement of A.I. government regulations.
- Penalties for violation of government regulations.

This issue of Lancaster Farming includes Corn Talk, the newsletter of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association (PMCGA), published three times per year. Look for a feature on a popular corn maze, information from the PMCGA president on a corn checkoff referendum, notes on the growing year, and a schedule of the upcoming crops conference in Grantville. Also included are the corn hybrid test reports, research information, and advertising messages.

Scholarships Awarded At Cooperative Meeting

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) - The Sire Power, Inc., annual meeting was held Wednesday with reports of the state of the cooperative and the presentation of $8,000 in scholarships to help students further their education in agriculture.

Gary Rickard, chairman of the board, reported the fiscal year completed last September produced a net after tax income of $493,328, which he said, all circumstances considered, was a pleasing result, but noted it represented only a 3 percent profit on gross income. Actually, a lower number of sales at a lower average price made about half of this profit come from decreased expenses.

Rickard said last year the thought was that the Sire Power Board would have a merger proposal to present at the spring delegate meetings, but this did not develop. Sire Power remains one of the smallest players in the A.I. industry, but the member owners were called fortunate to have the dedication of the board, manage-

National Egg Market

ATLANTA, GA
JANUARY 21, 1998

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:

Prices were unchanged to higher for the large sizes and mediums in the South, unchanged to higher for the large sizes in the Northeast and Midwest, and unchanged on the balance. The market tone remained steady to firm, and was strongest for the large sizes. Demand ranged from light to good with the best movement on large sizes into retail channels. Supplies were tight to instances fully adequate and available, and both graded and nest run large sizes remained in the tightest position. Breaking stock supplies were about adequate for the mixed demand and prices increased in the Central States area. Light type fowl offerings were at least adequate for the fair to good demand.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed, Jan 21, 1998
USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids finished lower mid-week, pressured by con- tinued slow export demand, good winter wheat crop condition, and favorable growing weather in South America. Wheat 1 to 3 cents lower. Corn 2 to 5 cents lower. Sorghum 4 cents lower. Soybeans 3 to 6 cents lower. Lower wheat bids were due to continued light export sales the past couple of days. Good crop condition reported for winter wheat also weighed on wheat bids. Spillover weakness from corn and bean pits encouraged lower bids. Corn bids fell on reports of favorable growing weather in South America. Export sales remain very light at this point. A private crop report estimating the 1998 US Corn acreage at 81.75 million compared to the 1997 acreage of 80.2 million. Soybeans were estimated at 71.6 million acres. However, it seems a little early to allow this to direct corn or bean markets at this time. Tuesday's sharp climb in soybean bids was corrected today and declines in corn and wheat trade added pressure. Lack of fresh export news con- tinues.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JAN. 26-FEB. 1, 1998

ST. THOMAS AQUINAS, JAN. 28.

FREEDOM DAY!

Let freedom ring!" is the refrain for Black History Month in February. Educator and historian Dr. Carter G. Woodson began the tradition with "Negro History Week" in 1926. He chose February because of the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln (Feb. 12) and Frederick Douglass (Feb. 14). Noted African-Americans who celebrate February birthdays include Rosa Parks (who refused to move to the rear of a segregated bus); all-star Hank Aaron; Pulitzer-prize novelist Alice Walker; Nobel-prize novelist Toni Morrison; opera soprano Leontyne Price; actor Sidney Poitier; Black Panther cofounder Huey Newton; and basketball star Michael "Air" Jordan.

Truth burns up error.

– Sojourner Truth

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Road salt or woodstove ashes may help your driveway but harm pets' feet. Wash their feet and apply bag balm.

BLACK BEANS AND RICE SALAD

- 1/2 cup long-grain white rice
- 1-1/2 cups canned black beans, drained
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 1/2 medium red onion, chopped
- salt and freshly ground pepper, to taste
- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 2 tablespoons chicken stock
- 1 teaspoon prepared Dijon-style mustard
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cook rice as usual and rinse to cool, drain. Add beans, parsley, onion, and salt and pepper. Whisk together remaining ingredients and pour over salad, toss well. Serve cold. Serve over greens, if desired.)

Makes 4 small servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If there is snow on St. Brigit's Day (Feb. 1), the ditches will be filled with rain come spring.

Thunder in February frightens the maple syrup back into the ground.

A February spring is worth nothing.

Children's Impressions Of Farming

While the children of our society are more highly educated at a younger age, TV programs and recently copywrited books aimed at this purpose seem to be intentionally misleading our youth about agriculture. Recently, while watching Saturday morning "kids'" programs with the grandchildren, we saw the farmer protrayed as a stupid fellow with an even more stupid son whose only aim in life was to take the prizes at the Hicktown County Fair. Of course, the futuristic genetic engineer (a creepy looking fellow) arrived to grow huge vegetables and corn that the stupid farmers stole and took to the fair for their own dishonest glory. As the prizes were being awarded, the genetically engineered plants started growing and became so huge they came alive and ate up everybody and everything at the county fair.

On the same weekend, we browsed the "kids'" books in a children's store. One looked like a good commentary on agriculture. It was the story of a poor piglet born in a "factory farm" and thrown into the waste can because he was the runt of the litter.

The "humane" hero rescued and revived the piglet and took him to a much more satisfactory barn of maybe 80 years ago where he, along with a special mate, were able to live out their lives in happiness.

We believe the farmer's story is so filled with good things that there should be books and programs that tell this story in a favorable light. If you know of such books or programs, let us know so we can help spread the word. The impressions of children last a lifetime. It's time to start making good impressions on children about the wonderful contributions agriculture is making to our society. And with all the subtle anti-agriculture impressions already on the shelf, it's time to make these favorable farm impressions now.

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Control Winter Weeds in Alfalfa

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reports this has been an ideal winter for winter annual weeds. Winter annual weeds, especially chickweed, can adversely affect alfalfa yields in several ways.

First, the competition it produces will shorten the stand life of alfalfa.

Second, the quality of first cutting will be reduced.

Third, the drying time of first cutting is increased.

Chickweed and other winter annuals weeds will soon experience a period of rapid growth including blooming and seed production. There are few good products available to alfalfa growers to control chickweed and other winter annual weeds. Each product has its own set of advantages and disadvantages. By reading and studying the label, you should be able to find a herbicide to meet your needs.

To Select Herbicide for Alfalfa Weed Control

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, states are there several good herbicides labeled for chickweed and other winter annual weeds in alfalfa. Gramoxone Super, Velpar, Lexone, Sencore, Sinbar, or Kerb are all labeled for use on established stands of alfalfa. The Gramoxone treatment will probably be the most economical.

However, since it is a contact herbicide, it may not do a good job if complete spray coverage of the chickweed is not obtained. It also controls fewer species of weeds than some of the other products.

Best activity with this treatment is when the weeds are small, temperatures are above freezing and the days are bright and sunny. Velpar, Lexone or Sencore will also provide excellent control.

However, the cost of these materials is higher. These materials do work better if the chickweed is large and complete coverage is a problem since they do have soil activity for plant up take. They also have a broader spectrum of weeds they will control. Sinbar will also control a wider spectrum of weeds. However, there is a two year replanting restriction on the label. Kerb is only labeled for fall applications.

To Attend Grazing Conference

The 1998 Pennsylvania Grazing Conference will be held March 4 and 5 at the Holiday Inn, Grantville PA. Topics to be covered include parasite build up in pastures, poisonous weeds, pasture production during the summer slump, manure to pastures, applying no-till renovation of pastures and selection of pasture plant species. Dr. Sinclair Mayne, Northern Ireland Research Institute, will discus his research on grazing management to increase intake and pasture utilization and evaluation of optimum genetic merit of various cow breeds for grazing management systems. For more information on the conference, contact the Grazing Research and Education Center at 814-863-2543.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHAT KIND OF CROWN?
January 25, 1998

Background Scripture:
1 Peter 5:1-11
Devotional Reading:
Romans 12:9-21

Several years ago, as part of the promotion of a book I was asked to review, I was sent a cap by the publisher. On it in bold letters was the caption: "I AM THE C.E.O. IN THIS HOUSE." I have never worn it.

It occurred to me that people have long used crowns or hats to denote their authority and vocation. There is the tall white chef's hat that tells us who is the boss in the kitchen. There is the policeman's visored cap, more a symbol of authority than a practical head covering. The sailor's round cap clearly distinguishes him from any soldier. Even if we don't wear a distinctive head covering we still may use it as an analogy and remark that a particular person "wears several hats," meaning that person fills several different roles.

Whenever we are in a position of power—at home, at work, in the community—even if we do not actually wear a distinctive hat, we will likely unconsciously choose a figurative "crown" that defines how we conceive of our role. Some people bear their position of responsibility and power with a crown of self-importance. Whenever I stand in line at a customs check-point in an airport, I try to pick out the customs agent who appears least likely to have to demonstrate that he or she has the authority to be picky and petty.

TRAINED TO BE RUDE

Others wear the crowns of officiousness, arbitrariness, arrogance and hostility. For me, the worst of these were the borders guards that controlled access through the former Iron Curtain. These people, it seemed, were trained to be obnoxious. But you don't have to go that far to find that kind of people—you can experience them at the local tax office, the corner store, a downtown parking lot or even in your church. Sometimes we clergy choose the wrong hats to wear as pastors or ecclesiastical officials.

The writer of 1 Peter is very much aware of this problem. He advises pastors of the early church to "Tend the flock of God that is your charge, not by constraint but willingly, not for shameful gain but eagerly,not as domineering over those in your charge but being examples to the flock" (5:2-3—italics mine) He goes on to say, "Clothe yourselves, all of you (he is no longer speaking to just the clergy), with humility toward one another, for 'God opposes the proud, but gives grace to the humble'" (5:5)

Humility does not seem to be very valued in our society today, nor, it seems to me, in the church either. Perhaps that is because we have the wrong idea of what Christian humility means. There are eight different meanings to the word "humble" in my Random House Dictionary of the English Language. The first of these is the one most often used in the Bible; "not proud or arrogant; modest." My Bible dictionary says the most frequent use of the word 'humble' in the Bible is to denote the "opposite to pride, arrogance and violence."

THE YAWNING GAP

Now I cite that because I have a suspicion that many Christians think of 'humble' as "having a feeling of insignificance, inferiority, subservience." A humble Christian is not one who thinks of himself or herself as "worthless." Humility consists of recognizing the yawning gap between where we are and where God has created us to be.

So, when Peter says, "Clothe yourselves..with humility toward one another," he is not saying that we are to clothe ourselves with feelings of inferiority. Nor, when he quotes Proverbs 3:34, he is not saying that God gives grace to the worthless. God gives grace, not to the domineering, the arrogant, the officious, the practitioners of petty power and privilege, but to those who realize that in the presence of God they cannot be arrogant or self-serving. The One who made them worthy calls for them to be worthier still.

All of us want and need a certain amount of praise and pride. We need to remember, however, that it is only the approval of God that means anything in the long run. "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that in due time he may exalt you."

Humble now; the crown of glory later.

Avian Health Symposium

• Methods for sharing costs of influenza prevention and control (government indemnity and industry self-assurance).

• Long-range planning to reduce A.I. risk, including research.

A series of reports regarding some of these issues will be presented and comments will be solicited from symposium participants. The reports and pursuant discussion will be the basis for a report to the Pennsylvania legislature in accordance with the conditions of the $5 million appropriation to the department for management of the 1997 outbreak of H7N2 influenza.

Participation for the symposium is desired from Pennsylvania poultry producers, integrators, processors, and marketers, haulers, the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation and its Poultry Health Advisory Committee, the Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System (PADLS), the Pa. Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission, the USDA APHIS Veterinary Sciences, the Penn State Department of Poultry Science, and the University of Pennsylvania Center for Animal Health and Productivity.

A.I. Testing Required For Live Bird Markets

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Effective Jan. 8, no live poultry more than seven days old may be moved into a New York poultry market unless accompanied by an approved certificate of veterinary inspection.

According to a report published in the Poultry Post, the newsletter of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, the inspection states that either 1) the poultry identified thereon are moving directly from a source flock which is certified by the state or country of origin as an A.I. monitored source or 2) the poultry identified thereon are moving directly from a source flock in which a random sample of 10 birds was blood-tested negative for A.I. within 10 days of the date of movement, using a test approved by the USDA.

In addition, no poultry may be moved from a flock where there has been a positive A.I. blood or virus test within the previous nine months unless the flock is depopulated and premise cleaned and disinfected or virus testing (all birds or 150 birds) is negative.

New York is also going to increase surveillance of incoming birds and the markets. If a market is found to be positive and has substandard sanitation, it will be quarantined and must depopulate, clean and disinfect before the quarantine is released.

It has been estimated that these markets receive between 250,000-300,000 birds weekly, many of which originate in Pennsylvania.

Larger commercial industry, including layers, broilers, and turkeys, should keep in mind that the risk of contamination with A.I. is always present and that biosecurity measures are necessary between the live bird market and the larger commercial industry to ensure the control of A.I.

Donaldson Elected

tal affairs, information, and business service to 25,247 farm and rural families in Pennsylvania.

Donaldson attended AFBF's annual meeting at the Charlotte Convention Center as the head of PFB's farm delegation. He served as one of three official delegates for PFB during voting delegate sessions at the meeting. Voting delegates from state farm bureaus decided policies that will guide the organization in 1998.

"I'm looking forward to representing Farm Bureau members in the Northeast on the American Farm Bureau board, especially our Pennsylvania farmers," commented Donaldson. "With direction provide through our grassroots policy development process, Farm Bureau will be tackling some major issues this year which affect the future of agriculture.

"Issues such as the Global Climate Change Treaty, tax reform and the fast-track authority to develop new trade agreements and improve current ones will all need to be addressed. As a member of the AFBF board of directors, I'll be helping to put our members' policies into action on these and other important Farm Bureau concerns. I'm looking forward to an exciting and challenging year," he said.

Donaldson has been president of PFB since April, 1996. Prior to becoming state president he served as the organization's vice president for nearly nine years.

Donaldson and his family grows apples, peaches, cherries and vegetables and operate a roadside market on a 550-acre farm near Gettysburg.

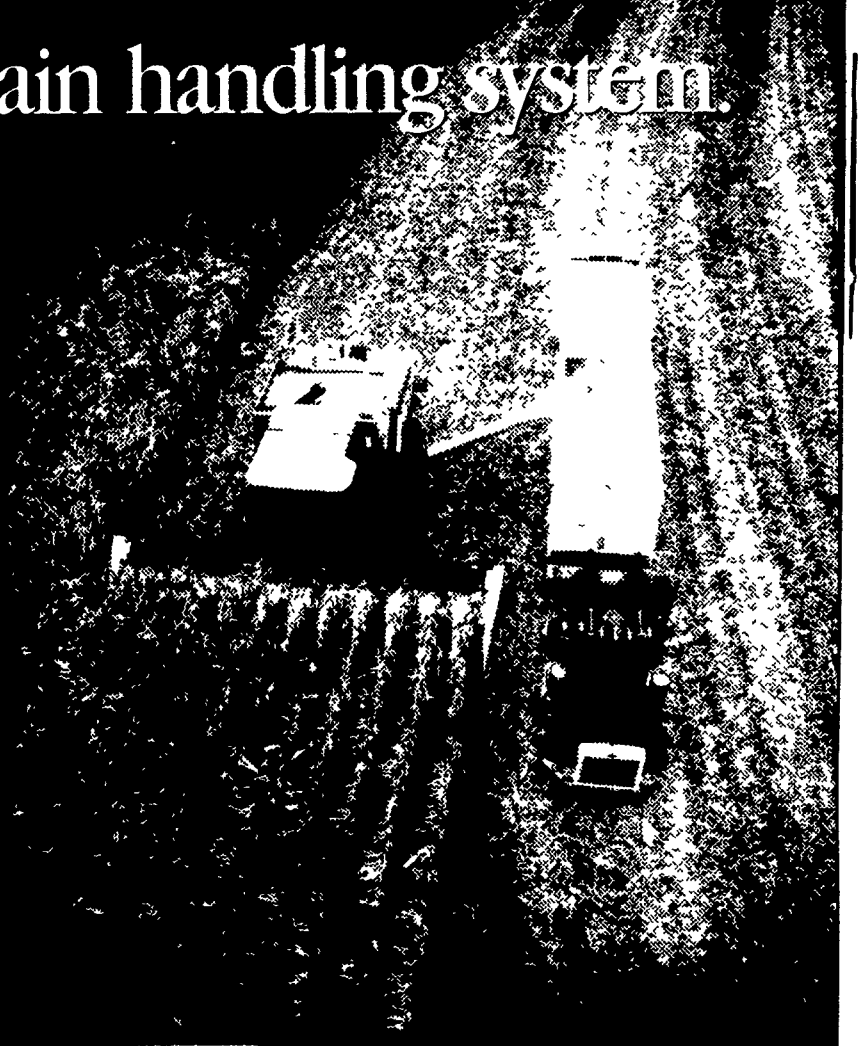
FARMERS #1 CHOICE IN COMBINES

...with a kinder, gentler grain handling system.



Your grain doesn't have to take a beating anymore. With GLEANER's exclusive Natural Flow processing cylinder, your crop never changes direction. Giving you higher grain quality and better returns at the elevator. Our unique transverse mounting system moves your crop in a ribbon-like fashion from the concave through the cage. It's never forced to make hard turns. You also get the cleanest grain with our combine. We have the longest cleaning shoe in the industry, 64 inches to be exact. And we've added "cleaning shoe" enhancements, like a 4-degree sloped chaffer and sieve, for even finer cleaning and separation. To find out just how gentle we can be, contact your GLEANER dealer. The remarkable new Millcreek Row Mulcher automates application of mulch and compost to any row crop.

Apply compost and organic mulch to any row crop automatically

The versatile Millcreek Row Mulcher makes different sized mulch beds as you need, from 18" to 48" wide, from 1/2" to 10" deep A mulching program can help you produce a healthier crop while reducing pesticide requirements.

From tree fruit to vegetable beds, from bramble crops to vineyards, organic mulch and compost can reduce chemical input for weed suppression, retain soil moisture, and improve soil fertility by adding organic matter to sandy and clay soils

Now Millcreek eliminates the costly labor needed for organic mulch and compost application The remarkable new Millcreek Row Mulcher works with all types of organic material, and even lets you adjust the depth and width of the mulch rows

Starting under $5000, no other machine compares when it comes to capabilities, versatility, and cost effectiveness Rugged construction Five sizes, from 3 4 to 13 cubic yard capacity Custom designs Call today for a free color brochure, or to discuss your specific needs

Responsible and Renewable Agriculture CONFERENCES
by AgRestore

AgRestore® bases its approach to soil fertility, crop production, livestock nutrition and production on the newest technology in the agricultural arena. With an ear to the future needs in soil conservation, ground water quality, selection of animals with higher genetic potential as well as the changing global economics in agricultural production. AgRestore® attempts to be in the forefront with products and programs meeting current and anticipated needs of today's agricultural community.

This is an excellent opportunity to learn about the future trends in agriculture, new production techniques, tools and products as well as have the opportunity to rub shoulders with some of the best producers in your area.

This year the AgRestore® staff is pleased to announce the Pennsylvania and Maryland conferences as follows:

Others couldn't put Roundup Ready® and corn in the same sentence. We put them in the same hybrid.

NEW* DK 493RR 99 RM
Roundup Ready® / Outstanding yield for its maturity / Excellent drydown / Very good drought tolerance

NEW* DK 512RR 101RM
Roundup Ready® / Excellent yield potential / Consistent over a wide range of soil types, management practices / Very good plant health

NEW* DK 580RR 108RM
Roundup Ready® / Excellent yield potential, drydown / Widely adapted / Very good root, stalk strength, foliar disease resistance

As the first to offer Roundup Ready corn, we're proud to say we didn't put this powerful new trait in just one hybrid. We put it in many.

Leading hybrids proven to yield in your area. So your corn will not only stand up to the competition, but to something even better. Over-the-top application of Roundup Ultra.™

Vegetable Day Speakers Encourage 'Store-Door' Relationships

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — "It's simply an effort to get buyers and growers together," said Jeff Patton, coordinator for the Pennsylvania Produce Project, begun recently to help vegetable producers throughout the state sell directly to supermarkets.

"These are people you can start a relationship with, a long- term grower-seller relationship," Patton told about 120 vegetable producers and agri-industry representatives on Monday at the New Holland Vegetable Day at Summit Valley Elementary School.

Patton coordinated a special buyer panel featuring one warehouse representative, a produce manager for a large retail supermarket store chain, and the co-owner of a chain.

"We encourage store-door delivery," said Charles Breneman, director of produce for Weis Markets at its Sunbury headquarters.

"The program is near and dear to us." Breneman said that the "Pennsylvania-Proven Produce" label, while relatively new to the state, is an old idea to Weis. "We have embraced it for 40 years," he said. They allow store produce managers to set up store-door delivery from local growers. Weis also purchases produce in bulk from growers at its distribution warehouse.

The produce must meet standard USDA certification requirements, but Weis accepts a wide array of produce, including sweet corn, tomatoes, potatoes, peppers, squash cucumbers, and others. They encourage producers to stop in to local Weis markets and speak directly to the produce managers. Once scheduling and payment details are worked out, Weis is willing to work on a long-term relationship with the grower.

Breneman spoke to a producer at the Vegetable Day who has been selling directly to Weis for about 18 years.

William Fox, president of Fox's Supermarket with locations in Harrisburg, Middletown, and Hershey, operates medium-sized supermarket stores ranging from 30,000-35,000 square feet. They have operated their independent, family-owned business for 30 years.

Fox's Supermarkets encourages local store managers to deal directly with local producers. Often they purchase produce from Norristown Produce, who deliver six days a week to all three stores.

"Anything they choose will be inspected right on the spot and will pay cash on the spot," said Fox. "The local product is superior to what we get through the warehouse."

Fox, including the other buyers at the Vegetable Day, are looking toward "signature ID" of the produce — putting the grower's name and location right on the produce. All believe it is an excellent selling point. "Pennsylvania-proven produce is almost like a brand name," Fox said.

Robert Van Liew is director of produce for Associated Wholesalers, who operates the wholesale buying business in Robesonia. The company has made it a point to listen to their customers and he told those who want to sell directly to stores that communication is vital.

The business, in operation for 70 years, supplies independent supermarkets throughout Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, and other states. Included are 100 supermarkets and 200 specialty shops, from mom and pop small-town meat stores to about 800 convenience stores throughout the region. Their system of allocation includes computer time-dated material using PLU stickers.

From left, Robert Van Liew, director of produce for Associated Wholesalers, who operates the wholesale buying business in Robesonia; Charles Breneman, director of produce for Weis Markets at its Sunbury headquarters; and William Fox, president of Fox's Supermarket with locations in Harrisburg, Middletown, and Hershey.

Van Liew emphasized the importance of developing a working relationship with local markets. The warehouse offers a special service to growers who have a lot of produce to move.

The buyers can be reached at the following phone numbers: William Fox, (717) 944-7486; Charles Breneman, (717) 742-2406; and Bob Van Liew, (610) 693-3161, ext. 2203.

At the Vegetable Day, Dr. Tim Elkner, Lancaster horticulture agent, told sweet corn growers that it is important to manage and select for sweet corn varieties that meet customer preferences for either sweet or "corn-tasting."

Grain Seminars Set

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — Central Susquehanna Grain Marketing Club and Penn State Cooperative Extension presents the 1998 Grain Marketing Winter Seminars.

Plan to come out and join with neighboring grain producers to learn how to maximize your profit margin when you buy and sell grain. Speakers from industry and two universities will be helping us to answer the following questions: What local and global factors affect price? How can I learn to anticipate price moves? How do futures and options play a part in my price planning? Should I have a brokerage account? How can I use all this knowledge to my benefit?

The following seminars are offered to grain marketers looking to increase their level of understanding on this important subject.

• Thursday, Feb. 12, 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Kevin McNew from the University of Maryland will be coming in to explain further the concept of basis — what it is, why it is important to us, how it changes over time, and how to use it to our advantage. He will also add to the prior seminar with a discussion on the practical use of futures option trading. And as a side note, he agreed to make some comments on the work he was involved in that tracked the performance of market advisory services compared to price for corn and soybeans.

• Thursday, March 5, 10 a.m. to noon. Lou Moore will join with us to discuss grain marketing from the bigger picture. Lou is known for his market outlooks and he will talk about what influences the market price and how you can work to understand those factors and learn to use them to your advantage. Although we generally sell locally, price is influenced by world events. Learn why that's important to you.

The meetings will all be held at the Bonanza Restaurant/Comfort Inn at New Columbia. The restaurants is located just south of I-80 on Route 15 in Union County. It will be held in the Union Room. Seating is limited and will be available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Registration cost is $5. Lunch Dutch treat at the adjacent Bonanza Restaurant.

For more information or to reserve a seat at one or all of the sessions, call Tom Murphy at the Lycoming County Extension office at (717) 327-2350. Reservation deadline is five business days prior to each meeting.

Berks Crops Day Jan. 30

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Specialty corns, emerging technologies in corn production, and grain quality are the headline topics to be presented at the Berks County Crops Day, Jan. 30 at the Berks County Ag Center, Leesport, according to Mena Hautau, extension agent.

Dr. Greg Roth, Agronomy Department, Penn State, said that there are many exciting innovations in corn production. He will present a discussion regarding various corn types, such as high oil corn, leafy type, and low phytase corn. Precision agriculture and biotechnology are technologies that may or may not be adopted in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Rick Stehouwer is a new faculty member in agronomy, Penn State, and is responsible for research and extension in environmental soils. He will be updating producers on the new regulations regarding sludge application.

Other topics include a tax law update by the new farm management extension agent serving Berks County, John Rutherford. A weed management update will be presented by John Yocum, manager of the Southeast Pennsylvania Research and Extension Center and nutrient management will be covered by Don Reinert, Berks County Conservation District.

Registration cost is $4. Registration information can be obtained by contacting Penn State Cooperative Extension-Berks County, PO Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533-0520, (610) 378-1327.

Elkner reviewed the results of a sweet corn variety trial conducted at the Penn State Extension Landisville Research Station last summer to examine 30 different varieties to look at several factors, including standability, ear quality, tipfull, and taste.

The corn was planted on a "staggered" schedule so that different varieties would become mature at approximately the same time. The planting dates were to bring fully mature ears to harvest in time for a special taste-test twilight meeting at the research station in August.

Overall, growers offered their opinions on the "tastability" of the corn. Preferences varied. But corn "taste" overall is affected by the number of cloudy days in the season (sweet corn prefers lots of sun) and other elements.

Some varieties offered a "creamier" taste, while other growers preferred varieties that were mostly sweet. Elkner pointed out that it is important to know your customers and what they would prefer. If trying new or experimental varieties, plant them in small lots with caution.

Although the best "taste test" is conducted with raw corn picked right out of the field, Elkner noted that the taste test is conducted with cooked corn because that is the way it will be prepared by the customers at home.

Elkner also reviewed the results of a study involving 14 different varieties of pumpkins at the Landisville site. Overall, there were some surprisingly good varieties that withstood tough drought conditions in the summer with some good yields.

Also at the Vegetable Day, Bob Berghage, assistant professor of horticulture at Penn State, spoke about new varieties of bedding plants available to the grower.

Berghage said the best petunias he has ever seen are the "Wave Series" from Pan American. The "Purple Wave" variety is the 1995 All-American Series winner. The petunias hold up well after rainfall (what horticulturalists refer to as "storm recovery"). In all, Berghage reviewed 35 different plant species for the use in the home garden.

The Vegetable Day offered other sessions on cover crops for vegetables, apple rootstocks, biological and chemical pest control in greenhouses, vegetable disease problems, pollination concerns, fruit tree fertility, vegetable research and promotion, managing vegetables under stress, early season production of vegetables, managing bumblebees in the greenhouse, sprayer coverage, what's new in weed management, greenhouse tomato production, the basics of trickle irrigation, and plastic mulch disposal and water rights.

Working together. Isn't it a wonderful thing?

Each does its own thing. And both benefit. When it comes to COUNTER® CR® systemic insecticide-nematicide and your herbicide, each does its own thing. And your corn benefits. Use controlled-release CR to stop tough pests. Then use virtually any herbicide, including SU's. You'll give your corn its best fighting chance. It lasts longer. It handles the extremes. It's CR.

Farm Show Market Livestock Auction Totals $157,000

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The sale of market animals at the 1998 Pennsylvania Farm Show raised a total of $157,149.22 for the youth who sold the three species of livestock — lambs, swine and steer — at auction.

Included in the auction sale total was a record $27,000 price paid for the grand champion market steer, reported in Lancaster Farming last week.

Bill Campbell, CEO of Hoss's Steak and Sea House a long time supporter of the 4-H and FFA programs, and youth with projects, paid $27,000 for the grand champion steer owned by Tim Kosiorek of Wattsburg, breaking his 1996 $26,000 record-setting price paid for the grand champion steer.

For those youth whose Farm Show market animal didn't make the cut to be sold at auction, they received the lower, straight packer price, not included in the sale averages.

While largely unnoticed by the regular media crews annually attracted to the sale of champions event, the Farm Show exhibitor who showed the reserve grand champion swine made an offer of a free pig to one of her fellow Farm Show swine exhibitors whose animal was passed over for sale at auction.

Janine Winebark, daughter of Kenneth and Janet Winebark of Myerstown, has offered a free, top quality genetics market swine piglette to the winner of a contest.

Winebark's swine, of course, was included in the overall auction total, according to details released this week from the Farm Show administration.

While prices paid on the other champions didn't break records, they all are inflated and go to help youth raise money in the hope they will use it to further their own advancement in learning and knowledge.

The total paid on the six champion animals — the grand and reserve grand of each of the three species — was $38,750.

Without including the champions, the average price paid on the other 57 steers auctioned was $955, or 78 cents per pound, for a total of $54,435.

The average price paid on the 120 non-grand champion market lambs sold at auction was $241.33, or $2.05 per pound, for a total of $28,959.60.

The average price paid on the 161 non-grand champion market swines was $217.42, or 89 cents per pound, for a total of $35,004.62.

As background to understanding Winebark's offer of a show pig to raise for the 1999 Farm Show, the way such a livestock sale is generally conducted is that one to several meat packing businesses will offer to pay a set price for all livestock not sold through auction.

The packers will often, as in the case of the Farm Show sale and most others sales, offer to buy any of the animals at market price — saving supporters the concern and bother of taking possession of the animal, when support is all that is desired; and offering a reasonable price to youth whose animals may not quite measure up.

Because of the tremendous volume of youth with swine projects, it has been considered too time consuming and meaningless to bring the majority of the swine into the ring to be sold.

The top 160 or so are sold in the auction ring, while the rest are sold to the packer.

There were 408 market swine entered this year. If all those entered actually were shown in the ring and then sold, that means that about 248 youth received the packer rate for their animals.

There were 69 market steers entered, and 204 market lambs. Allowing for no-shows, that means there were still a few youth who didn't receive the added financial benefit of having their Farm Show animal at auction.

While this seems fair to most adults, Winebark said she noticed that some of the youth whose swine didn't make the cut to be sold at auction seemed somewhat disheartened.

Further, she knows that perfect care of a market animal can not overcome poor genetics, and that good genetics can be expensive to purchase or otherwise take years to develop.

Having shown the reserve grand champion market hog this year, she expressed her concern that those whose animal didn't make the cut to be sold at auction might not return to compete at the Farm Show next year.

During her turn at the annual last-day-of Farm Show sale of champions event, it was announced that she is offering a chance for those other youth to benefit from the Hampshire genetics she has in her swine.

She said she wants to offer one piglette out of an anticipated litter from the sow that bore her 1998 reserve grand champion.

Eligibility is restricted to those 248 or so youth whose 1998 Farm Show junior market swine entry didn't make the cut for auction.

What they have to do to win is write a two-page, typewritten, double-spaced entry on:

"Why I would like to be considered as the caretaker of this market pig, and how I would plan to care for it."

Included with the entry should

You're going to fall in love with a better herbicide.

No other herbicide compares to the one-pass control over the toughest grasses and broadleaves you get with Guardsman® herbicide. Compare it with Bicep® II herbicide. Guardsman gives you more consistent control of annual grasses and broadleaves. The unique chemistry of Guardsman means it activates with less moisture when dry and remains effective in the weed zone when it's wet. And Guardsman gives you superior performance with excellent crop safety and lower use rates. It all adds up to a herbicide that's worth falling in love with.

Plan To Attend The Vegetable Conference

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Hundreds of vegetable growers from throughout the state are expected to attend the 1998 Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference and Trade Show Jan. 27-29 here at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

Sessions on processing vegetables, general vegetables, bedding plants, brambles, and general marketing will also be offered. Pesticide applicator update training credits are available to growers attending the sessions.

The program will feature three concurrent sessions on all three days.

The conference is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association. It is scheduled concurrently with the 139th Annual Meeting of the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania, the state fruit growers association. The state horticultural societies of Maryland and New Jersey also meet in conjunction with their fellow fruit growers from Pennsylvania. In all, more than 1,600 are expected to attend the three-day meetings.

The processing tomato growers with the highest yields for the 1997 season will be honored at the annual Tomato Awards Luncheon on the opening day, Jan. 27. That evening, the annual Fruit and Vegetable Growers Banquet will be followed by recognitions and musical entertainment by the "New Horizons" of the Milton Hershey School.

The members of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association will receive various reports, act on policy resolutions, and elect six members of the board of directors at their annual business meeting on Jan. 28.

Registration is required for all persons attending the conference and trade show. The proceedings of the conference will be available to persons not attending the conference at a cost of $10.

For more information, contact William Troxell, Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, RR 1 Box 947, Richfield, PA 17086-9626, (717) 694-3596.

Entries should be sent to: Janine and Brandon Winebark, 804 Hilltop Road, Myerstown, PA. 17067.

Janine and her brother Brandon both raise and show market animals, and Brandon will help Janine in reviewing the entries and selecting the winner.

Entries will be accepted until April 1.

Kenneth Winebark said the sow is yet to be bred, but breeding is expected to be done with a target farrowing date in July, with the winner of the essay contest able to take possession sometime in September or later.

Janine Winebark has served as a Farm Show inspiration in the past, having donated the entire $10,000 paid for her 1994 grand champion Farm Show market swine into the Farm Show Scholarship Fund. At the time, it was the fund's second year.

Planter Clinic Feb. 3

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The growing environment during the 1997 season was dry and cool, which delayed crop growth and development.

According to Mena Hautau, Penn State extension agent, Berks County, one of the lessons learned in 1997 was proper corn seed placement.

A planter maintenance clinic is planned for Feb. 3, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Corner View Farm, owned by Dalton Biehl, Kutztown to address these concerns. A John Deere 7000 corn planter will be evaluated and high wear items will be inspected. Lynn Hoffman, Department of Agronomy, Penn State, will be conducting the clinic. Lynn is well known and respected by producers as a hands-on teacher and experienced farmer.

Registration is due Jan. 27 and costs $5. Class size is limited to 25 participants. For registration information, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension, PO Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533-0520, (610) 378-1327.

Sheep To Shawl Contest Winners Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's First Lady Michele M. Ridge opened the 82nd Pennsylvania Farm Show's Sheep to Shawl contest, and enjoyed the work of the four teams with son Tom.

The Butler County Peddlers got off to a delayed start when there was a misunderstanding of the starting time and their shearer was not there on time. Finding a substitute shearer cost them time, but in the end they won first place in the contest and the "Weaver's Award" for the creativity of the design, use of color and skill. They were second in last year's contest.

The shawl was auctioned by Harry Bachman for $375. All four shawls were modeled by Elizabeth Lee Hayes, wife of Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr., who welcomed the participants.

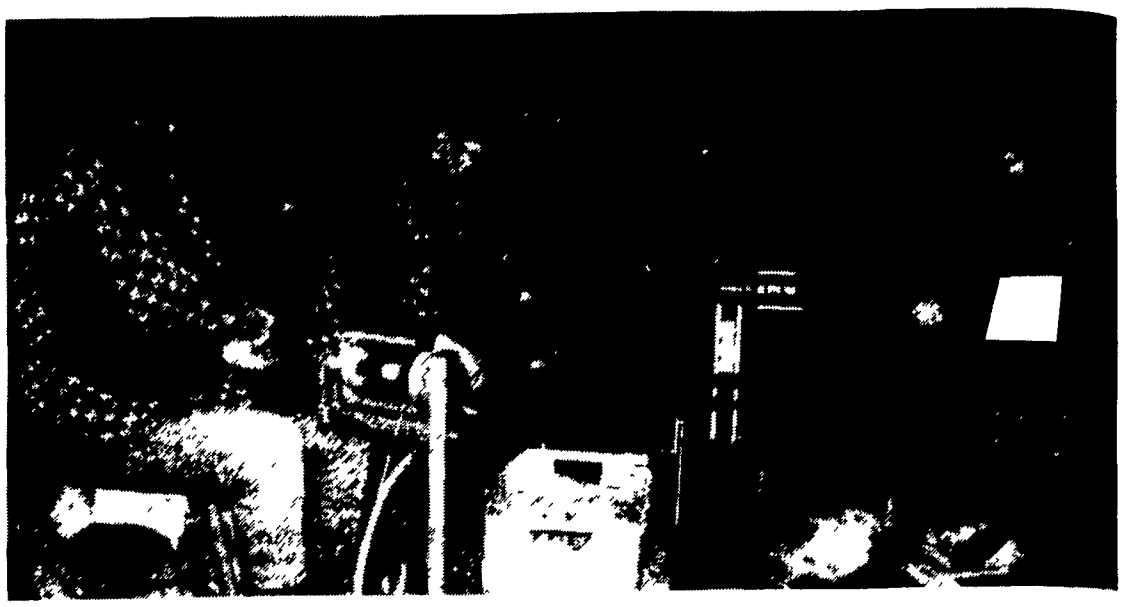
Second place went to the Pennsylvania Mohair & Cashmere Growers Association who were the first to complete a shawl. This is the second year they competed, having won first place in 1997. Their shawl also brought $375 at the auction. They received the "Spinner's Award" in recognition of the quality of their workmanship and spinner's team spirit and cooperation. In a vote by contest participants for their favorite, they also received the "Team's Choice" award.

Third place went to the Woolie and Wild Spinners & Weavers, who also received the "Shearer's Award" for careful handling of the sheep and exceptional skill. The shawl made by the group consisted of all Dauphin County wool. It was recognized to be of the highest quality wool and received the "Best Fleece Award." It was auctioned for $175.

Weave Made It produced the fourth place shawl, which was auctioned for $250.

Each team is composed of a shearer, a weaver, and three spinners who competed to craft a quality homemade shawl from start to finish. In order to participate in the Farm Show, the team members must all be Pennsylvania residents and have competed or exhibited at two events prior to the Farm Show.

The purpose of the Sheep to Shawl contest is to promote public awareness of the contributions made by the sheep and wool industry to Pennsylvania agriculture. It also provides an opportunity for craftspeople in the state to showcase their skills. Originally established in 1981 as the Northeastern Regional competition, the Sheep to Shawl contest has been held annually at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, drawing crowds as large as 5,000 people. The competition is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association and is supported by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Farm Show Commission.



The Butler County Peddlers at work on their winning sheep to shaw contest entry.

Three judges evaluated the teams and scored them on the basis of shearing, speed, uniformity of yarn being spun, overall design of the weaving and team identification.

When evaluating team identification, the judges looked for an original theme or creative name that unified the individual members of the teams.

The shearing portion of the contest was judged according to speed, uniformity of shearing, lack of cuts to the sheep, and lack of second cuts, or small nicks, to the wool.

Evaluation of the three spinners individually was based on fleece preparation and how their individual spining related to the overall design of the shawl.

The design and appearance of the finished shawl were judged on originality of design, difficulty of the weaver, softness and drapability of the shawl, lack of pull-ins in the selvage edges, color coordination between warp and weft, and the quality of the finished fringe.

The completed shawl was also judged for evenness in weaving as well as evenness and lack of pull-ins in the selvage edges. The rules require the shawl to be at least 22 inches wide and 78 inches in length. Teams were awarded bonus points for how quickly they finished the shawl.

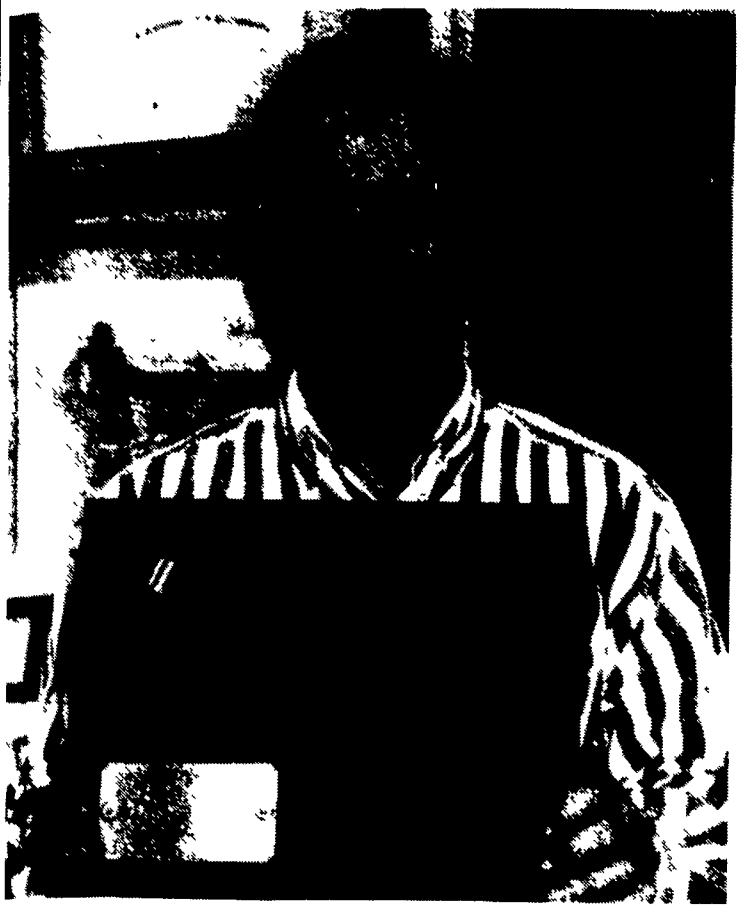
Ephrata Auctioneer Wins Bid Calling Contest



John Rutt II won the bid calling contest for auctioneers at the Pennsylvania Farm Show last week.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) - John Rutt II, Ephrata, in Lancaster County took first place in the bid calling contest at the 82nd Pennsylvania Farm Show. It is the second year the contest was held in the Family Living and Agricultural Learning Center, after an eight year hiatus. Last Year Rutt placed third.

A total of 24 licensed auctioneers participated in the contest that helped raise money for the Farm Show Youth Scholarship Foundation. This year 13 scholarships worth $2,000 each were awarded to young people who have shown livestock at the Farm Show.

One of the items offered for sale was the champion bushel of apples, along with a second bushel. It was sold for $250 to Omar Landis Auction Service who gave the bushel back to be sold again. In subsequent bidding, the apples were sold several times, netting a total of $610 for the scholarship fund. The first $250 was donated to the Southcentral Food Bank.

Eight judges evaluated each of the contestants. Four judges watched the auctioneers as they sold a variety of items, scoring each contender on salesmanship, appearance, and microphone ability. The bid-calling ability and auctioneer's speech were evaluated by the remaining four judges who listened to, rather than watched, the performance.

An overflow audience gave their rapt attention, as well as their dollars, to make the contest successful.

Other placings were third, Sandy Brittingham, Vanderbilt, Fayette County; fourth, Larry Porter, Conneaut Lake, Crawford County; fifth, August Bender, Nazareth, Northampton County; sixth, Philip Hurst, Denver, Lancaster County; seventh, Jessica Shaub, Quarryville, Lancaster County; eighth, Vince Cianci, Transfer, Mercer County; ninth, Tom Abruzzese, Bath, Northampton County; and 10th, Robert Roshon, Newport, Perry County.

The contest was coordinated by the Central Chapter of Pennsylvania Auctioneer's Association. The Association is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

Grazing Course Set

LEONARDTOWN, Md. — The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Services has scheduled a grazing short course for livestock producers in southern Maryland.

The five-week program will be presented at two locations from 6:30 p.m.-9:30 p.m.: Prince George's County Extension office in Clinton on Mondays from Feb. 23 through March 23 and at the St. Mary's County State Office Building in Leonardtown on Tuesdays from Feb. 24 through March 24.

Through the program, livestock and horse owners will receive information on the practices and benefits of controlled grazing and be given tools to begin more intensive management of pastures.

The cost for the program is $15 per conferee registered by Feb. 9 ($25 after Feb. 9), $5 per guest, and includes one conference notebook per conferee and refreshments. Call your Southern Maryland Extension Office for more information or (301) 868-8783 to register.

Farm Show Highlights State's Dairy Breeds

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farm Show highlights competitive shows of the six main dairy breeds, before selecting a supreme champion from among the grand champions of the breeds.

The selection of an aged Ayrshire cow owned by Jeffrey and Michele Reasner, of Shippensburg, as supreme champion was reported last week in Lancaster Farming, as were the grand champions of each breed.

There were more champions within each of the breed competitions.

Holstein

In the Holstein breed, the grand champion was an aged cow, Globe-Run Jethro Violet, co-owned by Globe Run Farms (John Foster Jr. family) of Petersburg, and Robert Norris.

The junior champion was a spring yearling, Loving Meadows Sun Blossom, owned by John Bomgardner from Ono, while the reserve junior champion was a junior calf, Spungold C Leader Abbie, owned by Dale and Deanna Bendig of Gettysburg.

In the youth division, the grand champion was a 4-year-old owned by Scott Walton of Carlisle. The reserve grand champion was a 3-year-old, Beshore Adan Juniper, owned by Angie Beshore of New Cumberland. Beshore also showed the youth division reserve junior champion, a fall yearling, Beshore Ivan Emily.

The youth division junior champion was a senior calf, Dar-Dale Encore August, owned by Daphne Doll of Glen Rock.

Premier breeder of the show was Scott Walton, while the John and Alice Foster Jr. family were the premier exhibitors.

Ayrshire

In the Ayrshire breed, the reserve grand champion, a 2-year-old, Dreamnol Trident's Snow, was shown by Kevin Nolan of Cochranville. It was also the youth division grand champion.

The youth division reserve grand champion Ayrshire was a 4-year-old, Anchor-Mere R Johnson 2, owned by Karen Sterner of Bechtelsville.

The junior champion Ayrshire was the daughter of the supreme champion, a spring yearling, Jemi Heligo Pollyanna, also owned by the Reasners.

The reserve junior champion and the youth division junior champion were one in the same — a fall yearling, Wentworth Farm Sweet Vadalia — owned by Craig Nolan, and Robert and Bonnie Wentworth, of Cochranville.

The youth division reserve junior champion Ayrshire was a summer yearling, Glen Malcom Senior's Tinkle, owned by Alan Brant of Mount Union.

The premier breeder of the show was Jesse Stambaugh of East Berlin, while Pattie Maulfair of Maulfair Acres in Jonestown was premier exhibitor.

Brown Swiss

While Joy Hess of Gettysburg showed her 3-year-old Rick-Lea Zurich Bell to win the open division grand championship of the show, the reserve grand champion of the show was an aged cow owned by Alicia Ann Mase, of Lebanon, Meadow Hill Jade Alice.

Alicia's Alice cow was also youth division grand champion.

Alicia's youngest brother Anthony Mase showed the youth division reserve grand champion, a 2-year-old, Meadow Hill Jade Aubrie.

The open division junior champion animal was a fall yearling, Top Acres Leverage Lilian, owned by Joshua Hushon of Delta. It was also the youth division junior champion.

The reserve junior champion of the youth division was shown by Jared Daubert of McElhattan, a fall yearling that followed Hushon in the class.

Premier breeder of the show was Bruce Heilinger of Newmanstown, while the premier exhibitor was Jason Kennedy of Butler.

Jersey

The grand champion of the Jersey breed show was a 5-year-old, CLV Grove Miss Fatima, owned by Brian and Patricia Huff of Windridge Farm in Cochranville.

The reserve grand champion of the open show was a 3-year-old, Springfield Dunker Lucky, owned by Curtis Reichard and Craig Walton of Chambersburg.

The youth division grand champion was 2-year-old, Swopes Imperial PU, owned by Rodney Swope of Mercersburg.

The youth division reserve grand champion was also a 2-year-old, Limekiln Lester Oley, owned by Travis Mast, of Oley.

The junior champion of the open division of the Jersey show was a winter yearling, Bonnyburn Gemini Seinna, owned by Janet and Elizabeth Jenkins of Toughkenamon.

The reserve junior champion was shown by J Craig and Susan Wicker of Centre Hall, who were named the premier breeders of the show.

In the youth division, the junior champion was shown by Emme Mellott of Mercersburg, while the reserve junior champion was shown by Patrick Kenkins of Toughkenamon.

The premier exhibitor of the Jersey show were the Bryan and Patricia Huff.

Guernsey

In the Guernsey breed, the grand champion was a 3-year-old, Snider's OPP Georgie, owned by Jan Snider of Snider Homestead Farm in New Enterprise. It was the honorable mention in the competition for supreme champion, as well as the youth division grand champion.

The reserve grand champion of the open and youth divisions was the second place 3-year-old, Sniders Fayettes Horizon, owned by Amber Clark, of New Enterprise.

The junior champion Guernsey of the open division was a junior calf owned by Kevin Stoltzfus and Elsie Wolff of Quarryville.

The reserve junior champion of the open division and the junior champion of the youth division was a winter yearling, Sniders G Henry Rave, owned by Aaron Gable of New Enterprise.

The premier breeder and exhibitor of the show was Rutter Brothers of York.

Milking Shorthorn

The reserve grand champion of the open division was 2-year-old Pinesedge RCM Nikki, owned by Jason Nailor of Mechanicsburg.

The reserve grand champion of the youth division show was a 3-year-old, Three Springs OT Jet EXP, owned by Rebecca Cornman of Boiling Springs.

The junior champion Milking Shorthorn of the open and youth division shows was a senior calf, Plumside Snowflake, owned by Melissa Wolfe of Northumberland.

The reserve junior champion Milking Shorthorn of the open division was a fall yearling, Kuszlyk Cattle Co. Lucky, owned by

Brillhart Wins Drawing For Ice Cream Freezer

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

SPRING GROVE (York Co.) — Dale Brillhart almost missed winning the ice cream freezer Lancaster Farming gave away during Farm Show week.

For 20 years he has subscribed to the paper but never bothered to sign up at Lancaster Farming's booth at the Farm Show until this year.

"I saw the entry blank to win the ice cream freezer in the paper. I filled it out ahead of time, but when I got up there, I walked past the booth because it was so full. Then, I thought, 'Well, I got it. I might as well desposit it,' so I backed up and reached over a lot of heads to put it in the box," Brillhart said.

He's glad that he did. As the winner of the drawing, Brillhart plans to put the ice cream freezer to plenty of use.

He and his wife Delores have worn out several ice cream freezers over the years. It was time to replace the one they had been using recently.

Brillhart is delighted with the 6-quart White Mountain—the best brand on the market for making homemade ice cream, according to homemade ice cream enthusiasts.

Now retired, Brillhart rents out the family's 112-acre grain farm, which has been in the family for at least 70 years.

He had been raising soybeans, corn, and wheat on the farm until three years ago.

"It was time to buy a new truck, combine, and corn planter if I wanted to continue farming it, so I thought this was a good time to rent it out and sell the equipment," Brillhart said.

The equipment sale is slated for Saturday, April 11.

The farm will not be sold but kept in the family. The Brillharts have a daughter Pamela.

Although Brillhart is planning to sell his equipment, he still has farming in his blood.

"I do part-time fieldwork for a local dairy farm, and I love it," he said. He continues to mow some of the pasture land on his farm that sits too low to farm.

Delores and Dale Brillhart win the ice cream freezer from Lancaster Farming's annual drawing held during Farm Show week. The couple have worn out several freezers and are eager to put this one to work.

Brillhart enthusiastically reports that he enjoys hunting trips out west. He's already participated in four trips and has "some nice mule deer heads" as trophies. His wife vacations in Florida while he hunts.

Both share the enjoyment of eating homemade ice cream. Here is their favorite recipe for homemade ice cream.

Strawberry Ice Cream

4 eggs
2 cups sugar
6 cups milk
4 cups light cream
2 tablespoons vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
1 pint fresh or frozen strawberries, blended

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Corn, No.2y — 2.26 bu., 4.05 cwt.

Wheat, No. 2 — 3.20 bu., 5.34 cwt.

Barley, No. 3 — 2.35 bu., 5.02 cwt.

Oats, No. 2 — 1.73 bu., 5.38 cwt.

Soybeans, No. 1 — 6.50 bu., 10.85 cwt.

Ear Corn — 80.96 ton, 4.048 cwt.

Alfalfa Hay — 169.25 ton, 8.46 cwt.

Mixed Hay — 150.00 ton, 7.5 cwt.

Timothy Hay — 153.75 ton, 7.69 cwt.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) – The district meetings for local DHIA directors are planned for January and February. There are eleven meetings scheduled around the state meeting, corresponding to the eleven director districts. These meetings are held every year primarily for directors of local DHIA committees/boards.

It is an opportunity for directors and management to get together for discussion of issues and developments affecting DHIA members statewide. Election of directors tot he state board is also done at the meetings.

Anyone interested in attending the meeting in their district may contact their county committee or local board.

The meetings will begin at 9:30 a.m. and end at 3:00 p.m. on the dates and places shown.

Pennsylvania Holstein Association Convention In Greensburg

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The theme of the 1998 Pennsylvania Holstein Association convention is, "Looking back, it all started here."

The convention is set to be held Feb. 25-27 in Greensburg, the site of the PHA's first convention 43 years ago.

According to Kenneth Raney, executive director of the PHA, "Nobility was in attendance at the first state convention held in Greensburg 43 years ago. A Polish countess was the featured speaker back then."

This year, as the association returns to Greensburg for its convention, there is no Polish countess, but count on plenty of dairy royalty, as well as a large number of breeders of Holstein nobility.

According to Raney, the excitement that generally accompanies the annual event is running high within the organization, as the program includes a number of workshops and speakers directed at helping members with their businesses, and committee people have worked hard to offer meaningful discussions and learning opportunities, as well as fun and fellowship.

Further, a dairy greenhouse manufacturing company is to set up a 30-foot by 100-foot greenhouse to house the convention sale animals. Raney said there are to be about 60 consignments from Pennsylvania and surrounding states in the convention sale.

But, not only is the greenhouse barn to serve as the on-site convention sale barn, it is to be sold at auction along with the cattle.

The greenhouse sold during the convention sale will be dismantled for the buyer, though transportation and reconstruction will be the buyer's responsibility. New plastic will also be provided by the company for the barn.

Additionally, Raney said the company, Harnois Greenhouse Supply, is offering a convention-only special discount to any convention-goer who orders a facility.

Raney said those interested in the barn can visit with the company representatives at their commercial exhibit in the Greensburg Sheraton Inn, convention headquarters.

The convention schedule for Feb. 25 begins at 8 a.m. with registration, the opening of commercial exhibits and the acceptance of bids for a convention silent auction. That all lasts until 6:30 p.m.

From noon to 5 p.m., a dairy bar is to be open.

From noon to 1:15 p.m., the PHA board of directors are to meet, followed by the first of two sessions of breakout roundtable/panel discussions.

There are to be four discussions offered from 1:30 p.m. to 3:00 p.m., and then repeated from 3:15 p.m. until 4:45 p.m.

The program setup allows for attendance in two of the four roundtable discussions.

Included during the sessions are to be, by topics and discussion leaders:

- "Milk pricing and marketing," with Donald Schriver, former CEO of Milk Marketing Inc., and executive vice president of Dairy Farmers of America.
- "Estate planning," with Robert Clark, a New Wilmington farm attorney; Mike Evanich from the Pa. Farm Bureau; and Gary Snyder a New York Farm Credit consultant; and moderator Jean Kummer, the area Penn State tri-county dairy extension agent.
- "Diversifying the family farm," with moderator Gary Sheppard, Westmoreland County Penn State Extension dairy agent; and owners of three farms with successful diversified farming businesses, represented by Fred Seipt of Northampton County, David Bitler of Berks County, and Daniel Ulmer of Centre County.
- "Breeding and merchandising," with moderator Diedra Johnson, with the Holstein World publication; Keith Decker, breeder of the Ked Juror and Ked Jurist sires, as well as the Justine cow family; James Burdette, of Windy-Knoll Holsteins, breeder and developer of the world-renowned Pala cow; Alan Myers of Tidy-Brook Holsteins breeder and developer of one of the top protein cow families in the Holstein breed; and John Burket, of Burket Falls Farm, known for the Sophia cow family and selling both plled and red bloodlines, who is also an official classifier for the Red & White Association.

Following the discussions, the pre-sale buffet is to be from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., followed by the sale at 7 p.m.

The next day, Thursday, Feb. 26, registration, exhibits, dairy bar and bids will accepted in the silent auction all day.

From 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., the PHA annual meeting is to be held, starting with presentations by commercial exhibitors, the executive director's report and the president's address, and featured speaker Doug Blair, CEO of Alta Genetics.

Alta Genetics is the parent company of Western Breeders, Balzac; Alta Genetics, Calgary; and Landmark Genetics, Hughson, Calif.

Blair has been with the company since 1968, and he is to talk about the prominent cattle of today with roots to Pennsylvania. He is to also share his vision of the future for breeding registered Holsteins.

The meeting is to end with an open forum meeting with Holstein USA.

A "ladies," or alternative, program is set to be held from 9:30 to 4 p.m.

The alternative program has been organized to recreate something of the first Ladies Program of the first convention.

During the first convention, the program included a tour of a glass factory. This year's program participants are to tour the L.E. Smith Glass Factory during the morning, followed by the opportunity to shop at the Lennox Crystal Glass Factory Showroom.

A luncheon featuring live dulcimer music is to be followed by an interactive skit by Citizens Against Crime.

A banquet reception is to be held from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., followed by the banquet, the presentation of Hall of Farm awards, and entertainment by ventriloquist Ken Grove.

On Friday, Feb. 27, breakfast is to be held from 8 to 9 a.m., with awards to be presented at 9 a.m. The breakfast-awards program is to include guest speaker Kurt Angle, an Olympic gold medal wrestler.

The Pittsburg area native, is to talk about the Olympic experience and the motivational factors he felt.

Raney said the Holstein clubs of the PHA Southwest District have contributed door prizes to be distributed during the convention, as well as "worked hard to provide for an enjoyable and informative convention."

According to Raney, directions to the Four-Points Sheraton in Greensburg are, from the Pennsylvania Turnpike, take Rt. 119 north to the Rt. 30 East Bypass; go three miles east on Rt. 30 Bypass; the Westmoreland Mall should be on the right, turn left at the first traffic light after the mall; travel straight uphill to the Sheraton.

For more information, call the PHA at (814) 234-0364.

Penn State Dairy Club Invites Dairy Youth

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy Science Club has issued an open invitation to all youth interested in dairy cattle to attend the third Pennsylvania Junior All-Breeds Convention, Feb. 13-15 at the Days Inn, State College.

The three-day event is designed for owners of dairy breeds who are interested in learning more about the dairy industry and in having fun.

Planned workshops and events, such as a mock sale, have an emphasis on material about all dairy breeds.

The convention begins Friday, Feb. 13, with registration running from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m., in the lobby of the Day's Inn Penn State.

From 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., Friday, a pizza party, social mixer, and a dance with music by disc jockey Kirk Sattazahn have been planned.

Saturday morning begins with the opening of the dairy bar, from 7:30 a.m. to 10 a.m..

Registration continues from 8 a.m. until noon Saturday.

At 8:30 a.m., vans are scheduled to leave the hotel to take convention goers to the Penn State Ag Sciences Building (ASI) for a continental breakfast in the ASI lobby at 8:45 a.m.

In the ASI Building and the Penn State Ag Arena, workshops are set to be held from 9:15 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

For the youngest, workshops are planned dealing with showring ethics, calf selection and care, and the difference between real and imitation products.

For the intermediate-aged convention-goers, workshops on the world wide web, and reproductive physiology are planned.

For older youth, a workshop on the world wide web is to be followed by one of dairy nutrition,

Organic Milk Meeting Set

PHILLIPSBURG, N.J. — "Dairying in Transition," a one-day meeting Thursday, Jan. 29, at the Holiday Inn in Phillipsburg, will discuss increasing market demands for organic or naturally produced milk and milk products.

The direct sale of dairy products such as cheese and yogurt offer producers and interested individuals a great opportunity to capitalize on the close proximity to a large and affluent market.

The "Dairying in Transition" program is designed to look at alternatives to increase farm income and stabilize dairy prices in an unstable market. Targeting dairy producers, agricultural entrepreneurs, government agencies, and dairy support businesses, this program will provide insight into opportunities available to New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New York dairy farms to remain viable and profitable without large capital investment.

The program is being hosted by the Penn Jersey group, a regional based cooperative extension program combining the collective expertise and efforts of agricultural agents from Rutgers University and Pennsylvania State University.

The fee for the meeting is $20 (which will include lunch, breaks, speaker costs, and handouts) and will run from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. For your registration form, contact the Rutgers Cooperative Extension in Belvidere at (908) 475-6503.

Delmarva Dairy Day Set

HARTLY, Del. – The 1998 Delmarva Dairy Day will be held on Wednesday, January 28, at the Hartly Fire Hall, Hartly, Delaware, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The tentative program is as follows:

-Brown mid-rib corn
-Feeding enzymes
-Managing family living expenses
-DHIA young sire requirements
-Phosphorus based nutrient management
-Using milk futures and options
-Changing how we think about milk marketing*

*Representatives from agribusinesses including Ocean Spray and the poultry industry will be on hand to talk about how they have been able to create value-added products and expand markets for their products.

*A panel of dairy farmers and farmer cooperative representatives will discuss the challenges ahead for milk marketing and how to expand marketing efforts.

There will also be a trade show with numerous exhibitors. Lunch is free and there is no registration fee.

Delmarva Dairy Day is sponsored by the University of Maryland, the University of Delaware and businesses serving our local dairy industry.

For more information contact John Hall at (410) 778-1661 or Gordon Johnson at (302) 697-4000.

which is to include such topics as body condition scoring, forage quality, and nutritional physiology.

For parents, a mock sale and a tour of the Penn State University Dairy Barn, and the Penn State Creamery are on tap.

Lunch is scheduled from noon until 1 p.m. During lunch, a panel discussion is to be held by a group of successful young people involved in various agricultural careers.

From 1 p.m. until 2:30 p.m. Tammy Weaver of the Pennsylvania Beef Council is to discuss beef promotions, commercials and consumer preferences. The Beef Council's operating funds are derived from the mandatory $1 checkoff from the sale of all beef and dairy cattle.

Free time is scheduled from 2:30 p.m. until 6 p.m.

However, tryouts are scheduled to start at 3:15 p.m. at Day's Inn for those desiring to gain a place in the Guernsey quiz bowl.

From 6:15 p.m. until 7:30 o.m., dinner is scheduled to be held at the Day's Inn, followed by a mock sale at the Day's Inn from 8 p.m. until 9 p.m. The mock sale is to feature all six major dairy cattle breeds. Teams are to be assigned aing e

Kirk Sattazahn again is to provide music for a 9 p.m.-11:30 p.m. dance.

Lights out is at 12:30 a.m.

Sunday starts with brunch at 9:30 a.m. with speaker Dr. Jill Findeis, an associate professor with the Penn State University Department of Agricultural Economics, who is to speak on the future of today's youth in agriculture.

Check out of the hotel is to be by 11:30 a.m.

Ticket reservation deadline is Feb. 5.

Though technically past the deadline for room reservations, call the Day's Inn at Penn State (800) 258-3297. Room rates had been $65 for one to four people in a room.

Eastern Shore Conference Aims At Impact Of Pfiesteria Scare

PRINCESS ANNE, Md. — What's really in the Hughes Commission Report? What do we know about the relationship between pfiesteria and animal waste? How can farmers lessen the perceived impact on Maryland agriculture?

These are the major questions to be addressed during a daylong conference on Jan. 29, sponsored by the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service. The event will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Richard A. Henson Center at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

Progarm speakers will include members of the Hughes Commission "Blue Ribbon" panel appointed by Governor Parris Glendening, spokespersons for the environmental and agricultural communities, University of Maryland agricultural researchers and extension specialists, and administrators from the Maryland Department of Agriculture and state Department of Natural Resouces.

James Hanson, agricultural economist, will give a closing wrap-up presentation. Based at College Park, Hanson is coordinator for agriculture and natural resources programs of the university's cooperative extension service.

He notes that most of the afternoon program will be devoted to management techniques and alternative uses for poultry manure that are environment — conscious and economically feasible — with possible state government cost-sharing opportunities.

There is no charge for the program, and lunch is free. All interested persons are invited. However, preregistration is required by Jan. 22. Call either Joe Trumbauer at (410) 651-1350 or Turp Garrett at (410) 632-1972.

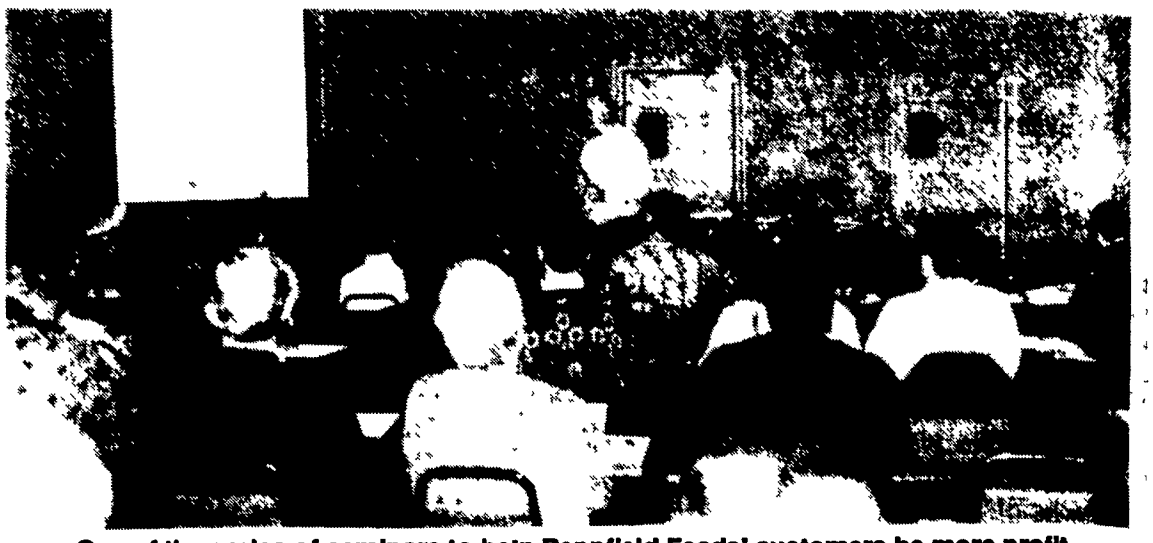
He started his career as a Classified Advertising Manager for Ingersol Newspapers and The Evening Bulletin.

From 1982 to 1993, Bill was Retail Advertising Manager and City Advertising Manager for the Philadelphia Inquirer & Daily News.

Since 1993 Bill has been publisher of Suburban Publications (a Division of Journal Register Company, Wayne, PA) and Hanover Publications/Evening Sun (a division of Media News Group, Hanover, PA).



One of the series of seminars to help Pennfield Feeds' customers be more profitable in the dairy farm operations was held Tuesday. Here Dr. Timothy Snyder, PAS, manager, dairy nutrition, speaks to attendees about the care of cows and calves through birth to calving and on through the lactation.

Dairy Days Provide Information To Make More Income

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) - In a series of Dairy Day programs, Pennfield Feeds is bringing together customers and prospects to help them make "more income on the farm." One such seminar was held Tuesday, and Don Mahlandt, director of dairy feed sales, said the educational programs are held to help dairymen improve their operations.

"Every year dairy farmers look for ways to improve everything they do," Mahlandt said. "This year, profitability is one of the key factors. And as a feed company, we need to help our customers stay in business, and so we bring in speakers to help them.

Dr. Timothy Snyder, manager of dairy nutrition, agreed. "We are excited about the potential for dairymen who adapt to the changing industry. We have a progressive group of customers and our job is to keep them aware of how they can take advantage of these changes."

Snyder listed new milk product packaging and aggressive marketing as reasons to be optimistic about the dairy industry. In addition, new milk labeling and milk price guarantees via forward contracts are now available. The 1997 average milk price will be at $13.25, the third highest, and the 1998 price outlook is as good as last year if not better.

Speakers especially emphasized the need to get the most from your grain by proper balancing of rations and using the best processing for the grain. Pennfield has the trademarked process called Super Flake that has showed a five pound production increase over traditional grinding.

An increase in rolling herd average from 18,000 pounds to 24,000 pounds makes a considerable increase in profitability even if you pay more per ton of feed. Dairymen were urged to know their cost of production and to make decisions beyond the traditional way of thinking. Maybe it's not profitable to do everything on your farm, but by using a neighbor to grow heifers or do some other part of your operation, you may make a good economic move.

There was also special emphasis for using new monitering tools and methods to be able to take action early if there is a health problem in the herd. Also new feed additives provide tools to enable you to better control problems at calving or with the newborn calf.

Keeping on top of these new tools and methods go a long way to help the farmer to have a profitable operation, and Pennfield considers it their job to keep their customers informed of these good practices, as well as to provide products and services that will enhance the farmer's profitability.

Other speakers on the Pennfield Dairy Days programs are Dr. Norman St. Pierre, PAS, and Dr. Mike Lormore, DVM. The meetings cover the service area from New York state, through Pennsylvania, including western and central Pennsylvania, and Maryland.

Ag Economist To Address Dairy Producers, Agribusiness

MERCER (Mercer Co.) — Dr. David Kohl, professor of agricultural finance and small business management at the Virginia Polytechnical Institute (VPI, or Virginia Tech. the state university of Virginia) will present "Thriving in the Changing Environment of the Dairy Industry" on Wednesday, Feb. 4, from 12:30 p.m.-3 p.m. at the Leslie N. Firth Learning Center, Mercer.

This regional conference was developed for dairy producers in Crawford, Erie, Mercer, and Venango counties, and agribusiness owners who serve the dairy industry. Kohl will provide a researched look into the future of the dairy industry, and the opportunities that lie ahead. He also will address how to position one's business to remain competitive.

The conference has been organized to update dairy farmers and other advisers of the critical changes that are taking place within the dairy industry. The move toward globalization has put United States agriculture in extremely strong positions. However, there remains significant problems for the dairy industry in the near future.

The move to make government less influential on the marketing side of the milk equation has and will continue to add some real challenges for producers. Cooperative extension invites producers and business owners who serve them to come to the center and listen to the nation's leading expert talk about meeting those challenges and thriving in the dairy business.

Kohl has a master's degree and a doctorate in agricultural economics from Cornell University. He is professor of agricultural finance and small business management and entrepreneurship in the Department of Agricultural and Applied Economics at VPI, Blacksburg, Va.

Kohl has traveled more than three million miles throughout his professional career, conducted more than 1,600 workshops for agricultural groups such as bankers, Farm Credit, FmHA, and regulators, as well as producers and agribusiness groups. He has published four books and more than 175 articles on financial and business related topics in journals, extension, and other popular publications. He has received 11 major teaching awards and four major extension and public service awards from VPI and Cornell University. Most recently Kohl was recipient of the prestigious American Agricultural Economics Association Outstanding Teaching Award for professionals with more than 10 years of service in 1995.

He is only one of five professors in the 78-year history of the Association to receive the award twice. He received the award for under 10 years of service in 1984, and received the Virginia Governor's Award for his distinguished service to Virginia agriculture, the youngest recipient of this award.

Dealership Draws Large Crowd

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — About 750 customers, including families and friends, gathered at John Deere Day 1998 as Landis Bros., Inc., continued a 60-year tradition of a customer appreciation day. Herb Noll, owner/manager, said the emphasis in on equipment and model sizes that fit the local area, and a motion picture gave a flashback to the 1970's as a nostalgic point of reference.

"We have been here in our new location at the Mt. Joy intersection of Route 283 for two years, and we feel local farmers have embraced the dealership as a point of reference," Noll said. "Of course, we still market ourselves as Lancaster and Lebanon because we cover these counties and beyond.

"We see many farmers who are committed to agriculture for the long haul, and we are very fortunate to have many of them as our customers. They feel John Deere corporately is committed to agriculture and it is easy to bond with the committed farmers.

"In general, we will see stress in farming as a high volume, low margin business at the production level. This makes it the same for us at the retail level. There is a lot of pressure on price, but if you pay attention to customer service, we find people are appreciative. For us, service is our people. They make our business because they take care of our customers.

We thank our customers for their business," Noll said. "And we ask them to get to know us better because we are here to serve them for a long time to come."

The John Deere Day program will be repeted next week at Landis Bros. dealership in Lebanon.

A large group of customers, families, and friends gather in the Landis Bros. dealership shop for the annual John Deere Day program.

Farm Show Scholarship Foundation Announces Recipients

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co) – The Pennsylvania Farm Show Scholarship Foundation on Thursday announced the selection of its fifth annual scholarship winners at the 1998 Farm Show junior livestock sale of champions

The scholarship committee awarded scholarships worth $2,000 each to 13 Pennsylvania youth who are pursuing a degree at a post-secondary institution

Agricultural Secretary Samuel E Hayes Jr assisted in the presentation of awards.

Criteria for selection includes scholarship; leadership in school, community, and 4-H or FFA, participation in the Farm Show, and financial need.

Money for scholarships comes from a fund established following the 1993 Farm Show sale of champion.

A non-profit foundation was established to administer contributions and distribute scholarship money At the conclusion of this year, the fund will have provided $83,000 to students.

The Farm Show Scholarship Foundation has established an Ambassador's Club, a non-profit, tax-exempt organization, intended to increase scholarship funds for more rural youth.

The following are this year's recipients of the Farm Show Scholarships

Thirteen youth each receive $2,000 Pennsylvania Farm Show scholarships, and stand with state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr., center. The scholarship funds are generated through the sale of livestock champions, donations from supporting businesses and individuals through the Scholarship Fund's Ambassadors Club, and through other fund-raising activities.

Scholarship Recipient Addresses Farm And Home Foundation

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A college scholarship shouldn't be looked at as an award for special achievement or something you did.

Instead, it should be used as a tool for preparing you for the future.

That's what Craig Kreider, a Farm and Home Foundation Scholarship recipient, told about 100 guests at the 34th annual Lancaster Farm and Home Foundation banquet at the Farm and Home Center Tuesday night.

Kreider, Solanco High School graduate in 1988, works for the Giant Supermarket chain in Carlisle. He received a bachelor's degree at the University of Delaware and a master's in ag economics at Cornell University.

At Giant, he is a frozen food buyer for 85 stores. He began work at Giant through its store manager training program in 1996 and has worked at its headquarters since January of last year.

Kreider told those at the banquet that it's important to look at education not as something simply to fill time, but as an investment to prepare yourself for the future.

Kreider served as Solanco FFA chapter and Lancaster County president, He was a member of the Quarryville Community Club 4-H for 10 years. Kreider worked on his family's dairy farm near the Buck.

He showed hogs at fair events and learned ag "the regular way," he noted, by growing up on the dairy and showing livestock.

Another scholarship recipient, Doug Metzler, Mount Joy, also spoke at the banquet. Metzler works in sales for Melhorn Sales Service and Trucking, Mount Joy.

At the banquet, Richard Haas presented the treasurer's report, which indicated a statement of activities over a nine- month period. Net assets at the end of period totaled $659,546.

Directors to serve a 3-year term were elected at the banquet. They are Ruth Akers, Quarryville; Luke F. Brubaker, Mount Joy; J. Leroy Esbenshade, Manheim; Guy R. Eshelman, Lancaster; Joyce Graybill, Mount Joy; Cheryl Hess, Marietta; and Raymond F. Witmer, Willow Street.

Conservation Conference Set

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — The Northumberland County Conservation District and Penn State Cooperative Extension will hold their 14th annual winter conference on Jan. 28 at the Otterbein United Methodist Church hall in Sunbury.

The conference begins at 10 a.m. but participants are invited to arrive at 9 a.m. for coffee and donuts, see exhibits, and talk to ag company representatives.

Topics for the session include "Weed Control for Corn, Soybeans, and Alfalfa; Insect Control for Corn" by Mike Fleming, American Cyanamid; "Farm Equipment Gone High Tech - How Does It Work?" presented by representatives of C.B. Hoober & Son, Inc.; "Techniques To Reduce Pesticide Drift" by Dave Messersmith of cooperative extension; and "Advantages of Voluntary Nutrient Management Plans - Is Cost Share Available?" by Norman Conrad of Penn State University.

Other topics to be discussed will be "Farm-A-Syst" by Dave Bailey of cooperative extension; "Crop Insurance Needs" by John Gartside, formerly with the USDA Federal Crop Ins. Corp.; a video on "Better Barnyard Management," by George Phillips, NCCD bay technician; and an update on the current "Farm Bill Programs" by Eugene Sweigard, Farm Services Agency.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has approved this meeting as an update training session for pesticide certification renewal. Private applicators will receive two credits, (one category and one core) toward certification renewal.

The registration fee of $6 includes a baked ham dinner, coffee, and donuts in the morning, and handout materials. To place your reservation and receive a ticket, call the conservation district office at (717) 988-4224.

Case Introduces Planters, Air Seeders

RACINE, Wis. – Case Corporation announces the next step in precision farming with Advanced Farming Systems (AFS) planters and air seeders.

Utilizing tractor-mounted touch-screen computers and differential global position system (DGPS) receivers, these new systems provide automatic "on-the-go" control of input rates to help farmers respond to variability in field conditions.

The new planters and air seeders combine advanced hydraulics, electronics, sensor technology, and software with the proven performance of Case IH Early Riser® Cyclo Air® planters and Case IH Concord Air Seeders. according to Kurt Schenek, marketing manager for planting and seeding equipment.

"These are high-production systems designed to place the seed in the optimum environment for uniform germination and emergence. When you add to that the ability to vary input rates across the field, it sets a new standard for precision planting and seeding operations," he said.

"Allowing farmers to develop prescription applications will help them use crop inputs more efficiently to optimize yield potential across the field," said Doug Rehor, program manager of Case IH AFT Tractor and Implement Systems.

"Thanks to the success of the AFS yield monitoring and mapping technology used with Case IH Axial-Flow combines,we have thousands of customers with yield maps showing clear evidence of variability in their fields," said Rehor. "With an AFS planter or air seeder, they'll have the opportunity to respond to that variability."

Unlike conventional planters and air seeders that use ground-driven meters, the new AFS systems use a series of hydraulic drives that are controlled by an in-cab computer and electronic control modules, all deployed on a sophisticated communications architecture. Seed, fertilizer, herbicides, and insecticides can each be applied at variable rates, and whole sections can be turned on or off separately.

Case IH Advanced Farming System (AFS) planters feature in-cab touch screen computers providing "on-the-go" control of crop inputs.

Farmers will be able to choose between two displays. The AFS display features an easy-to-use 5.5 inch diagonal monochrome touch-screen interface and allows the operator to control all functions by merely touching the desired input product and selecting a rate. It performs all monitoring functions as well as frame holding on planters.

Highly precise metering requires highly precise monitoring capabilities to verify that the intended rate is the actual rate being applied. New, "smart" seed sensors will provide industry-leading seed counting accuracy on AFS planters "If an operator sets his corn planting rate to 30,000 seeds per acre, the sensors will verify that the planter is planting at that rate," said Rehor.

The AFS planters will be offered initially on 12, 16, 24-row and 12/23 front-fold sizes as well at the 5500 Soybean Special. AFS air seeders will be available across the entire Concord line, including two compartment 1100, 2300, 2400, and 3400 models and the recently introduced three-compartment model 3503.

Under development is a variable seed variety option which will allow operators to choose between two different seed hybrids of varieties "on-the-go."

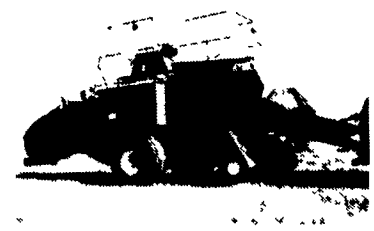
This technology will revolutionize planting," said Rehor. "With this option, growers will be able to plant seeds with the genetics best suited for each part of the field without having to stop and refill the planter box."

Hesston Introduces Big Bale System

ATLANTA, Ga – It's hard to improve upon the efficiency and productivity offered by the Hesston Model 4755 mid-size rectangular baler – particularly because it allows producers to package both dry bales and silage bales with a single high-capacity machine. But with the introduction of a new Model 4720 bale accumulator, improvement is possible.

Designed as an integral part of Hesston's mid-size bale system, the 4720 accumulator attaches directly to the 4755 and uses the same tractor hydraulic system as the baler to collect one to five bales and drop them anywhere in the field, right from the tractor seat. As a result, the operator saves loading time and field travel, and reduces compaction by eliminating extra trips over the field with trucks and loading equipment.

"The 4720 is also designed so that it can be used as either a three-bale accumulator or as a five-bale accumulator," said Ken Johnson, AGCO general marketing manager for Hesston products. "In the three-bale mode, the wings on the side cart are folded up and the screen on the cab-mounted control console is programmed to show the side carts as full when only one bale is shifted to each side. This allows the accumulator to be used in fields with narrow windrow spacing and to unload bales without placing them on an adjacent windrow."



Designed as an integral part of Hesston's mid-size bale system, the 4720 accumulator attaches directly to the 4755 baler and uses the same tractor hydraulic system as the baler to collect one to five bales and drop them anywhere in the field, right from the tractor seat.

In the five-bale mode, two bales can be placed on each side cart, while a fifth bale is placed on the center cart. In either mode, each side cart can be independently unloaded, or both carts can be unloaded at the same time. To unload all five (or all three, in the three-bale mode), the operator simply unloads both side carts, shifts the center bale to either side and unloads that side cart again.

"The 4720 accumulator comes standard with electrical bale unload, automatic bale shift bar control and cables to attach it to the existing baler control console for in-cab monitoring,: said Johnson. "Other standard features include a centralized lubrication system that allows the operator to grease 12 different points from one location and dual caster wheels with stabilizing brakes. The dual caster wheels not only allow the accumulator to make sharp turns in the field, but provide extra flotation for less oil compaction."

Bales can be shifted on the accumulator either automatically or manually, using controls on the baler control console. A bale-unloading control box, also mounted in the tractor cab, allow the operator to unload either or both side carts at will.

Round Baler Offers More With Less

ATLANTA, Ga. — With the introduction of a new 5 x 5 round baler, the Model 844, Hesston gives hay producers one of the widest selections of round balers in the industry. However, the 855 also offers something less.

Joining six existing round baler models, including the recently introduced Model 545 Silage Special, this Class III variable chamber model produces tightly packed dry bales that measure 61.5 inches wide by 30 to 60 inches in diameter and weight up to 1,610 pounds.

Unlike previous Hesston models, though, the 855 is missing a part that has caused round baler operators numerous headaches. There is no starter roll. It has been eliminated, along with all the problems related to crop buildup and wrapping that go with it.

"The operator can spend more time baling and less time trying to get a bale started for unwrapping crop material," said Ken Johnson, general marketing manager for Hesston products. "In place of a starter roller, the Model 855 uses a set of double rollers on the bottom of the tailgate to assist in bale starting and to provide a support surface for the bale itself."

Another Model 855 innovation is a removable, solid-pan windguard that keeps hay flowing smoothly over the pickup and into the bale chamber; yet permits quick and easy access to the pickup area. Gauge wheels on each end of the 75.3-inch, low-profile pickup assembly also give the unit ground-hugging capabilities to gather in all the crop. Pickup adjustments is accomplished with a simple crank handle, while chain drive and slip clutch protection further add to the convenience.

There are plenty of other performance and convenience features on the Model 855, too. Hydraulically controlled belt tension and bale density make adjustment quick and easy while producing more uniform and dense bales. And when the baler is not in use, the control knob can be used to relieve belt tension for longer belt life. In addition, an oversize bale protection system that automatically de-clutches the pickup when the bale chamber is overfilled is standard.

A total of eight Chevron-design belts, measuring nearly seven iches in width, enclose 90 percent of the bale to reduce leaf loss and increase feed value. When it's time to wrap the bale, dual, hydraulically controlled twine arms make quick work of the process. A large capacity twine box that holds up to eight balls of twine means fewer stops, too.

"An operator-friendly monitor also keeps the operator in constant control of the machine," said Johnson. "In addition to a light to indicate when the tailgate is closed, the monitor includes driving lights to indicate which side of the chamber needs filled, and both a light and an audible alarm to tell the operator when the bale chamber is full. An ejector switch also allows the operator to turn off the optional bale ejector in hill conditions."

Requiring a minimum of 65 horsepower, dual remote hydraulics and 540 or 1,000 rpm PTO, the Model 855 is designed to fit a wide range of operations and is simple enough for even the beginning operator.

Drilling Systems Flex With Crops, Conditions

ATLANTA, Ga. – Tye drill systems have earned their place in countless fields over the past 33 years and nearly countless crops. Tye drills were first developed to meet the needs of no-till farming and pasture renovation.

Today, Tye drills, with their extra heavy duty frames (still the strongest in the industry) and rugged components, can handle any field condition from conventional tillage to minimum- and no-till.

"No matter what the crop or soil condition, if it can be drilled, there is a Tye seeding system that can do it, and there is probably a Tye owner who has done it," said Andy Anderson, Tye marketing manager. "It is our Tye owners who are the driving force behind many of the innovations and enhancements we have made over the years. They demand the best and challenge us to provide it."

New solid seeding drills such as the new 2000 No-Till Systems fit a wide variety of crops from soybeans, dry beans and legumes to wheat, other small grains, and grasses.

Tye also makes specialty drills for soybeans and rice and intensive cereal management (ICM) programs. Multirow grain drills are marketed for milo, sorghum, cotton, soybeans, and wheat. Grass drills, which Tye has been making since 1978, were developed to handle light, trashy grass seed as well as small grains and legumes.

Crop flexibility is matched only by tillage flexibility. Tye drills come in a variety of shapes and sizes from mounted to pull type and folding designs. Drill widths vary from 5 to 30 feet with nearly all standard sizes in between represented.

Mycogen Seeds Introduces New Products

ST. PAUL, Minn. – Farmers searching for seed that packages consistently high yields with strong defensive characteristics will want to look to Mycogen Seeds' 33 new hybrids and varieties for the 1998 growing season. The new lineup includes 12 corn hybrids, three silage corn hybrids, eight soybeans varieties, seven sunflower hybrids, and one alfalfa variety.

"In terms of yield potential and agronomic performance, this is our most exciting lineup to date," explained Tim Kroenke, Mycogen Seeds product management director. "Biotechnology, a strong conventional breeding program, and extensive precommercial product testing are allowing Mycogen to bring farmers the seed products they need when they need them."

Half of the new grain corn hybrids and one silage hybrid contain the NatureGard® NGBt1 gene for yield protection against first and second generation European corn borer (ECB). Mycogen is also offering a new corn hybrid with both the Bt gene and IMI herbicide tolerance.

Soybean growers will also have three new Roundup Ready soybean varieties available from Mycogen for 1998. Mycogen will market the new soybeans under the Atlas brand name. The new Atlas brand Roundup Ready soybeans are a result of a licensing agreement between Mycogen and the Stine Seed Company.

Berks Sets Computer Workshop

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Crop plan costs, field specific nutrient requirements, and yield documentation are just some of the features of the Crop Information Management System (CIMS) software that will be demonstrated at a computer workshop on Feb. 26 from 10 a.m. to noon, according to Mena Hautau, extension agent, Penn State Cooperative Extension-Berks County.

"The advantage of this piece of software is its ability to record many pieces of information for each growing season on a farm with many fields," said Hautau.

Jan Pruss, Department of Agronomy, Penn State, will conduct the hands-on workshop at the Penn State Berks-Lehigh Valley College campus, Reading. Participants will operate a computer and Jan will lead participants through the CIMS software. Participants should be familiar with the Windows 95 operating system.

Registration fee is $5 per person, or $7 for two people attending from one farm business. Registration deadline is Feb. 23. For more information, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension, PO Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533-0520, (610) 378-1327.

ment and employees who contribute to the well being of the cooperative.

DuWayne Kutz, president and CEO, reported that the cooperative is operating in a very mature market, with declining domestic demand, but Sire Power's reliability as a leader in proven sires again provided growth and profitability.

"We're extremely pleased and proud that our "50 Daughters in 50 Herds" program has created not only increased sales and satisfied customers, but a positive direction in breeding programs that will ultimately give the producers a superior product," Kutz said. "With the globalization of the A.I. industry, there are many changes on-going and many improvements still to be achieved to fairly evaluate sires proven in different genetic populations, and under different structural guidelines.

"As we move forward into the next century, a more cohesive effort in milk marketing is imperative. A fair milk price not only affects dairy farmers, but also the support segment of the industry that supply the dairy farmers' needs. The challenge is there to improve the milk price formula, and the well-being of the industry. It's necessary for a sound dairy agriculture future."

One of the annual highlights of the meeting is the naming of the scholarship winners. This year, April Hall from Church Hill, Maryland, received the Lew Campbell award to continue her studies in animal science at the University of Maryland. April has many local through national awards in dairy judging and dairy bowl contests. At the University of Maryland she is an Ag Student Ambassador and on the Ag Student Council. She is a Alpha Zeta member in 1996 and 1997. Her parents are James and Lynda Hall.

Other recipients include:

David Harvatine, son of Carl and Nancy Harvatine, Thompson, who is a sophmore in animal science and dairy management major at Cornell University.

Liza Hass, daughter of Gary and Lucinda Hass, Millerstown, is a junior in dairy and animal science at Penn State.

Janice Youse, daughter of Paul and Linda Youse, Oley, is a sophomore in food science and ag business at Penn State.

Brian Schnebly, son of William and Susan Schnebly, Clear Spring, Maryland, is a junior in animal science at the University of Maryland.

Kelly Myers, daughter of Jason and Donna Myers, New Windsor, Maryland, is a sophomore in dairy science at Virginia Tech.

Heather Oberholtzer, daughter of Clair and Laurene Oberholtzer, Elizabethtown, is a sophmore in dairy and animal science at Penn State.

Colleen Kretzing, daughter of Perry and Adelaide Kretzing, Loysville, is a senior in dairy and animal science at Penn State.

Emily Bryant, daughter of William and Debra Bryant, Honesdale, is a sophomore in food science at Penn State.

Angela Werley, daughter of Phillip and Donna Werley, Hamburg, is a junior in dairy and animal science at Penn State.

Kathryn Jarrett, daughter of Michoel and Nancy Jarrett, Montgomery, is a junior in animal science at Cornell University.

Heidi Harpster, daughter of Wayne and Morjorie Harpster, Spruce Creek, is a junior in ag business at Penn State.

Jessica Cochran, daughter of Joseph and Brenda Cochran, Westfield, is a junior in dairy science/pre vet at Del Val.

The Campbell Memorial Scholarship is $2,000, and the other scholarships are for $500.

Bucks County, is a 1997 graduate of Pennridge High School. She is currently majoring in biology at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, Tennessee.

She has shown market swine and goats for two years at Farm Show, and Jersey dairy cattle for six years. She was a member of the Montgomery County 4-H Livestock Club for five years, and was an active member of the Montgomery County 4-H Dairy Goat Club serving as the vice-president and newsletter editor.

She also was the 1996-1997 youth delegate for the Montgomery County 4-H Cabinet.

While attending college, she participates in the University of Tennessee Dairy Club, Block and Bridle Club and is involved in Collegiate 4-H.

Michalik plans to use her education toward being an elementary education teacher. She hopes to remain involved in 4-H by giving educational speeches about agriculture, dairy goats, livestock, and to become a dairy goat and livestock roundup judge.

Beth A. Nebzydoski

Beth A. Nebzydoski, 19, is the daughter of Henry and Jean Nebzyodski, Pleasant Mount, Wayne County. She is a 1995 graduate of Forest City Regional High School.

As a biology major at the University of Scranton, she hopes to eventually become a veterinarian.

She is a 10-year member of the Pleasant Mount Go-Getters 4-H Club and has completed various projects in market swine and beef, dairy cows and heifers, and veterinary science.

For the past seven years, she has shown market swine at the Farm Show.

Having served as the president and secretary of the 4-H club, she also was the Wayne County dairy maid. During her year as dairy maid, she participated in dairy promotions.

"I strongly believe that my 4-H projects have helped me discover my interests and lead me to my career choice. In my desire to learn more and to be in a position to improve the genetics and health of the animals," Nebzydoski said.

Curtis R. Stockdale

Curtis R. Stockdale, 20, is the son of Dennis and JoEllen Stockdale, Dayton, Armstrong County. He is a 1996 graduate of Dayton High School and is currently majoring in agriculture at the Kansas State University.

Having shown at the Farm Show for nine years, he has been awarded reserve champion steer in 1992 and 1996 and grand champion in 1995. As a true veteran of the event, he has won either grand champion or reserve champion for steer at the Dayton Fair since the age of eight.

He is currently the vice-president of the Junior Polled Hereford Council. He is also a brother of the Alpha Gamma Rho, an agricultural fraternity.

Stockdale said, "I believe that education is very important and serves as a powerful tool in life Equipped with my 4-H experiences, and a college education, I plan to make a positive contribution to the livestock industry and to our society.

"The cattle business is ever-changing with strong competition from other industries for market shares. Therefore, I hope to have a part in breeding cattle and developing programs that will provide the consumer with what they ultimately want, a convenient, consistent, and high quality product."

Farm Safety 4 Just Kids

Prior to the establishment of Farm Safety 4 Just Kids, a study by the Harborview Injury Prevention and Research Center estimated that 300 children and adolescents were dying each year from farm injuries, and that another 23,500 were suffering nonfatal trauma An update of that study now indicates that the farm fatality rate for children and adolescents has declined by 39 percent

With the help of Cargill Hybrid Seeds and other corporate sponsors, Farm Safety 4 Just Kids is celebrating its 10th year of advocating the prevention of farm-related childhood injuries, health risks and fatalities Through educational programs and a large network of grassroots volunteers this nonprofit organization is leading the way to a safer future for the children of today's farming communities.

LEAVE IT TO A SEED COMPANY TO FIGURE OUT A WAY TO MAKE YOUR MILK PRODUCTION GROW.

A year ago, we introduced FullTime™ forage. A remarkable new feedstuff that can dramatically boost a herd's milk production. Now, a year later, university trials show that feeding FullTime to top producers on a high-fiber diet can increase their already high production levels by as much as 10%. So, if you're feeding a high-fiber ration, consider FullTime. Nothing can match its digestibility, forage quality or increased milk production. No wonder we say it's the biggest thing to hit dairy since automation. To learn more about FullTime or any of our other forage quality products, see your nearest Cargill dealer or visit our Web site, www.cargill.com/seed.

ALL PREGNANT IN PREGNANCY CHECK.
FORMULA-M MAKES THE DIFFERENCE.

When I first started testing Formula-M for dairy cows (about 1994) I bought some cows that the Dairymen had been trying to get pregnant for over a year. I gave samples of Formula-M to Dairymen who had cows they had been trying to get pregnant for 1 to 2 years. One cow that I bought was a VG 89 with EXC. Mammary, eight years old with milk records of 29,000; 31,000 and 32,000. At eight years old she was still classified VG with EXC Mammary. I bet the Dairyman was very sorry to lose that one. I fed Formula-M and bred A.I. and she got pregnant. (I sold her to a local Dairyman and she had a bull calf. The Dairyman kept the calf for a herd sire). Another one that we tested on was a Holstein, Jersey cross with a 29,000 m record. She was Jersey color and I believe 3/4 Jersey. I remember that she was the best cow that Dairyman had ever had. We fed those cows Formula-M and they got pregnant. Also, that Dairyman had two mares he had been trying to get pregnant for a couple of years and they both got pregnant after feeding Formula-M. I picked the toughest cases I could find for testing (about 20 cows in all). All but one got pregnant. (One cow had a broken leg and the Dairyman sold her. She may have been pregnant also). After that, I started selling some Formula-M to some of the local Dairymen and have been getting reports back for a couple of years now. One Dairyman said "I had a pregnancy check on nine cows and all nine were pregnant". Another checked eleven and all were pregnant; another checked twenty-three and all were pregnant. Another Dairyman had fourteen cows pregnancy checked and all were pregnant. That is about the way it has been going ever since.

Feed Formula-M to all your cows every day and soon you will be reporting that all your cows were pregnant when you had a pregnancy check. With Formula-M your cows will also have better appetites, & higher energy level. They will digest their feed better, have higher milk production and lower somatic cell count.

Formula-M is in powder form and comes in a five gallon bucket which cost only $92.00 (8¢ per day, per cow) and will last about one month for 40 cows.

Put Formula-M in the grain mix; or TMR; or top dress it.

You can have Formula-M tomorrow if you call now. You will start noticing the difference within a week. Made by the same people that make VITAMIX.

Formula M, it's what causes babies.

SAVORY PIES

New ways to serve family favorites

Tex-Mex meals. Pizza of all varieties. And burgers with cheese and all the trimmings. These are the tastes that today's family loves. Now, take the ingredients of these all-American favorites and bake them in a pie.

Featured here are four delicious main dish pies for home-cooked meals that bring the whole family together. And with convenient refrigerated pie crusts, there's no rolling and no mess. So, it's fun and easy to prepare a classic dinner with a new twist.

For a Southwestern-style savory pie, try Tex-Mex Quesadilla. It has the character of the popular Mexican dish, but in a dressed-up version large enough to feed the entire family. And you don't even need a pie pan; it bakes on a cookie sheet. Tender, flaky pie crust surrounds a zesty meat filling. When you're ready to serve this quesadilla, let the kids help you add the Tex-Mex toppers—lettuce, green onions, black olives, shredded cheese and sour cream.

Are cheese-topped burgers a favorite? Turn these favorite flavors into a pie and gather the family around the table. Your kids will agree Cheesy Burger Pie is far better than burgers in the car. Simply add a salad and dinner is ready.

If your family loves the stuffed pizzas of trendy restaurants, offer them Spinach Pizza Pie. This pie version combines a savory spinach mixture with mozzarella and Parmesan cheese plus fresh tomatoes. The tender pie crust teamed with the cheesy-rich filling is as good as any at a pizzeria.

Of course, the classic among savory pies is pot pie Classic Pot Pie is the ultimate in home-cooked comfort food. And this pot pie is simple to make with refrigerated pie crusts and a filling that uses leftover chicken or turkey and vegetables.

These savory pies—with their twists on the tried-and-true—can help you break out of old mealtime habits. Each offers a special look and taste that adds fun to a family meal.

Look, Mom, all hands!

Your family will be reaching for the great tastes of hand-held pie. For a weekend lunch or a light supper, these individual pockets really hit the spot. And with refrigerated pie crusts, they're a snap to prepare.

Imagine all the makings of tacos in a pastry pocket, and you've got Taco Wraps. Ham and Cheese Triangles capture the ingredients of a favorite sandwich inside flaky crust.

So, go ahead, eat them with your hands!

Taco Wraps

1 (15-oz.) pkg. refrigerated pie crusts

FILLING

- 3/4 lb. lean ground beef
- 1 (1 1/4-oz.) pkg. taco seasoning mix
- 1/3 cup water
- 1/2 cup chopped seeded tomatoes
- 1/4 cup salsa
- 4 oz. (1 cup) shredded Cheddar cheese

Heat oven to 450°F. Place pie crusts on cutting board. Cut each crust into quarters, making 8 wedges total.

In large skillet, brown ground beef; drain. Stir in all remaining ingredients.

Place about 1/3 cup beef mixture on half of each crust wedge. Fold unfilled side of wedges over filling. Seal long sides of wedges with fork. Fold back short edge of wedges to form opening on top. Place on ungreased cookie sheet.

Bake at 450°F. for 15 to 20 minutes or until crust is golden brown. If desired, serve with shredded lettuce, sour cream and additional salsa.

8 servings

Ham and Cheese Triangles

1 (15-oz.) pkg. refrigerated pie crusts

FILLING

- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish, if desired
- 1 cup cubed cooked ham
- 4 oz. (1 cup) cubed Cheddar cheese

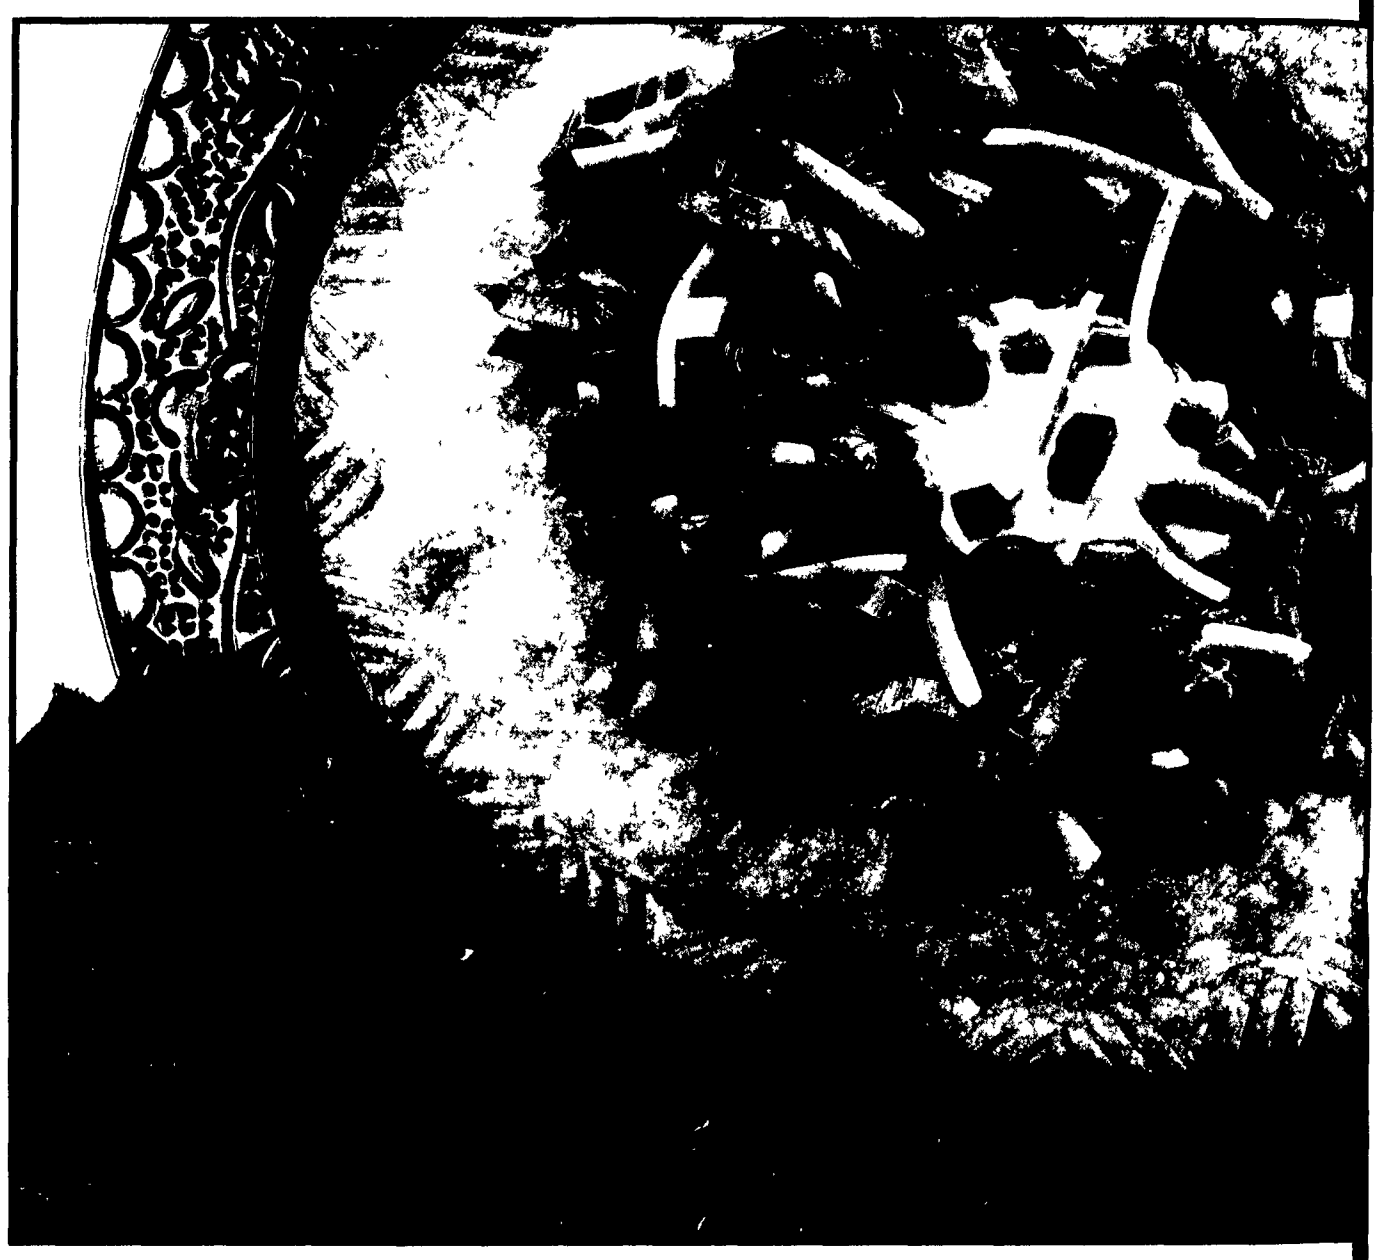
Heat oven to 450°F. Place pie crusts on cutting board. Cut each crust into quarters, making 8 wedges total.

In medium bowl, combine mayonnaise, mustard and horseradish; mix well. Stir in ham and cheese.

Place about 1/4 cup ham mixture on half of each crust wedge. Fold unfilled side of wedges over filling. Seal edges with fork. Place on ungreased cookie sheet.

Bake at 450°F. for 15 to 20 minutes or until crust is golden brown.

8 servings



Tex-Mex Quesadilla is a taste-tempting new way to serve the popular Mexican dish

Tex-Mex Quesadilla

1 (15-oz.) pkg refrigerated pie crusts

FILLING

- 1 lb lean ground beef
- 1 cup salsa
- 1/4 cup sliced ripe olives
- 1 (4.5-oz.) can chopped green chiles, drained
- 4 oz. (1 cup) shredded Cheddar cheese

Heat oven to 425°F. In large skillet, brown ground beef, drain. Stir in salsa, olives and chiles.

Place 1 pie crust on ungreased cookie sheet. Spoon beef mixture evenly onto crust to within 3/4 inch of edge. Sprinkle evenly with cheese. Top with second crust, seal edges with fork. Cut slits in several places.

Bake at 425°F for 17 to 27 minutes or until crust is golden brown. If desired, serve topped with shredded lettuce, chopped tomatoes, sliced green onions, sour cream, additional sliced ripe olives or salsa.

8 servings

Spinach Pizza Pie

1 (15-oz.) pkg refrigerated pie crusts

FILLING

- 3 tablespoons margarine or butter
- 3/4 cup chopped green bell pepper
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 (1-lb.) pkg frozen cut leaf spinach, thawed, squeezed to drain well
- 3/4 to 1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash crushed red pepper flakes
- 6 oz. (1 1/2 cups) shredded mozzarella cheese
- 5 Italian plum tomatoes or 1 cup chopped seeded tomatoes
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Heat oven to 400°F. Prepare pie crust as directed on package for two-crust pie using 9 inch pie pan.

Melt margarine in large skillet. Add bell pepper, onion and garlic; cook and stir until vegetables are tender. Add spinach, Italian seasoning, salt and red pepper flakes, mix well. Cook until thoroughly heated.

Spoon half of spinach mixture evenly into crust-lined pan. Top evenly with half each of the mozzarella cheese, tomatoes and Parmesan cheese. Repeat layering with remaining spinach mixture, mozzarella cheese and tomatoes. Top with second crust; seal edges and flute. Cut slits in several places. Sprinkle top crust with remaining 1/4 cup Parmesan cheese.

Bake at 400°F for 35 to 40 minutes or until crust is golden brown.

Cheesy Burger Pie

1 (15-oz.) pkg refrigerated pie crusts

FILLING

- 1 lb lean ground beef
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 4 oz. (1 cup) cubed pasteurized process cheese spread
- 1/2 cup ketchup
- 4 oz. (1 cup) shredded Cheddar cheese

Heat oven to 400°F. Prepare pie crust as directed on package for two-crust pie using 9-inch pie pan.

In large skillet, brown ground beef and onion; drain. Stir in mustard, salt, garlic powder and pepper.

Spoon half of beef mixture evenly into crust-lined pan. Top with half of the cheese cubes. Spoon remaining beef mixture over cheese. Top with remaining cheese cubes. Drizzle evenly with ketchup. Sprinkle with Cheddar cheese. Top with second crust; seal edges and flute. Cut slits in several places.

Bake at 400°F for 30 to 40 minutes or until crust is golden brown.

Classic Pot Pie

1 (15-oz.) pkg. refrigerated pie crusts

FILLING

- 1/3 cup margarine or butter
- 1/3 cup chopped onion
- 1/3 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 2/3 cup milk
- 2 1/2 to 3 cups shredded cooked chicken or turkey
- 2 cups frozen mixed vegetables, thawed

Heat oven to 425°F. Prepare pie crust as directed on package for two-crust pie using 9-inch pie pan.

In medium saucepan, melt margarine over medium heat. Add onion, cook 2 minutes or until tender. Stir in flour, salt and pepper until well blended. Gradually stir in broth and milk, cook, stirring constantly, until bubbly and thickened.

Add chicken and mixed vegetables, remove from heat. Spoon chicken mixture into crust-lined pan. Top with second crust and flute. Cut slits in several places.

Bake at 425°F for 30 to 40 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

TV OR NOT TV?

During the winter months when children are mostly likely to be found indoors, many may be found in front of the television screen during a large portion of the day. We know that children in the U.S. view an average of 3-5 hours of television daily, and that television viewing time increases from the preschool years through the early teens. We also know a lot about the negative effects that television violence and uncensored viewing can have on children. Many parents, myself included, may find themselves asking all-important question "TV or not TV"?

With it's unlimited potential for both education and entertainment, if would be wrong to conclude that all television viewing is harmful to children. In fact, television programming that is designed with the child in mind can provide many delightful ways to gain new and different information. I am reminded of this every morning as my 1 and 3-year-old delight in watching and learning with Big Bird and Elmo, followed by their favorite purple dinosaur "Barney." I'm quite sure our mornings would not be the same without these familiar friends!

The key is to establish a healthy pattern of television viewing in your home that meets the needs of all family members, and that fits the values and ideals that you hope to instill in the lives of young children. Here are some suggestions to help you along the way.

•Decide on a maximum time length for television viewing for each family member. This is best done by involving the entire family in the decision. When children help to set the length of their daily television viewing, they will be more likely to cooperate with parents. Remember that when children spend 3-5 hours a day watching television, their time for other productive activities like reading and talking with others is severely limited. Limiting television viewing to one to two hours a day may be a more realistic and satisfying goal for all family members.

•Encourage all family members to avoid random viewing that is just turning on the television to see what might be on or "channel surfing".

Admittedly, I am guilty of the subconscious act of turning on the television at various times when I am not even watching. For many of us, it's almost as if the background noise of the television provides a source of familiar comfort during routine daily activities. Family members should plan their television viewing just as they do other activities. This promotes the idea that television viewing is a privilege and a choice, not just a habit to be taken for granted. When programs are over, parents can turn the television off so that it doesn't lure children into watching other unplanned programs.

•View selected television programs together and discuss the content of the program. If the program supports the family's values and ideals, it provides a wonderful opportunity to reinforce what is most important to family members. Likewise, programs with objectionable topics can also be used as a forum for discussion among family members. The key is for parents to monitor content and help children process new material in a way that is comfortable for all.

•Choose themes and story lines that match children's developmental level. Now, more than ever, we have a wide range of diverse programs and channels to meet the needs of our equally diverse population. We know all too well that many movies, daytime soaps, talk shows and popular nighttime sitcoms contain excessive adult content that is not intended for young children. Parents should stay informed about available programs and encourage those that offer educational as well as entertainment value for their child.

•Finally, researchers who have studied children's television viewing habits do not recommend no television, rather to balance television viewing with other family activities. Just as we need a variety of foods in our diet, so too can children benefit from a variety of social and educational experiences. Games, walks, sports, hobbies, reading, activities with friends, cooking activities, and family conservations are alternative activities, they may be surprised to discover many of their hidden family strengths!

Brush Up Marketing Skills

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — Nancy Roberts Depoe, Penn State Cooperative Extension agent in Union County, said, "After the exceptionally warm weather we experienced in Central Pennsylvania recently, the ground ready for plowing (well, almost) — my thoughts naturally turned to the summer ahead and the season for farm produce stands.

"Okay, so I may be rushing the seasons a bit, but good planning takes time and now is a good time to do it, particularly since there are a number of conferences and marketing seminars taking place within the next six weeks. These conferences and seminars are an excellent way to pick up some tips that might improve your business or peak your interest in starting one."

Here is a list of conferences and seminars you might want to put on your calendar. On Tuesday, January 27, "Marketing is the Key to Success" part of the 1998 Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference to be held in Hershey, for information contact: PA Vegetable Growers Association at (717) 694-3596. The Pennsylvania/Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference and Trade Show, will be held in Lancaster, February 17-20, for registration information contact Larry Yager, Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 334-6272. And a one-day seminar available on Saturday, February 28, in Bartonsville, entitled "Food for Thought for Food Producers" the 2nd Northeast Regional Produce Marketing Seminar; for additional information contact Nancy DePoe, Penn State Cooperative Extension (717) 524-8721.

Each conference is unique; however, there are some general topics in common such as developing your market, what's new for the 21st century, developing attractive displays, and a sharing of marketing success stories.

If you would like information on produce marketing but cannot attend any of these sessions you might want to get on the mailing list for the Direct Farm Marketing Newsletter. You can receive the Direct Farm Marketing Newsletter by contacting Tom Murphy, Penn State Cooperative Extension Lycoming County Office at (717) 327-2350.

Farming And Auctioneering Bid Dual Roles

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Growing up John Hess always envisioned himself as a farmer—like his dad, his grandfather, his great grandfather, and countless ancestors before him.

In addition to helping his dad on their hog and grain farm, John steered his studies to give him a solid agricultural background. He was a member of the county livestock judging team, both a state and a county FFA officer, and the state FFA public speaking champion.

Destiny seemed to shine on his plans to farm. He fell in love and married Jacy Clugston, who, although not from farm background, milked cows for a neighboring farmer for years, was a county dairy princess, a national 4-H ambassador, and secretary for the state FFA. She shared his dream for farming. And, when John's dad offered to help them buy a farm within a five minute drive of the home farm, they were estactic.

"My dad said that he'd either help buy the farm or pay for my college education. I chose the farm," John said.

The couple married and fixed up the two-family farmhouse. They chose to live in the smaller part and rent out the larger side.

Farming, from the Hess perspective, was always supplemented with a sideline business. John's dad fixed tractors on the side. He encouraged his son to find something to do to pay for the land taxes.

"In fact, my dad encouraged me to use my public speaking skills by becoming an auctioneer," John said.

It seemed a natural progression to John to balance farming and auctioneering. After attending auctioneering school, he was required by law to work as an auctioneering apprendice for two years before he could venture out on his own.

He began working for Wolgemuth's. In particular, his responsibilities centered on the Green Dragon auction held every Friday held approximately from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., depending on the amount to be sold.

At first, the setup seemed ideal. But auctioneering demanded more and more time. John's dad found himself more and more responsible for the 400 acres they farmed together. Another unexpected thing happened. In John's words: "I didn't realize how much I'd enjoy another occupation. I had never considered another career before. I didn't intend to make auctioneering my career. I thought it would just be a sideline that could help me afford to farm."

Not that John's planning to give up farming completely. But the roles have switched. Instead of auctioneering supplementing farming income, farming is now a sideline.

The couple intends to continue to live on the farm. They love the wide open space that surrounds the farm. They enjoy the diversion of growing six acres of tobacco, and John likes to hop on a tractor to help his dad with the field work whenever he can.

"Farming is a great way of life. If we have children, I'd want to raise them on the farm the way I was raised," John said.

"Farming is in my blood. I'd be perfectly happy being in farming, but the taxes, the expense from government regulations are overwhelming," he said.

"We were forced into the Clean and Green Act. I say, make farming profitable for farmers and they'll want to protect the land."

John enjoys the family togetherness that tobacco stripping promotes. He said, "My grandpa, father, mom, sister, Jacy, and I were all working together in the barn. It's sort of like a family-type business."

"Auctioneering is challenging, just like farming, every day is different," John said. Some days he sells farm toys or equipment. The next he may sell building supplies or hold a household sale.

Another similar aspect between farming and auctioneering is the long hours. The couple have taken only one mini-vacation since their marriage because Fridays and Saturdays are always big auction days.

After John and Jacy Hess purchased a farm on the halves with his dad, John started auctioneering to pay for the exorbitant farm taxes. "You can't be an auctioneer and not be a pack rat," said John, who has a perchant for rustic things, toy tractors, and ice cream paraphernalia. His wife Jacy prefers Victorian accent pieces. The Dalmatian dog, nicknamed Tucker the Holstein Cow, reminds Jacy of the cows she had milked for years.

An aspect that isn't similar is the people contact in auctioneering. "Auctions are sociable affairs. It's a place where people meet and talk. That's what I love. I can't do that on a tractor plowing 100 acres," John said.

Holding household auctions offers a special excitement for him because one never knows what might be in the next lot to sell.

Estate sales often hold hidden treasures. John said that he cannot emphasize enough the importance of not throwing away items that family members believe are of no value. More than once, he has pulled memorabilia from the trash that later brought hundreds of dollars over the auction block.

"You can't be an auctioneer and not collect something," John said. He likes to collect rustic things, tobacco spears, cigars, toys, ice cream scoops, and ice cream freezers.

The interest in ice cream paraphelia actually stems from his teen-age years when he participated in ice cream churn off contests and won the state competition at the Farm Show.

If he accumulates too much stuff himself, he simply loads it up and

Farming And Auctioneering Bid Dual Roles

sells it at the next auction. Even so, John said of his attachment to a growing assortment of things, "You can't be an auctioneer and not be a pack rat."

It's been five years since John started auctioneering for Wolgemuths, who have offered him the auction part of Green Dragon.

Since their marriage, Jacy was graduated from Millersville University and teaches fifth graders. She is also working on her master's in education at Penn State Harrisburg campus two nights a week.

"I'm not milking cows anymore but agriculture is still a big part of my life," Jacy said. "In the classroom, I bring a lot into teaching from my agricultural background. I always emphasize how agriculture affects the country. I try to incorporate it into whatever I'm teaching."

Another of Jacy's agricultural-related endeavors is her employment as a summer instructor in agricultural and environmental education by Milton Hershey School.

Jacy was influenced to become a teacher while serving as a dairy princess. "When I went into the schools and saw how kids responded, I wanted to become a teacher," she said.

Since Jacy no longer has Holstein cows to milk, she jokes that she has settled for Tucker, a Dalmation dog whose spots remind her of Holsteins.

At an antique toy sale held recently at Green Dragon, John Hess auctions off a 600 John Deere pedal tractor, which sold for $975.

Jacy, a previous county dairy princess and a state FFA officer, is a spokesperson for agriculture in another respect. She is an elementary school teacher who infiltrates the agriculture perspective into many subjects. She is also a summer instructor in agriculture and environmental education for Milton Hershey School. John said that farming and auctioneering are similar because every day is different and challenging.

Savory Pizza Pies

Used to be when people said pizza, immediately one envisioned a flat round crust topped with red tomato sauce and shredded cheese. No longer.

Pizza can be topped with everything and anything. From hearty burger and spinach toppings to cookie dough with a fruit topping.

No question about pizza's universal appeal. As a snack, as an appetizer, as an entree, or even leftover and cold, it is thoroughly enhjoyed by one and all.

WHOLE WHEAT PIZZA CRUST

1½ tablespoons dry yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
Pinch sugar

Mix in a bowl and let stand until dissolved and foamy, about 5 to 10 minutes. Add:

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon salt
1¼ cup all-purpose flour
1 cup whole wheat flour

Stir until dough forms a mass. Knead 8 minutes and work more whole wheat flour in as you knead (may use up to 1 cup). Let set until doubled in size, about 40 minutes.

Shape into pizza pan or on pizza baking stone. Fill as desired. Bake at 400 degrees about 18-20 minutes.

GARLIC PIZZA

1 white crust, round or oblong
Brush with ½ cup butter, melted
1½ teaspoon garlic powder

Sprinkle top with a half pound shredded mozarella cheese, muenster cheese or a mixture. Bake 375 degrees for 18-22 minutes.

DEEP DISH PIZZA

2 refrigerator rolls of buttermilk biscuits
16-ounce jar pizza sauce
1 pound ground beef, browned
1½ cups shredded mozzarella cheese
Parmesan cheese

Press bicuits in bottom of 13x9-inch pan. Top with pizza sauce, ground beef, and mozzarella cheese. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes.

SPINACH PIZZA PIE

Filling:

3 tablespoons butter
¾ cup chopped green bell pepper
½ cup chopped onion
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 pound frozen cut leaf spinach, thawed, squeezed to drain well
¾ -1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning
½ teaspoon salt
Dash crushed red pepper flakes
1½ cups shredded mozzarella cheese
5 plum tomatoes
½ cup grated parmesan cheese

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Prepare pie crust as directed on package for two-crust pie using 9-inch pan.

Melt butter in large skillet. Add bell pepper, onion, and garlic; cook and stir until vegetables are tender. Add spinach, Italian seasoning, salt, and red pepper flakes; mix well. Cook until thoroughly heated.

Spoon half of spinach mixture evenly into crust-lined pan. Top evenly with half each of the mozzarella cheese, tomatoes, and parmesan cheese. Repeat layering with remaining spinach mixture, mozzarella cheese, and tomatoes. Top with second crust; seal edges and flute. Cut slits in several places. Sprinkle top crust with remaining ¼ cup parmesan cheese.

Bake at 400 degrees for 35-40 minutes or until crust is golden brown. 8 servings.

CANADIAN BACON AND PINEAPPLE PIZZAS

6 English muffins, split
½ cup cream cheese with pineapple
6 slices sandwich-style Canadian bacon, coarely chopped
¼ cup sliced green onions
8-ounce can unsweetened pineapple tidbits, drained
1½ cups shredded nonfat pizza cheese (blend of nonfat mozzarella and nonfat cheddar cheeses)

Toast muffin halves. Spread cream cheese over each muffin half. Divide Canadian bacon, green onions, and pineapple tidbits evenly among muffin halves; sprinkle each with pizza cheese. Bake at 425 degrees for 8 minutes or until pizza cheese melts.

CARAMELIZED ONION AND OLIVE PIZZA

2 tablespoons olive oil
1½ pounds onions, thinly sliced
2 teaspoons fresh rosemary
1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
1 cup ripe olives, sliced
12-inch prebaked thick pizza crust
2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese

Add onions and rosemary to hot oil in non stick frying pan. Cook, stirring frequently, until onions begin to brown and browned bits begin to stick to pan bottom, about 15 minutes. Stir in ¼ cup water; scrape any browned bits free. Reduce heat to medium -low and continue to cook, stirring occasionally, until onions are golden and sweet tasting, 15-30 minutes longer; add water, 1 tablespoon at a time, if pan appears dry. Remove pan from heat and stir in vinegar, scraping any browned bits from the bottom. Gently stir in in olives. Place crust, cup side up on pizza pan or baking sheet. Spoon onion mixture into center of crust and spread to fill hollow. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake in 450 degree oven until cheese is melted and tinged with brown, about 15 minutes. Serve warm, cut into wedges. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

COUNTRY PIZZA

1 pound loaf frozen white bread dough
⅓ cup yellow corn meal
8-ounces shite, crimini or shitake mushrooms
¾ cup dried tomato halves
1 tablespoon olive or vegetable oil
8-ounces fully cooked, smoked turkey kielbasa-style sausage, thinly sliced
⅓ cup chopped fresh oregano leaves
2 cups grated mixed pizza cheeses (mozzarella and cheddar) or monterey jack cheese

Thaw bread dough. Heat oven to 450 degrees. Sprinkle corn meal on counter. Place doug on top and pat out to flatten, turning serveral times in meal. Roll out to 15- or 15-inch round (it will tend to be elastic and pull in). To make it easier to roll, pick up dough now and then to stretch from underneath with your knuckles. Sprinkle 12-inch nonstick or lightly oiled pizza pan with extra cornmeal and place dough in pan, pushing or rolling edge in to allow more thickness at rim.

Slice mushrooms. Cover tomatoes with boiling water in heatproof bowl. Let sit 10 minutes then drain and snip into strips. Heat 1 tablespoon oil in large skillet, add sausage and mushrooms and saute about 5 minutes until sausage crisps. Remove from heat and mix in oregano.

Bake crust 7 to 9 minutes or until it begins to brown. Remove from oven. Sprinkle 1 cup cheese evenly over crust. Top with mushroom mixture then the tomatoes. Sprinkle remaining cheese in ring on top. Return to oven, and bake 6 minutes or until crust is crisp and cheese is melted.

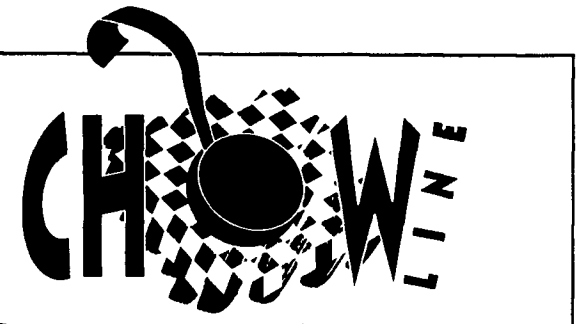
ANNETTE'S CHICKEN ROLL-UPS

1 medium onion, diced
½ cup butter
¾ cup dry white wine or chicken stock
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
6 lasagna noodles, cooked and cut in half lengthwise
4 ounces mushrooms
3 chicken breast halves, chopped
½ teaspoon crushed tarragon
8-ounces cream cheese
½ cup sour cream
1 cup shredded muenster cheese
½ cup heavy cream (light also works)
1½ cups shredded Swiss cheese

Cook lasagna noodles, cut in half lengthwise; arrange in a circle and place in greased 9x13-inch pan. Cook and stir onion and mushrooms in melted butter over medium heat in a skillet until tender. Add chicken, wine, tarragon, salt and pepper and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to low and simmer 10 minutes. Spoon (using slotted spoon) chicken mixture into center of noodle circle. To liquid in skillet, add cream cheese, heavy cream, sour cream, ¾ cup Swiss cheese, and ½ cup muenster cheese. Cook and stir until melted (do not boil). Pour over noodles. Sprinkle with remaining cheese.

Bake in preheated oven at 325 degrees for 35 minutes until bubbly. Serves 4-6.



Too much fiber as nasty as too little

Is it possible to eat too much fiber?

It sure is Too much fiber can cause gas, bloating, intestinal pain and diarrhea It can also sweep minerals from your digestive tract before they have a chance to enter the blood Consuming fiber in huge amounts can even cause impaction of the large intestine, especially in diabetics, a condition that often requires surgery to correct

Sounds awful, doesn tit? Relax Chances are, you don t have to worry about it Nutrition authorities recommend consuming 20 to 25 grams of fiber a day, or 11 5 grams of fiber per 1,000 calories Unfortunately most Americans don t get half that amount

Getting enough fiber has benefits, especially for a healthy functioning gastrointestinal system Fiber helps move food waste along the GI tract, and it can help prevent diverticulosis in which tiny pockets form in the colon If these pockets become inflamed (a condition called diverticulitis), it is necessary to severely limit fiber intake

Fiber could have other benefits, too For example soluble fiber can lower serum cholesterol and therefore may be beneficial to people susceptible to heart disease In addition, there is some evidence that fiber may lower the risk of some types of colon cancer but that evidence is not conclusive

To get enough fiber, try to incorporate two fiber-rich foods into each meal At breakfast choose a cereal with at least 5 grams of fiber per serving, whole-grain toast and a glass of fruit juice with pulp At lunch and dinner, eat fruits and vegetables, especially with the skin on, whole-grain bread, and beans and other legumes Snack foods can also be high-fiber Choose raisins, prunes, dried apricots, nuts seeds or popcorn instead of chips or chocolate

High fiber foods include lentils (8 grams per half-cup), apples (5 grams per medium-sized fruit) peas (4 grams per half-cup) pinto or lima beans (3 grams per half cup), broccoli (3 grams per cup), oranges (3 grams per medium-sized fruit) brown rice (3 grams per half cup) carrots (2 grams per half cup) Some surprisingly lower in fiber foods celery (less than 1 gram per medium sized stalk), cauliflower (1.25 grams per half cup) and many healthy-sounding but low-in fiber breakfast cereals As with any processed food check the Nutrition Facts label for detailed information

Lunch was a tasty one. Pork and sauerkraut. Mashed potatoes. Cinnamon apples, corn muffins, fresh milk.

A fitting sort of meal for a dreary, gray, mid-January day. The sort of meal to fuel a body to face the chilly damp to milk cows, feed calves, more hay and silage, chop wood. It's a somewhat old-fashioned "Pennsylvania Dutch" meat-and-potatoes meal that I get hungry for now and then. During cold weather. Come summer and 90-degree temperatures, pork and sauerkraut just doesn't have the appetite attraction it sparks on a blustery winter day.

Of course, it's the tradition of us German-heritage folks of the area to feast on pork and sauerkraut at New Year for good luck. I bagged that custom after serving several pork-and-sauerkraut New Year's dinners that were followed by growing seasons of either extreme dry or extremely wet, both wreaking havoc on our crops and feed production. So much for good luck.

It's my guess that the New Years pork and sauerkraut custom may have been based more in the tradition of "butchering" than for good luck. Butchering, when the family's meat for the year was slaughtered and cured, was a major event for most rural families. And the holiday week between Christmas and New Year, with more extended family help likely available and usually dependable cold weather, may have just been a logical time to tackle such a major undertaking. With a mid-holiday butchering, there was plenty of fresh pork by January.

Butchering, by the way, is one heck of a lot of work.

Though I did not grow up in a family that butchered, marriage drew me into a group of relatives highly skilled in the process. And it was there among an extended family of in-laws that I learned what little I know first-hand about it.

Many farms of the area had their own butcher house. The one in which I first learned about the process –The Farmer's maternal grandfather's–was torn down years ago. One remains here on the farm, better known as the spring house. Its old, crumbling fireplace attests to a former use as a processing facility for the family's food supplies.

The several-day butchering process began with the quick dispatching of probably a beef or two and several hogs that had been raised for this specific purpose. Hog carcasses had to be scaled in large troughs and the hair scraped from their hide with special circular hand tools. Usually all carcasses were left to hang in the cold of the butcher-house at least overnight, firming up the meat to cut more easily.

Before the pork could be cut and processed, most of the fat was removed for cooking down into lard. Years ago, it was a mark of distinction to raise fat-laden pigs, a far cry from the super-lean porkers of today. In fact, cutting the thick layer of fat that was removed from the hogs into small cubes for rendering down into lard was one of the first jobs that could be assigned to a rank amateur like myself.

Cutting lard I could handle. But one still had to be careful not to cut fingers on the family's sharply-honed butcher knives. Later, I was promoted to helping scrape casings. Casings. The salt-water-soaked and cleaned intestines of hogs, used for stuffing with ground, seasoned sausage meat. One had to scrape casings with care; if you tore a hole in a section, it was no good. And there were no food-grade-synthetic casings available for sausage-making.

After days of butchering, it took far more days to cure and smoke, salt or can, or wrap and freeze, the results.

I count among my many blessings the ease of buying a piece of fresh pork all ready to plunk in the oven.

And you don't want to get into the labors involved in making that sauerkraut prior to butchering season.

Berks Society 3

The past three months were really great for Farm Women Group 3. In October members had a nutritionist tell about health and labels. In November members held turkey raffle. Each member won something that had to do with a turkey dinner.

In December members enjoyed the Christmas party at the Yellow House Hotel. New officers and new secret pals were selected. New officers are Lille Bucks, president; Marie Schollenberger, vice president,; Francis Moyer, secretary; Michele Ferreira, corresponding secretary; and Lora Oswald, treasurer.

Lancaster Society 20

On Thursday, January 8, Lancaster County, Farm Women No. 20 met at the home of Dorothy Eckman with Helen Tout as co-hostess. For the program Connie Rutt gave an overview of Eastern Europe although she spoke mostly about Poland as she is working there getting 4-H organizations started.

It was very interesting learning how they visit the schools with interpreters and the young people are getting involved. After their primary schooling, they go to a Technical School where they stay for the week as it would be impossible to commute.

She said Poland is flat with no mountains. They are 99% Catholic and have always been more or less as peasants although that is changing.

Poland's biggest crop is sugar beets and that is where they get their sugar. Connie's daughter lives in Hungary. She said when a baby is born, the mother stays in the hospital a week but it is up to the relatives and friends to provide them with food. Also when they go home they do not take the baby out for six weeks. If you do, you are considered a bad mother.

Devotions were by Helen who read from Psalms 92 and from 107. The Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison and the Allegiance to the Flag was repeated. The president, Marie Foose, presided at the business meeting and the charities given her to take the county were "Make-A-Wish" and Water Street Rescue Mission.

Dorothy Crawford reported three cards had been sent. There were 16 members present and the meeting closed by signing "Brighten The Corner." In February, the meeting will be at the home of Helen Harnish. There will be a Food Auction and each member should bring an item for the Food Bank.

QUESTION — A reader tasted a delicious cottage cheese soup at the Red Fox Inn at Snowshoe. Does anyone have a recipe for cottage cheese soup.

QUESTION — Carl Schintzel, Rockaway, N.J., remembers his mother used to make seasoned rice with cubed pieces of veal in it, which cooked all day on a wood or coal range. He doesn't remember the name or any other ingredients it might have contained, but the mixture was made in a deep gray graniteware lidded pot.

QUESTION — Mary Dengler, Middletown, Ohio, would like a recipe for 10-grain bread that tastes similar to that made by Roscoe Village Bakery in Coshocton, Ohio.

QUESTION — Grace Rumer, Abington, is looking for a recipe for individual crumb buns with cheese pockets. Her husband ate some, which he said were delicious, on the Ocean City Boardwalk in New Jersey.

ANSWER — A Somerset reader would like recipes and suggestions on how to prepare brains from beef or veal. Thanks to Mary Jane Long, Clearfield, for sending recipes from a cookbook she received in 1946. The information said that the brains of pork, beef, lamb, and calf should be precooked if not to be used soon. Keep in refrigerator until ready to be used.

Boiled Brains

Wash brains in cold water, remove membrane and soak in cold water to cover 30 minutes. Then drain, cover with boiling water, add 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar. Simmer for 10-20 minutes or until tender. Drain, slice, and serve with mushroom sauce, tomato sauce, or butter sauce.

Sauteed Brains

After boiling brains, drain and plunge into cold water. Drain, dry, dredge with seasoned flour and saute in fat or salad oil until golden brown on both sides. Serve with sauce as in boiled brains.

Scrambled Eggs With Brains

1½ pounds pork or calf brains
2 tablespoons butter
3 eggs
¾ teaspoon salt

Wash brains in warm water. Carefully remove all membranes. Drain. Melt butter in skillet and turn brains into it. Cook over low heat for 10-15 minutes, stirring occasionally with a fork. When brains begin to appear dry, stir constantly with a fork, using a mashing motion to force bits of brains through the tines of the fork. When mixture is thoroughly dry and fluffy in appearance, add the slightly beaten eggs to which salt has been added. Stir slightly until mixture becomes just set, then serve. Serves 4.

ANSWER — Joyce Rex, Slatington, wanted recipes using edible soybeans. Thanks to L. Miller, Quarryville, for sending a recipe. She also writes that soybean are good made with ham like baked beans. More recipes for soybeans are requested.

Soybean Hamburger Casserole

Saute in large skillet:
2 tablespoons cooking oil
½ cup chopped onion
½ pound ground beef
1 cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped pepper

When meat is browned, blend in:
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2½ cups cooked soybeans
2 cups rice
1 beef bouillion dissolved in 1 cup hot water
1½ cups tomato, stewed or sauce

Heat and simmer a few minutes. Place in casserole and bake 45 minutes. Top with ½ cup cheese, grated or sliced and return to oven until cheese is melted.

ANSWER — Several months ago E. Stoltzfoos, Bird in Hand, lost a cookie recipe that she had cut out of this section, but recalled that some of the ingredients were whole wheat flour, wheat germ, oatmeal, nuts, and honey. Thanks to L. Miller, Quarryville, who sent in this recipe that includes the ingredients mentioned. Hope this is the right one.

Coconut Oatmeal Gems

½ cup vegetable oil
1 cup honey or maple syrup
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
3 cups rolled oats
1 cup unsweetened coconut
½ cup nuts
1 cup raw sugar
3 eggs
½ cup chopped dates or raisins
3 cups whole wheat flour
1 cup ground oatmeal or wheat germ
½ teaspoon salt

Cream sugar, honey, and oil until light and fluffy. Add beaten eggs and dates, beating thoroughly. Add dry ingredients, oatmeal, coconut, and nuts, mixing well after each addition. Drop on cookie sheet with spoon, then flatten with fork. Bake at 350 degrees.

ANSWER — V.A.W. from Old Line is looking for a recipe for making escarole soup using a chicken stock base. Thanks to Mary Cerami, Ottsville, for sending a recipe.

Escarole Soup

1 head escarole
2 tablespoons chopped onion
¼ cup butter
3½ cups chicken broth
2 cloves garlic, mashed
Pinch nutmeg
Salt to taste
Tiny meatballs (optional)

Wash escarole; cut into ½ -inch wide ribbons. Saute onion and garlic in butter. Add escarole and salt. Saute briefly; add ½ cup broth and cover. Cook for 25 minutes. Add additional broth and nutmeg (add meatballs at this time if using). Heat until thoroughly cooked. Serve sprinkled with parmesan cheese.

COOKIE PIZZA

Crust:
¾ cup packed brown sugar
¾ cup butter, softened
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla

Cream the above together and add the following:
¾ cup flour
¼ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1½ cups quick oats
¾ cup flaked coconut

Spread half of dough on each of two 12-inch pizza pans, leaving ½ -inch around the rim for the cookie to expand. Sprinkle with toppings and bake at 350 degrees for 13-15 minutes. Cool in pan cut into wedges to serve.

Toppings: (this amount is for the two pans)
½ cup butterscotch chips
½ cup chocolate chips
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup chocolate coated pieces (M&M's)
½ cup coconut

New Weigh Of Life

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) – Looking for a program that helps you make healthy food choices resulting in permanent weight loss? "My New Weigh of Life" has been developed by Nutrition Specialists at Penn State University and is based on the most current research into theories of obesity, weight loss and coping (relapses) plans. Most participants lose 1/2 to 2 pounds a week. This 12-week program will teach you how to cut calories, increase your activity level and improve your nutritional status without giving up all of your favorite foods. Classes will be held at Delaware County Cooperative Extension, 20 Paper Mill Road, Smedley Park, Springfield.

The daytime session will be run on Wednesday mornings from 10-12 noon beginning February 4. An evening session will begin on the same day from 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. A $65. registration fee will include a workbook of supporting materials. Preregistration is required. Call (610) 690-2655 for registration and questions.

Cook's Question

ANSWER—Nancy Mayer, Dalton, wanted a recipe to make a dry mix soup mix for gift giving. Thanks to Elizabeth Seibert, Fredericksburg, for sending a recipe.

Special Bean Soup Mix For Gift Giving

Mix together one pound of each:
Norther beans
Pinto beans
Large limas
Black-eyed peas
Garbanzo
Small white beans
Baby limas
Split pea green
Pearl barley
Kidney
White kidney
Cranberrry bean
Pink bean
Small red bean
Black bean
Yellow split pea
Lentil
Navy

Pack 2 cups in a bag or jar. Give soup directions. The mixture gives an interesting flavor and texture. Make a spice packet for each. Take a 6-inch square piece of plastic and wrap in the following for a spice packet:

3 beef-flavored bouillon cubes
3 tablespoons dried chives
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dried savory
½ teaspoon ground cumin
½ teaspoon ground pepper
1 bay leaf

Tie with a string, for a gift tie with ribbon.

Recipe directions:

Soak 2 cups assorted beans in 5 cups water. Cook 3 minutes. Let stand 1 hour. Drain. Add 1 ham hock and 5 cups water. Cook for 30-60 minutes. Add 14½ -ounce can stewed tomatoes, the spice packet, and simmer until done. May add garlic and ½ teaspoon chili powder if desired.

ANSWER — Mrs. Eli Lapp Jr., Gordonville, wanted a recipe for starter mix to pass from one person to the next. Here is an answer from Jeanne Fredrick, Devon, Ct. Please clip this if you think you might use it. We have constant requests for this recipe and do not like to repeat the same recipes again and again.

Starter Mixture

2 cups flour
2 cups warm water
1 package dry yeast
2 cups milk, separated
2 cups flour, separated
1 cup sugar

Day 1: Get the starter mixture going by mixing together 2 cups flour with 2 cups warm water, and 1 package dry yeast. Do not mix with an electric mixer but thoroughly with a whisk. Do not put the starter mixture into a metal container. Cover loosely with plastic wrap. Set on the kitchen counter, do not refrigerate.

Day 2, 3, and 4: Stir until smooth (use wooden spoons, not metal).

Day 5: Add 1 cup milk, 1 cup flour, 1 cup sugar, and stir.

Day 6, 7, 8, and 9, stir.

Day 10. Add 1 cup milk, 1 cup flour, 1 cup sugar. Get 3 non-metal containers and pour the batter into each. This is now the starter mixture ready to use or share with others.

Friendship Bread

⅔ cup oil
2 cups flour
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
1¼ teapsoon baking powder
1 cup nuts
1 cup raisins, apples or crushed pineapple
1 portion of the starter mixture
Sugar

To the starter mixture, add oil, flour, sugar, eggs, cinnamon, salt, baking soda, baking powder, nuts, and fruit. Pour into two well-greased loaf pans. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 350 degrees for 50-55 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean.

Caught By The Camera At Pennsylvania Farm Show

Two-year-old Hunter Wright, son of Maria and Todd Wright from Lewistown, came to the Farm Show to see the tractors.

This fellow has the best seat in the house for seeing what's happening at the Farm Show.

Tyler Van Noy, 6, is one lucky boy. His grandparents, Dale and Ida Butcher, take him from fair to fair to try out all the tractors. They came to the Pennsylvania Farm Show, his grandmother said, because they are former farmers and good friends of Gov. Ridge, who opened the annual event.

Chip Patterson with sons Alexander, 3, and Benjamin, 5 months, counts on Grandpa Dick Bennett for a helping hand at the Berg and Bennett Manure and Feed Handling Equipment booth.

Kids are often surprised to learn that all cows give white milk no matter what their color. Here, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Nichole Meabon assists kids trying out the Wheel of Fortune at the booth sponosored by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services.

Why is some snow dry and powdery, and other snow wet?
Perfect snowman building snow depends on the temperature
Snow is a special form of frozen water Ice crystals form when the temperature inside clouds drops to between -4 degrees Fahrenheit and 40 F
Remember, water is made from two hydrogen atoms and one oxygen atom When the temperature and conditions inside the cloud are right, a hydrogen atom from one molecule links to an oxygen atom from another This forms a six-sided ice crystal with an empty space in the middle That's why ice weighs less than water, and why all snowflakes have six sides
The crystals join together as they fall Huge, fluffy snowflakes are actually a lot of tangled up pieces of crystal while tiny snow pieces are untangled ice crystals
So, why is snow wet or dry? When the temperature on the ground is really cold, the air is very dry The water in the snow starts to evaporate, so the snow doesn't stick together very well
The best snowball-making snow falls when the temperature is on the verge of thawing There's a lot of moisture in the air, so the snow becomes wetter — and a lot of water in the snow makes the flakes sticky
But you don't want it too warm, though If the temperature near the ground is above freezing, falling snow melts and turns into rain!
Scientifically yours,
Twig

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Today January 24th is our 50th wedding anniversary. Of course, we do not know what the weather will be, but I can hope it will not be as bad as in 1948. That particular day Lancaster County had a blizzard. We got to the church all right but from there on it was a struggle.

Allen likes to tell the story of his uncle and aunt who lived in Philadelphia. They came to Lancaster on the train. When they got off and saw the weather conditions, they immediately got on another train and returned to their home.

After the wedding reception, everyone battled snow drifts. My brothers-in-law had to walk to my parents home. And, I can still see them sitting with their feet in my mother's old coal stove oven.

Allen and I did not start on our wedding trip to Florida until the next afternoon. Weather can certainly change the best-laid plans of mice and men. A great aunt told me we should have known better than to plan a winter wedding—she was married in December! I was surprised to learn that my Grandfather Shreiner was also married on January 24.

This year we don't plan a big celebration as our daughter planned one for our 40th anniversary. Maybe some of our children will come home and share a meal with us.

Start A Small Business

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) – Penn State Cooperative Extension is presenting a series of meetings focusing on establishing a small business, a part-time business, a home industry or part-time farming operation. The seminar series will include; Analyzing your market, pricing and advertising, financial records necessary for legal and successful business management, developing a business plan, taxes and tax records, source of financial assistance, who qualifies and how to secure loans, managing techniques, success and failure factors and problem solving strategies.

Doug Tharp, Pennsylvania Technical Assistance Program (PENNTAP), will focus on linking small businesses with technology and information. Other program faculty are John Berry, James Sargent and Kay Hastings, Penn State Cooperative Extension Agents and an educator from I.R.S. The series will be held from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. on February 12, 19 and 26 at Penn State, Berks Campus, Tulpehocken Road, Reading. KUBOTA DEFIES THE LAW OF AVERAGES

Kubota engineers defied all the laws of "average" when they designed Kubota's Grand L and M-Series diesel tractors. Loaded with features, these versatile tractors can tackle your toughest farming tasks.

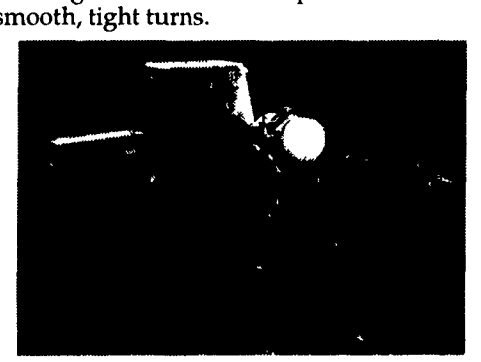
The 2WD and 4WD Grand L-Series generates 25 to 37 PTO horsepower in four compact, state-of-the-art models.

Shift-on-the-go with Kubota's Synchro-shuttle transmission, or choose a GST (Glide Shift Transmission) for 8 speed clutchless operation.

Kubota's M-Series increases your power with two models producing 42 to 50 PTO horsepower. The M-Series 4WD models incorporate Kubota's bevel gear drive for smooth, tight turns.

Both the Grand L and M-Series are powered by Kubota's low noise and vibration E-TVCS diesel engines. These easy maintenance diesels are lean on both fuel and emissions, and are also environmentally friendly. Independent rear PTO and hefty 3-point hitch is standard.

See your Kubota dealer today and let them show you why Kubota's Grand L and M-Series are not your "average" tractor!



Kubota Tractor Corporation markets a full line of tractors through a nationwide network of over 1 000 dealers Financing is available through Kubota Credit Corporation

From Underneath The Chicken To The Dining Plate

KENDRA WEAVER
Poultry Ambassador

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Imagine walking into a huge building. The smell of disinfectant reaches your nose as the steady hum of machinery frustrates any effort to carry on a normal conversation. While the cool air nips at your nose watch as thousands of boxes of eggs are loaded into the back of a huge trailer bound for New York.

These are some of the fascinating sights and sounds I experienced recently on my tour of Sauder's Penn Dutch Eggs in Lititz. Tom Fox, quality control manager at Sauder's, escorted George Georges and myself on an informative tour to view the "behind-the-scenes" steps of an egg packaging plant.

The first room we walked into was the cooler and packed with thousands of eggs, from hundreds of farms, stacked taller than myself. Every egg was sorted into a dark or light flat — depending on their weight. Cases of large and jumbo eggs, which are 48-pound case weight or larger, were piled high on shades of bright oranges and reds while those that fell into the category of 36-pound case weight sat on dark green and black flats. As we walked through the walls of eggs, Tom Fox explained that Sauder's receives approximately 10-15 percent brown eggs and a small percentage of organic eggs. The birds, which are qualified to lay organic eggs, must be allowed to roam free while consuming "natural" feed made from grains never touched with pesticides and insecticides. Another special egg at Sauder's is the "Golden Egg" marketed for its rich supply of beta-carotene. Interestingly, the golden color is achieved by extract in the chicken's diet from a Cyan pepper native of Mexico.

Continuing our tour, we walked into the packaging room. Only eggs from one lot or one farm are done at a time. Near the beginning of the century, women were employed to inspect and package the eggs and were considered exceptional for completing 39 cases of eggs per hour. Now however, using equipment from Diamond International, Sauder's is able to process 550 cases of eggs per hour. The eggs are mechanically hoisted onto a conveyor belt and spun through a 200-gallon washer kept between 115 and 120 degrees Fahrenheit with a pH of 11. After visible extraneous residue has been removed, the eggs are sent through steaming rinse water kept between 135-140 degrees Fahrenheit. This insures that all invisible pathogens have been killed. The eggs are then rolled under the scrutiny of "B-pickers." These employees manually pick out cracked eggs and those with other visible defects. After receiving a fresh coat of mineral oil to seal up the egg shell pores and prolong shelf-life, the eggs are carried into a dark, curtained room. Light beams up through the bottom of the eggs as employees with special electronic markers stamp any with interior problems.

The computer is able to separate these eggs because of the marking made by the electronic marker. Next, each egg is individually weighed and carried by machinery to the appropriate place where it is deposited into the correct "loading dock." Every "loading dock" scattered along the outside of the long machine (that transports the eggs) is suited with egg cartons, some of them for jumbo, extra large, large, medium and small eggs. Every carton is stamped with the date, the farm number the eggs came from, and the station number in which they are packaged.

If any trouble arises, Sauder's is able to immediately trace the eggs back to the farm from which they came. After the eggs are deposited into the cartons, employees pack them into boxes, crates, carts, or whatever the order happens to be.

It was obvious how consumer friendly Sauder's Eggs is. They alter their packaging method depending on what the buyer has requested including the kind of carton the eggs are shipped in.

According to federal law, egg packaging plants are permitted to have a 5 percent crack rate on the eggs they ship to consumers. However, Sauder's has their packaging method at a zero percent crack rate. The cracked eggs they sell to other companies at a cheap price are then sold by those companies for the regular grocery-store shelf price. Even though Sauder's is sacrificing profit, their reputation to package guarranteed high-quality eggs for the consumer is priceless and irrefutable.

Sauder's Eggs is one of the only, if not the only, company in the nation to have Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP) installed in the machinery of the packaging plants. This system guarantees immediate attention to any part of the plant malfunctioning and halts entire packaging procedure if the problem sighted cannot be fixed in minutes.

Sauder's Eggs is the largest egg producer-processor in the east coast and fifth largest in the nation. They have six plants in three states including Maryland and Ohio. They export along the Atlantic Coast from Maine to North Carolina. Internationally, Sauder's eggs have reached Puerto Rico, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, and Hong Kong.

Enthusiasm Spills From Eileen's Busy Life

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ULSTER (Bradford Co.) — For those who read the recipe section of this paper, the name Eileen Murphy is a familiar one. Eileen is a regular contributor of wonderful-tasting recipes.

"I love cooking and experimenting," the 19-year-old said.

Wearing the title of both Bradford County Dairy Princess and Pennsylvania Second Alternate, the high school senior leads a busy life.

She participates in her high school cooperative program by working as a secretary from 7 a.m.-8:15 a.m., takes morning classes at school, and then returns to her job as secretary from noon until 7 p.m. After that, she squeezes in such activities as homework, dairy promotion, 4-H Club, president of student council, FBLA president, youth group prayer group, 4-H County Council, Interact, and IR Cooperative, Students Against Drunk Driving, band front, swim team, track team, morning activities announcer, and time with her boyfriend.

In addition, Emily is a member of North Rome Wesleyan Church, where she is assistant nursery director, Bible School worker, and a member of youth choir and the teen youth group.

Because she is so busy, the whole family pitches in to help. Family includes parents Malcolm and Sylvia Murphy, two sisters Teresa and Annette, and an exchange student, Josie. The sisters' boyfriends also lend a helping hand.

"My boyfriend Brian drives me in all the parades, Mitch slices cheese, and Matt likes to cook and tests all the recipes," Eileen said.

Eileen recalls that her first experiment in cooking macaroni and cheese for her boyfriend's family turned into an embarrassment. "The macaroni and cheese was runny, but they ate it anyway," she said.

Not only that, she said that the family stuck with sampling her cooking while she perfected her skills.

On the family's 435-acre farm, they raise 124 Holsteins and Jerseys. The Murphysons Farm has been in the family for 76 years.

Over the years, the Murphy sisters have shown both Jersey and Holstein cows at local fairs and at the county 4-H roundup. The Jerseys are from Sunset Ridge Farm, owned by Eileen's Uncle Brian Harris and grandfather Eugene Harris, and the Holsteins are from the family farm. Eileen now has three Jerseys of her own.

"I prefer Jerseys because they are easier to train. At the same time, Eileen said that she has been hurt more by her favorite Jersey cow than any other. "She doesn't like men," Eileen said of the cow's excuse in acting up while she's showing her.

Her mother recalls that Eileen could hardly wait until she was old enough to show her first calf. That enthusiasm for showing continues. One of the highlights of her year was participating in the Troy Fair.

Most of the dairy promotional events that Eileen participates in are well planned, but she had an impromptu promotion while flying to Florida last year. She sat next to a man, who when he heard that she was a dairy princess, spread the news to the other passengers. Soon Eileen was bombarded by passengers requesting that she autograph the advertising (milk moustached) pages that they ripped from magazines.

Many honors have come Eileen's way. But the one that is most meaningful to her is the Miss Congeniality title that other county contestants voted to give to her at the Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess Pageant.

"I was so surprised, because I was just being myself. I was raised to care about people and to be nice to them," Eileen said.

She's also been raised to eat properly. "My mom is a home economics teacher, so nutrition has always been preached to us," Eileen said.

Some people have the false assumption that people who indulge in dairy products are overweight. Eileen is walking proof that one can enjoy indulging in nutritious dairy products and stay slender.

"You need to manage what you eat to comform to your body's metabolism," she said. Although she believes she has a high metabolism because of her busy lifestyle, she also makes a concious effort to eat healthful foods instead of junk.

During her involvement in 11 years of 4-H, Eileen has completed 44 projects, mostly in dairy, stitching, and cooking clubs. Recently, Eileen received the Orville Yoder Memorial Award given to a Bradford County 4-H'er who most demonstrates outstanding leadership by helping younger members with projects. Yoder was a former county extension agent.

Eileen is often fascinated by stories told by her grandfather Ray Fenton Murphy, who was on the National Milk Producers Federation board of directors for 25 years.

"He recently had a stroke. Now, he can't tell you what happened yesterday, but he remembers everything else," she said.

When her schedule allows, Eileen feeds the calves on the farm, a job that her mother normally does.

Eileen said that she met her boyfriend in 4-H, just like her parents had met. Her parents are married 29 years.

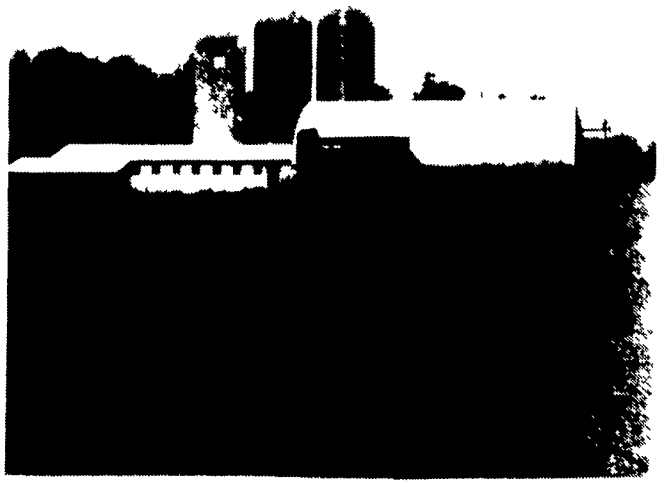
Eileen enjoys school promotions and seeing the excited faces of the students as they hear about cows. One of the highlights of her year was promoting the Real Seal Campaign. First graders collected more than 27,000 Real seals in the county.

Although Eileen thrives on being busy, it's been really tough to promote the dairy industry at both the county and state levels while finishing her senior year of high school. This semester she carries a heavier load at school and will need to cut back on state promotion. She also has dropped swim team and track—a hard decision because she had qualified to go to district competition.

After high school graduation, Eileen plans on entering a two-year program on early childhood education at Penn Tech in Williamsport.

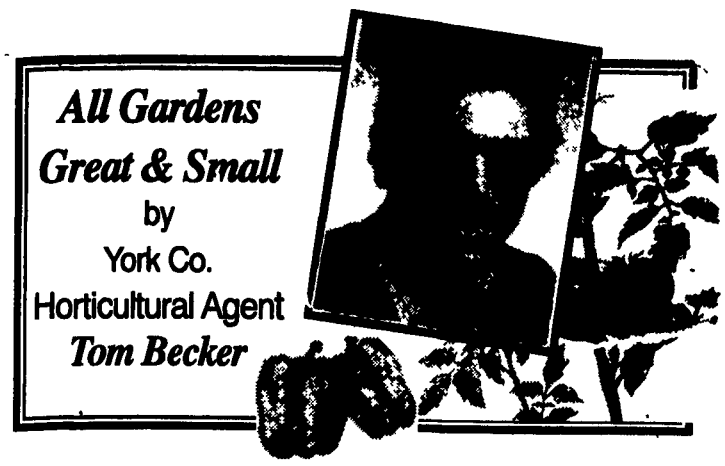
According to Pennsylvania Alternate Eileen Murphy, one of the most asked questions by kids attending the Farm Show: "What kind of cows make strawberry milk?"

Asleep after a long day at the Fair.



Murphyson Farm in Bradford County is home for Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess Eileen Murphy, her parents Malcolm and Sylvia, and sisters, Teresa and Annette.

HOMESTEAD NOTES



Landscaping With A Windbreak

During the winter months tall trees planted in one, two, or three rows help control wind movement across open land and around the houses of farmers and gardeners. A windbreak located 50 to 200 feet upwind of the house will greatly reduce wind velocity and snow accumulation.

Important factors in the effectiveness of any windbreak include the height of the plants, the width of the planting strip, and the number of plant rows are directly related to the amount of wind reduction. The taller and wider of the planting, the more effective it is. Rows should be 10 to 12 feet apart with tress in a staggered arrangement. The types of plants used also have a bearing on the value of the planting as a windbreak (generally evergreens are the most effective). Large areas of dense forests upwinds often can take the place of a windbreak.

Your windbreak success depend on adequate space on the property to allow for enough plants. Unfortunately many residential properties do not have enough space to plant an effective windbreak. Tall plants used near the house shades the house in the winter and actually increases heating costs because of lost solar radiation falling on the house. Most evergreen trees can spread 10 to 12 feet at their base which presents a space problem. They also get tall enough to create a shade problem when used close to a structure.

Where there is limited space on the property consider using a dense shrub of small tree border or planting. Where possible extend a windbreak 50 feet beyond the ends of the area to be protected. This planting helps reduce the initial velocity of the wind moving across the property. Such plantings help to reduce the wind speed for a distance of between 4 to 6 times their height. Any reduction in the amount of wind striking the house helps save energy. These lower shrubs will not shade the house.

For a windbreak choose plants that are relatively hardy for for your area. These plants should grow quickly and provide the needed cover. Finally, it should have a form and growth characteristic that supplies a dense barrier to the wind.

The following plants are hardy in most areas in Pennsylvania, have a dense habit of growth and do well in most soils.

Deciduous trees for windbreaks: Lombardy poplar, hybrid poplar, Japanese larch, amur maple, red maple, European hornbeam, Washington Hawthorn, Green Ash, Pin Oak, Japanese Tree Lilac, and Blackshaw viburnum. Note: Lombardy poplar, hybrid poplar and Japanese larch are often a temporary windbreak that's removed after 10 years.

Medium size evergreens for the outside rows: Colorado blue spruce, Douglas fir, Serbian spruce, white spruce, or white fir.

Tall Evergreens for inside rows: hemlock, white pine, red pine, Austrian pine and Norway spruce.

Shrubs for windbreaks: Burning bush, witch hazel, beautybush, amur privet, common lilac, arrowwood viburnum, nannyberry viburnum, and Siebold viburnum.

Before planting, check local ordinances that restrict planting near boundary lines. Soil test the area before planting. Use good quality plant material for the initial planting. Balled and burlapped or container grown plants establish faster than bare rooted material. If plants have to struggle for several seasons they are slow to form into a good windbreak.

Keep trees watered well and weed free to reduce competition for moisture and nutrients in the soil. Periodic soil testing and corrective pruning also helps to assure that they are getting an optimum level of nutrients for good growth.

Windbreaks also serve as noise barriers, visual screenings, effective snow barriers and a refuge for wildlife. For more information, contact your extension circular 392, Windbreaks and Shade Trees.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Franklin 4-H Beef

The Franklin County 4-H Baby Beef Club held its buyers award banquet at the Kauffman Community Center recently.,

There were 112 4-H members, parents, and buyers present.

Bill Reagan, county agent, introduced the buyers that purchased steers at the sale on Sept. 27. He told them that raising a steer is only a means to an end.

The main goal of the 4-H program in the beef club is to build character in the life of a youth. It teaches them responsibility, to be honest, how to accept if you win, and how to accept if you loose. These are things that a youth needs to learn before they become an adult.

It is because of these buyers who purchase these animals that the club can continue a program such as this. Duane Hawbaker, club leader, introduced the head table which consisted of the officers and leadership of the club; president, Jimmy Clapsaddle; vice president, Brad Rife, Secretary, Jodi Meyers; treasure, Micah Hawbaker; social committee, Cassie Lowans; fair committee, Justin Conner.

The Club then gave the awards out, which the members earned at the roundup.

Grand champion Banner went to Justin Conner, Reserve champion Banner went to Jodi Meyers.

First place weight class trophies were as follows; light weight, Jason Metzler, medium weight, Matt Hawbaker, light heavy weight, Justin Conner, medium heavy weight, Maria Metzler.

Champion show Plaque went to Justin Conner and champion fitter plaque went to Jordon Conner.

First place fitting trophies were novice, Jaclyn Upperman, intermediate, Jason Metzler, junior, Justin Conner and senior, Marci Sites.

Best project book plaque ages 8-13 — first place, Jason Metzler 98.5 and Marcia Metzler 98.5. Second place to Jaclyn Upperman 98.0 and Micha Hawbaker 98.0.

Ages 14-18 First to Justin Conner 99.5, and second to Matt Hawbaker 98.5 and Jordon Conner 98.5.

Dairy weight gain plaque went to first, Maria Metzler 2.87 and second, Tim Mackey 2.60.

Duane Hawbaker, club leader, recognized Bill Reagan, county agent, who will be retiring at the end of December, with an appreciation plaque for his many years he was involved with the Beef Club. Regan started in 1956 as county agent and also as adviser for the Franklin County Beef Club the same time and has been actively involved ever since. He was complimented for his wisdom and understanding of how he handled decisions in the midst of changing times. Flo, his wife, also was recognized with a bouquet of flowers for her support for him as he worked with our youth.

Regan made some comments of happenings over the years from 1956-1997 of his involvement with the Beef Club. Club Secretary Jodi Meyers then presented Duane Hawbaker and Kevin Stahl with a gift of appreciation for the time they spent as leaders of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Reagan are recognized for the many years of service to the 4-H Beef Club.

Rural Women Face Higher Poverty Risk

UNIVERSITY PARK (Center Co.) – Economic development could do much to reduce the disparity in income between rural women and their urban counterparts, female and male, according to two Penn State researchers.

"Rural women are significantly more likely than urban women and men to have less than a high school education, be unemployed or under employed and work in service-sector occupations," says Bridget K. Gorman, doctoral student in sociology. "Much of this can be traced to the nature of the rural labor market, which is marked by high rates of unemployment and underemployment and low educational levels."

"The plight of rural women is exacerbated by the simple fact that, regardless of geography, American women are more likely to be poor than American men," notes Dana L. Haynie, doctoral student in sociology.

"The feminization of poverty has been accelerated by growing numbers of female-headed households," Haynie says. "Furthermore, despite the narrowing education gap between the genders, women in general are still concentrated in traditional women's professions teaching, nursing, secretarial work and the multi-faceted service sector.

The researchers used the 1990 public use microdata set entailing a survey of 619,250 individuals residing within 394 local labor markets. They employed multiple logistic regression to test the effects of labor market characteristics and individual attributes on poverty risk.

"Rural labor markets tend to have the least amount of diversity in terms of employment," says Gorman. "In past decades, the best-paying jobs were in manufacturing and mining, but these are the very jobs that are evaporating in many rural areas."

That leaves the hodgepodge of service sector jobs, which supposedly is filling the void left by departing manufacturing and mining industries.

"Unfortunately, the type of employment men and women find within the service sector is often polarized," Gorman notes.

"Men tend to work as managers of businesses, supervisors, operators of complex equipment, truck drivers and so forth, "Haynie adds. "Some women also can enjoy reasonably well-paying, prestigious jobs in such professions in real estate, insurance, finance, counseling and communications, but these opportunities are less likely to be present in rural labor markets."

Particularly in rural sections of the country, women are far more likely to be concentrated in the stereotypical service sector job; sales clerk, motel desk clerk, waitress or cook in a fast-food restaurant. Those jobs are usually low-paying, comparatively high-stress and frequently temporary, Gorman says.

"Men and women in the United States do not live in a vacuum," Haynie says. "Their changes for economic success (or failure) are shaped not only by their personal attributes, but the constraints and opportunities present in the community where they live and work. Government policy makers at all levels need to keep that in mind.

Gorman and Haynie are co-authors of the paper, "A Gendered Context of Opportunity: Determinants of Poverty Across Urban and Rural Labor Markets," presented last year at the convention of the American Sociological Association in Toronto, Canada.

Dairy Council Provides Nutrition Materials For Black Men

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) – When the Arthur Ashe Institute for Urban Health began its search for health education materials for men in the black community, Dairy Council, Inc. stood out as a unique, valuable resource for reaching this audience. Several years ago, Dairy Council developed its video, Barbershop Talk, to fill the niche of nutrition education materials for African American men.

The Arthur Ashe Institute for Urban Health, located in New York City, offers health resources to disadvantaged communities. One of the Institute's goals has been to reach African American males with health messages. The Institute has developed a pilot program for barber shops, which will be used to develop health education models for men and to determine if the barber shop is the best place for men to receive health education information. The pilot program has been implemented in barber shops in East New York, Bedford Stuyvesant, and Flatbush.

The video, Barbershop Talk, which addresses topics including high blood pressure, fat, lactose intolerance, the food groups, weight control, and the benefits of healthy eating, proved to be the ideal material for the program. The video provides emphasis on dietary choices as they relate not only to the individual, but to the family and the African American community as a whole. Statistics show that the African American population is at greater risk for fatal heart attacks, strokes, high blood pressure, adult onset of diabetes, and cancer, all diseases associated with diet.

Jan Stanton, executive director of Dairy Council, Inc., right, met recently with Max Jean-Paul, project director for the Arthur Ashe Institute's Different Fades of Health program, which offers health resources to disadvantaged communities. The Arthur Ashe Institute is using Dairy Council's video, Barbershop Talk, to extend health messages to men in the black community, through a pilot program in barber shops in New York City.

Good Value Beats Good Price

When you buy equipment, look for good value. Value is different from price. Price involves only the payment at purchase. Value includes the extra benefits you receive during the years you use the Patz equipment. Patz value includes high quality, reliability, long service life, dealer service and parts inventory to keep you operating. When you need equipment, get the extra value from Patz.

Passing On The Farm Workshop To Be Held In Bethlehem

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) – Passing your farm business on to the next generation is an issue that requires careful planning and attention.

To help you in the process, Pennsylvania Farm Link is hosting a day-long workshop at the UGI Auditorium on City Line Road in Bethlehem on Jan. 27.

Individuals who want to learn ways to successfully transfer their farm to family members or those wanting to locate interested beginning farmers are urged to attend.

Beginning farmers, or people who are new to farming, are also urged to attend to discuss beginning farmer issues and ways to gradually develop a farm business.

According to Farm Link Director, Marion Bowlan, "Forty-five percent of Pennsylvania's farm operators are age 55 or older. There are two times as many operators over the age of 65 as under the age of 35.

In the next 10 years, nearly one quarter of the state's 44,800 farms, will change hands. How we address this problem will affect agriculture in Pennsylvania for generations to come," she said.

Working to assist in the successful transfer of family farms and to help retain agricultural lands in production, Pennsylvania Farm Link is sponsoring regional beginning and retiring farmer workshops.

This year the organization is focusing part of its resources on southeastern Pennsylvania. The workshop, scheduled from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., will address passing-on-the-farm issues, including business planning, farm loan resources, marketing ideas, start-up strategies, goal setting, farm management, communication skills, and farmland preservation programs.

Participating agencies and individuals include Pennsylvania Farm Link, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Wildlands Conservancy Farm Credit, Farm Service Agency, Lehigh County Agricultural Land Preservation Board, and a panel of local farmers.

Pre-registration for this free workshop is required by calling Farm Link at 717-558-7726 by Jan. 26. Lunch is on your own.

The UGI Auditorium is located at 2121 City Line Road in the Lehigh Valley Industrial Park on the southeast corner of City Line Road and Avenue B, near the airport.

Pennsylvania Farm Link is a non-profit organization governed by a board of directors representing diverse agricultural interests.

Doyle Elected Chairman, Finance Committee, PPI Board Of Directors

NORCROSS, Ga. – William J. Doyle, executive vice president of PCS Inc. and president of PCS Sales, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, was elected chairman of the finance committee of the Potash & Phosphate Institute (PPI) board of directors at a recent meeting.

"Bill Doyle has a proven record of leadership in the industry," noted Dr. David W. Dibb, president of PPI. "His management talents will be appreciated in this responsibility for PPI in 1998."

Doyle joined PCS Sales as its president in 1987, giving him worldwide responsibility for the sale and distribution of potash producted by the Potash Corporation of Saskatchewan, Inc. He was vice president of the international division of International Minerals and Chemical Corporation prior to joining PCS Sales.

In March 1995, Doyle was promoted to the position of executive vice president with the parent company. In addition to his former responsibiltiy, he is now in charge of all sales for the company, including the most recent phosphate and nitrogen acquisitions.

Doyle is a board member of PPI, Fersan S.A., and the Potash Corporation of Saskatchewan, Inc. He is also past chairman of Canpotex Limited and continues to serve on its board as well as the board of the Phosphate Chemicals Wxport Association. Doyle also serves as chairman of the International Fertilizer Industry Association's Potash Committee.

He was graduated from Georgetown University with a major in government, is married and has three children.

CASE IH NO. 1 Engine Oil Reduces Operating Costs

High-quality Case IH No. 1™ engine oil offers advantages that competitive CG-4 engine oils simply can't match. It progects your engine againts the harmful effects of piston deposits, soot and cold temperature and ensures engines run better longer. Plus, Case engineering recently announced that using Case IH No. 1 engine oil allows the extended drain interval to be increased from 250 hours to 300 hours for MX Series tractors. That's a 20% increase

Money For Farmers' Forum Feb. 16

LEWSIVILLE (Chester Co.) — The Elk Creeks Watershed Assoc., Inc. (ECWA) has scheduled a forum and open house titled "Money for Farmers" to present new and current funding options and strategies and funds for preserving farmland for the next generation.

The forum is scheduled Monday, Feb. 16, from 7 p.m.-9:30 p.m. at the Elk Township Building in Lewisville.

Contact Anna B. Francis at (610) 869-7661 or Melanie Hesse at (610) 932-3220.

The Elk Creeks Watershed Association, Inc. (ECWA) is a non-profit all-volunteer public outreach and educational organization committed to maintaining and improving the quality of the natural resources of the Elk Creeks Watershed.

ECWA values farms and open space as one of our most important assets and resources. Therefore, ECWA seeks to form alliances with farmers in the Elk Creeks Watershed. By hearing the needs and concerns of the farmers, ECWA can become better informed as to how to better serve the agricultural community, as well as save farmland and open space.

"Money for Farmers" is a special Open House and Forum offering a wide variety of funding and estate options for farmers and land owners. Participants and programs include the Chester County Land Preservation Board, presenting information on selling land development rights; the Brandywine River Conservancy Environmental Management Center, presenting information on land easements and tax strategies for preserving farmland from one generation to the next; the Farmers Market Trust, on opportunities for direct sales and Farmers Markets; USDA Farm Service Agency and Natural Resources Conservation Service as well as the Chester County Conservation District presenting information on a numerous array of new and current sources of funds for farmers and technical assistance available.

The open house will begin at 7 p.m. with an informal reception with refreshments served. Between 7:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. each agency and organization will briefly introduce their representatives and the wide variety of funding programs and assistance they have to offer. From 8:30 p.m.-9:30 p.m., each representative will be available display tables to meet with attendees, answer questions, and hand out information and brochures.

The Elks Creeks Watershed includes the drainage areas of the Big and Little Elk Creeks which flows southward through 10 municipalities in southern Chester County, including the townships of Londonderry, West Fallowfield, Upper Oxford, Lower Oxford, East Nottingham, Elk, Penn, New London, Franklin, and Oxford Borough. The Elk Creeks tributaries total more than 96 linear stream miles in Pa.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. Offers a Tool of Perfection!

Condition, smooth and mix in one pass.

Keep your bed intact and ready for planting with Unverferth's Perfecta® II cultivator.

Heavy duty, varied depth s-tines first break the crust while maintaining the bed's shape, followed by spike tooth leveling bars to smooth the soil and incorporate chemicals Follow this up with the aggressive roller basket to crumble and firm the soil, and you're ready to plant
The PERFECTA II is available in row spacings from 30" to 80" See your Unverferth dealer for a demonstration,

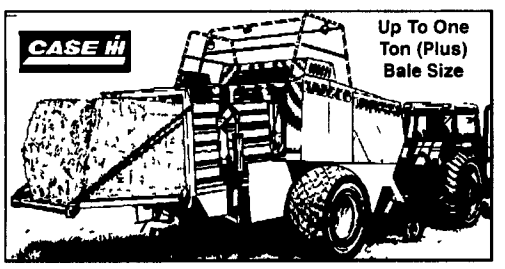
New Case IH 8580 Baler In Stock at Binkley & Hurst Bros. With Service After The Sale!



Case IH 8580 Center-Line Rectangular Baler

The Case International 8580 is designed for commercial producers and large hay operations that have big package needs With a 46 5" x 50 0 ' (1 18 x 1 27 m) bale chamber the 8580 can form a bale up to 108" long, weighing up to 2,200 lbs (1000 kg) Just right for efficient handling stacking and trucking

TOP-END PRODUCTION

The 8580 is no ordinary baler This system is designed for high-capacity hay production The 8580 can pack the equivalent of 20 to 40 conventional rectangular bales into a single package, and is capable of producing over 200 bales a day Also, storage requirements are actually reduced versus the equivalent tonnage of small rectangular bales This size bale is convenient for transport, and handling and stacking these bales is a snap too They're much more manageable and stack better than round bales that are comparable in weight The best part about the 8580 though, is that it makes high-quality, weather-tight bales You won't find another line of balers that makes better quality hay It all begins with the center-line design— the same concept used on all Case International rectangular balers From the time the crop is swept up by the wide, low-profile pickup until it exits the bale chamber, it moves in a straight line The end product—a uniform bale that cures evenly for high-quality hay These bales feed better than others do, too Just cut the twine and break off as many flakes as your livestock need Or, they re easily ground or processed for feeding in either dairy or beef operations

QUALITY CONSTRUCTION

We know how critical field performance is to your success reliability is expected when buying any new piece of equipment That's why the 8580 is designed for ease of operation and built to last Its 18,700 lb weight is a testament to the amount of steel that goes into building one Its main frame, axle and hitch are high-strength, welded box-beams constructed to resist the twisting forces of rough terrain It doesn t stop there The massive gearbox transmits high torque loads, and a 460 lb flywheel absorbs and overcomes peak loads for smoother operation And, the 8580 features heavy-duty packer and stuffer fingers, as well as a heavy-duty plunger with a short 30-inch stroke length and 25 4 stroke-per-minute speed for reduced wear while being gentle on tender crops

RENT US For Your Lagoon Cleaning

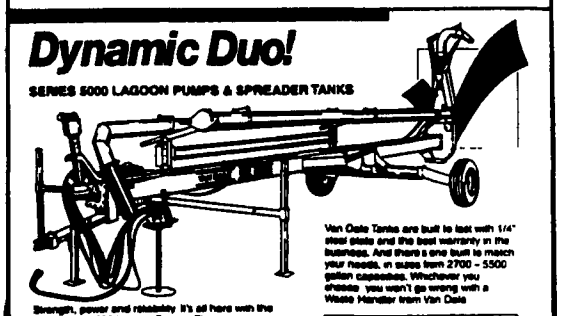
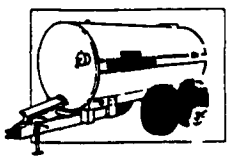
SERIES 5000 LAGOON PUMPS & SPREADER TANKS



Van Dale Tanks are built to last with 1/4" steel plate and the best warranty in the business. And there's one built to match your needs, in sizes from 2700 - 5500 gallon capacities. Whichever you choose, you won't go wrong with a Waste Handler from Van Dale.

Strength, power and reliability. It's all here with the new Series 5000 Lagoon Pumps. These pumps have the perfect combination of agitation volume and pressure required to break up hard surface crust or bottom manure solids with speed and power. And with up to 5000 G.P.M. agitation capacity, it can blast a stream of manure 100' or more in any direction to create an easy pumping and spreading slurry. The new Series 5000 - trailer mounted or 3-point hitch, by far the fastest and easiest to operate pumps on the market.



THE VAN DALE

CHECK OUT THESE FEATURES
- Replaceable Steering Assembly
- Hydraulic Control from the Tractor Seat

SERVICEABILITY:

One Reason Case IH MAGNUMs are the BEST Value in 2WD Tractors

MAGNUM Tractors Makes Maintenance Manageable!

Performing proper maintenance means better productivity, longer life and eventually a better resale value for your Case IH 8900 MAGNUM tractor. There are many features that make regular maintenance easy.

- The tilt-up hood swings out of your way - no tools required!
- Gas assist cylinders make ground-level access to the engine easy.
- Remove side panels without tools and have complete access to key maintenance points.
- Open just one panel to check daily service points.
- A longer handle makes closing the hood easier.
- Dual-element air filter stays cleaner longer.
- Spin-on oil filters mount vertically to prevent leaks and spills.
- Easy to remove cab air filters keep the heating and cooling systems running at top performance.

HOOBER, Inc's Factory-trained Tractor Service Techs Specialize in servicing and repairing tractors. They know how to get the most from your MAGNUM tractor.

Reserve your RENTAL MAGNUM Early This Spring.

ENVIORNMENTALLY SAFE AUTOMATIC PARTS WASHERS IN A SIZE & MODEL TO MEET YOUR NEEDS.

Clean parts in minutes with hot water and biodegradable detergents. No more solvents.

Simply put your parts in the washer, close the door, set the timer, and work on something else. Come back to clean parts in minutes. It's that simple. Now you can increase your production and stop using your expensive labor to scrub and wash parts by hand in a solvent tank. No more waiting for parts to soak. No more solvent disposal problems. In just minutes you will have clean, oil free parts without solvents.

There is no comparison!

- Hand to fully automatic cleaning.
- Equipment for production and maintenance cleaning.
- Batch and continuous cleaning.
- Meets OSHA/EPA requirements.

Reel Time Savings to Real Farmers

"We feed 100 milk cows and a total of 150 animals with four loads per day at three different locations We save 1½ - 2 hours of feeding time every day with our Knight Reel Auggie tow"

Russ and Kris Schroeder
Agriprize Holsteins – Horicon Wisconsin

"We feed a total of 140 head with 52 milking Before our Knight Reel Auggie, feeding a TMR took us 1½ hours twice a day Now each feeding takes approximately ½ hour"

John and Harry Nooyen
Brabantdale Farms – Narvan, Ontario, Canada

"We feed about 200 head per day with an average of 100 miling We owned a 4-auger midxer before Our Knight Reel Auggie has a shorter mixing time with a superior blended ration"

Wayne and Bradley Beidel
Beidel Brothers – Newbury Pennsylvania

"We mix 5 loads per day to feed 650 head Our Knight Reel Auggie mixes faster and unloads faster than the auger mixers that we previously owned Drive through feeding with our tow model has cut our feeding time by two-thirds"

Warren and Dave Otto
Otto Farms – Valders Wisconsin

The 3000 Series KNIGHT Reel Auggie® is available in tow, truck, and stationary models.

Mixing capacities from 147-600 cubic feet.

- Fast
- Versatile
- Economical
- Durable
- Innovative

The M&W DYNA-DRIVE is a unique ground-driven, rotary, surface cultivator that creates the ideal seedbed in a single pass at speeds up to 10 MPH. The dual speed twin rotor system shatters the soil without smearing, slabbing, or crusting while it maintains residue levels high enough to meet soil conservation compliance requirements. Available in working widths ranging from 6' 8" to 16' 1", the DYNA-DRIVE can cover up to 16 acres per hour, saving time money and effort.

Conservation Tillage	Dual Wheels
Rotary Cutters	Disc Mowers

LUCK//NOW MIXER FEEDERS "P" SERIES

Since 1979 LUCK//NOW Mixer Feeders have been recognized as one of the most dependable and strongest built mixers in the field.

To enhance its existing line of Mixer Feeders, LUCK//NOW introduces the "P" Series of Mixer Feeders with six models ranging in size from the Model 300 with a mixing capacity of 310 cubic ft., to the Model 575 with a mixing capacity of 625 cubic ft.

The Large diameter augers in all the "P" Series Mixer feeders are capable of giving the mix required, from rations with well cured, long stemmed legume-type hay, to mixes with green grass, and mixes with silage and commodities. Better milk production, better weight gains and greatly improved animal health are just some of the results of a finely-tuned feed ration.

Osteomyelitis — One Cause Of Painful Swollen Joints

Dr. Carol V. Gay
Professor of Cell Biology
And Poultry Science

The articulating surfaces of bones within joints are protected by a rubbery whitish material known as cartilage.

In rapidly growing birds, cartilage at the ends of long bones such as in the leg contains a growth center called growth plate cartilage. Growth plates are notably thick and their surfaces, which are attached to the ends of long bones, are penetrated by many tiny capillaries.

In most tissues, capillaries form a branching network of tubes between a vein and an artery and serve as the mechanism for exchanging oxygen and carbon dioxide. In growth cartilage, however, the capillaries end as blind tubes. Instead of blood flowing into and through the cartilage, there is just a sluggish ebb and flow of blood within the short dead-ended capillaries.

This system works fine under normal circumstances. Cartilage exists at surprisingly low oxygen concentrations and is well-adjusted to the poor blood supply. Normally, cartilage can divide, grow, mineralize, and become a template upon which bone forms, resulting in lengthening of the leg bones. The interface between the growth plate and underlying bone is susceptible to infections such as osteomyelitis.

Osteomyelitis, inflammation of bone, is a condition that develops when bacteria gain entry into the bloodstream and become lodged in tissue where they can multiply. The most common kinds of bacteria involved are those with exceedingly sticky surfaces, such as several types of staphylococcus.

The slowed movement of blood in the dead-end capillaries allows time for bacteria to enter the capillaries and adhere. There, the conditions for bacterial growth are ideal — there is an ample supply of nutrients dissolved in blood and the temperature is nicely warm. Under such conditions bacteria multiply rapidly, dividing as frequently as every 20 minutes.

Cells of the immune system (white blood cells) have poor access to the region because of impaired blood flow, and so cannot mount a successful immune attack. Any region of bone that becomes injured can develop osteomyelitis, but the growth regions are the most susceptible because of the unique structure of the blood supply. Hence, growing birds are the most susceptible.

Osteomyelitis in early stages will respond to antibiotics; however, treatment is impaired for the same reason that bacteria became lodged in the cartilage in the first place — sluggish blood flow. To be successful, treatment has to be early, aggressive, and persistent. Well-established bacterial infection, if not fatal, results in degeneration of bone and associated joints.

RETURNS FOR FEEDING SILAGE TO STEERS

A recent report from DiConstanzo et. al. in Minnesota has shown returns for the farmer-feeder for differing levels of corn silage in the diet of feedlot steers. In this trial, yearling steers weighing an average of 865 pounds were fed at 12 percent, 24 percent, 36 percent or 48 percent of their diet dry matter as corn silage.

As a measure of return for the farmer-feeder, the returns per acre of corn or the added value of the corn and silage were calculated. Corn yields were set at 150 bushel per acre of dry corn and 18 tons per acre of silage. Steers were fed to have half of each group reach choice quality grade before slaughter. In this case, the steers fed 12 percent and 24 percent silage diets were fed for 128 days, while the remaining two groups were fed for 163 days.

The results indicated net return per acre or to feeding was similar for steers fed 12, 24, and 36 percent silage in the diet when corn silage was priced at 10.5 times the price of corn grain. This was due to similar measures of steer performance at these three levels of intake. Average daily gains were 3.29, 3.23, and 3.16 for 12 percent, 24 percent, and 36 percent diets, respectively.

However, there was a linear increase in feed intake per 100 pounds of weight gain as the amount of silage increased in the diet. Further, the decrease in feed efficiency was most dramatic at the 48 percent silage level (8.18 pounds of feed dry matter per pound of weight gain compared to 6.7, 7.1, and 7.5 pounds of feed per pound of weight gain for 12, 24, and 36 percent diets respectively.) This loss of feed efficiency is due both to a lower energy concentration of the diet, as well as the effects of increased maintenance cost for the steers on higher silage diets. This is shown by the fact that both live weights and carcass weights were significantly higher for the steers on 48 percent silage diets before they reached slaughter endpoints. This resulted in more animal weight being maintained over a longer period of time with 48 percent of the diet as silage.

While not determined in this report, the additional cost of ownership for 35 days for the steers on 36 percent and 48 percent silage diets must be accounted for. This would include both additional feed costs, yardage costs, and both feed and cattle interest costs. The report indicated select and choice carcasses had an average price of $109/cwt of carcass weight, while achieving half choice carcasses as intended. Under these price conditions, net return to feeding or per acre was highest at the 36 percent silage level of the diet when corn silage was priced at cost of production ($20.24 per ton.) With corn yields of 150 bushels of grain or 18 tons of silage, feeding these cattle increased the value of the corn crop by $.75 per bushel for the grain and $6.20 per ton for the silage.

This result, of course, has some pretty important stipulations, and represents a very small window of steer prices and corn yields. Under Pennsylvania conditions, we could certainly expect less dry corn production, but probably more silage production per acre. This would probably favor the higher silage diet for economic returns. That would be offset, however, by price and market conditions. It would generally be unacceptable to market steers at 50 percent choice, so additional feed and time would have to be accounted for under our conditions. Secondly, to reach a desirable level of choice carcasses, it is clear from this study there would be diminishing returns to diets that are more than 36 percent silage because of the reductions in feed efficiencies and increased costs for extended feeding periods.

Corn silage has often been recognized as the leading crop in feed energy produced per acre. However, there are some limitations on how much silage can be included in the diets of feedlot steers.

PCA/Pfizer Cattleman's College Planned

The next edition of the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association and Pfizer Animal Health Cattleman's College has been set for Feb. 28 in Canonsburg (in the Pittsburgh area.) This is the first time in a number of years the annual conference has been held in western Pennsylvania.

The program includes a featured presentation by Dr. Gary Weber of the National Cattleman's Beef Association in Washington, D.C. Weber has been in the forefront of efforts on the national scale to inform producers and the public about such issues as BSE and E. Coli contamination. In fact, he was a part of the infamous episode on the Ophra Winfrey T.V. show. Also included on the program will be informative sessions about implanting strategies, fly control, cost discovery, and control in cow herds, and controlling internal parasites.

Dwight Hess, a cattle feeder from Lancaster County, will discuss his methods of selection and pricing of feeder cattle for his cattle feeding operation. Information about the program and registration materials can be obtained from the PCA office by calling (814) 692-4208.

Santorum Urges USDA to Include Pennsylvania in Dairy Options Program

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. Senator Rick Santorum (R-PA), a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, today praised Agriculture secretary Dan Glickman and the USDA for moving forward on a new Dairy Option Pilot Program for dairy farmers and again urged him to include Pennsylvania in the program. According to a recent official announcement from the USDA, the pilot program will be established to privde pricing guarantees for dairy farmers through a cost-sharing agreement with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Senator Santorum has, over the past year, repeatedly encouraged the Agriculture Department to adopt such a program to better protect farmers from exposure to serious price fluctuations within the dairy industry. Most recently in September 1997, senator Santorum wrote to Secretary Glickman urging the creation of an options pilot program and noting the importance of such a program to dairy farmers in the country. The program, which is scheduled to begin this spring, is limted to six counties in six different states still to be selected by the Agriculture Department.

"I have long held the position that we must focus energy and attention on seeing that our dairy producers have the tools in place, such as a viable futures market for dairy, to manage price risks," said Senator Santorum. "This pilot program will give dairy producers the skills and the experience of risk management to better hedge against price fluctuations in the market. I commend Secretary Glickman for taking the initiative to begin testing a program that is vital for the support of dairy farmers in this country and I urge him today to include Pennsylvania's dairy farmers in this program."

According to a release from the USDA. the pilot program will occur over a six month period for each group of participants During that period, participants must hedge between 200,000 pounds and 600,000 pounds of milk production. USDA will pay $30 in transaction costs and 80 percent of the options premium costs for producers who participate in the program. Dairy farmers will then pay the remaining 20 percent.

Officially titled the Dairy Options Pilot, this program will be run by the USDA's Risk Management Agency and represents the first risk management instrument available to the dairy industry through USDA. Participating states are required to attend free training sessions hosted by USDA.

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

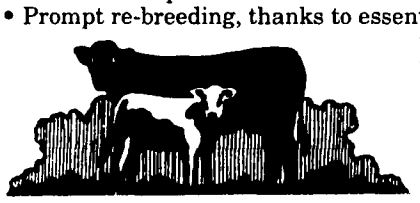
• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients



For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

When agriculture is your life, the equipment choice is Eby.

EBY is the leading manufacturer of aluminum bodies and trailers for agri-transportation. Our products are designed for superior strength, reduced weight for greater payload capacity, minimum maintenance and higher resale value. In addition to premium standard features, we offer full custom options built to your specs.

EBY's complete line includes models for every requirement:

- Gooseneck Trailers- lengths 14' - 32'; widths 7', 7'6", 8' and 8'6"
- Bumper Hitch Trailers- lengths 12' - 18'
- Grain Bodies- lengths to 24', plus landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'
- Flatbed Bodies- lengths to 32' in 5 widths
- Landscape Bodies- lengths to 12'

For quality equipment and customer service that works as hard as you do, nobody offers more than EBY.

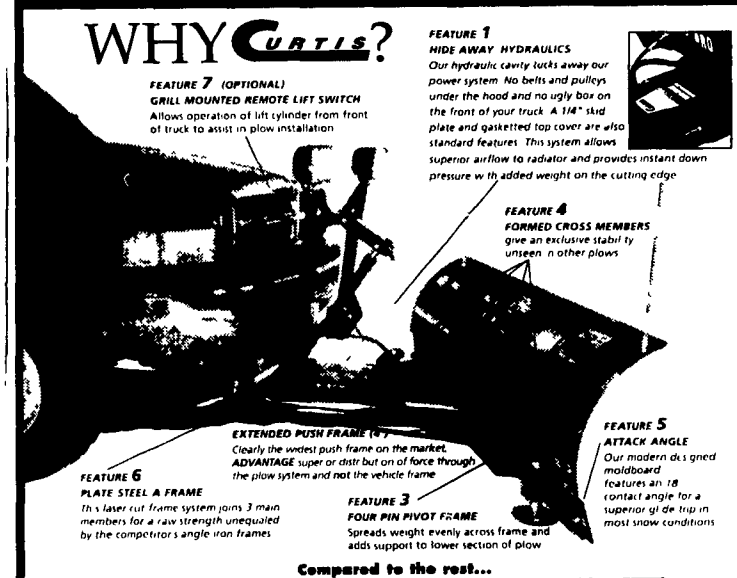
WHY CURTIS?



FEATURE 1
HIDE AWAY HYDRAULICS
Our hydraulic cavity tucks away our power system No belts and pulleys under the hood and no ugly box on the front of your truck A 1/4" skid plate and gasketted top cover are also standard features This system allows superior airflow to radiator and provides instant down pressure w th added weight on the cutting edge
FEATURE 7 (OPTIONAL)
GRILL MOUNTED REMOTE LIFT SWITCH
Allows operation of lift cylinder from front of truck to assist in plow installation
FEATURE 4
FORMED CROSS MEMBERS
give an exclusive stabil ty unseen n other plows
EXTENDED PUSH FRAME (4)
Clearly the widest push frame on the market. ADVANTAGE super or distr but on of force through the plow system and not the vehicle frame
FEATURE 6
PLATE STEEL A FRAME
Th s laser cut frame system joins 3 main members for a raw strength unequaled by the competitor s angle iron frames
FOUR PIN PIVOT FRAME
Spreads weight evenly across frame and adds support to lower section of plow
FEATURE 5
ATTACK ANGLE
Our modern des gned moldboard features an 18 contact angle for a superior gl de trip in most snow conditions

CORN TALK

Corn Talk, Lancaster Farming, Saturday, January 24, 1998

McPhersons Cultivate A-Maize-Ing Entertainment

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

NEW PARK (York Co.) — Don't cut through the corn. Don't pull off any ears. No running. No cigarettes!

Got those rules? Then you're ready to take on the challenge of Maize Quest.

After an introductory initiation to the fine art of safely negotiating their way through a corn field, including a pointed warning about how cigarettes can start fires in a dry field, several thousand people did just that last fall at the McPherson family's Maple Lawn Farms, New Park. The southern York County corn maze was one of several such consumer-entertainment outreaches that have been cultivated around the region in the last few years.

And a gleeful cluster of chattering church-group members gathered to add yet another section to their map of the intricate corn maze. If they could complete the map, it would show them the way out.

Maize Quest was truly a family endeavor of the Paul and Gail McPherson clan, longtime advocates of educating the consuming public about where food originates. From their U-pick orchard to periodic newsletters sent to a wide mailing list of customers, the McPherson's Maple Lawn fruit and grain operation has always been on the leading edge of agriculture-education activism.

Sharing in the major planning and implementation of Maize Quest, with its heavy emphasis on information along with entertainment, were siblings Hugh and Gretchen McPherson. Hugh, a recent Penn State graduate with an ag business degree, combined his interest in undertaking a new farm venture with the art degree of his sister, Gretchen, who lives in California.

Their brainstorming birthed the Maize Quest idea months before the first corn seed went into the soil. Hugh had heard about other mazes in the area and saw it as an extension and alternative use of the farm's normal planting of a large acreage of grain corn. They envisioned a corn maze that would not only entertain visitors, but

Despite a year of drought, the attraction drew a lot of visitors who came back twice, or more, during Maize Quest's season, Aug. 2 through Nov. 1.

PENNSYLVANIA MASTER CORN GROWERS ASSOCIATION

President's Message

Chris Kimmel
President, PMCGA

The Pennsylvania Corn Checkoff Program Study committee recently sent out 400 surveys to large corn producers in Pennsylvania. The goal of the committee was to get an idea of what these producers thought about a possible corn checkoff.

More than 25 percent of these surveys were returned. The committee was very pleased by this response. According to the results of the surveys received, it is evident at this time that there is not enough support for a referendum vote on a corn checkoff program in Pennsylvania.

The results of the surveys are acceptable to the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association. The association was asked by the National Corn Growers Association and several neighboring states to look into the possibility of a Pennsylvania state corn checkoff. As a result, the Pennsylvania Committee was formed and work was begun to determine the thoughts of Pennsylvania's corn producers on this matter.

I would still like to enccurage you to become a member of the PMCGA. We do a lot to promote your product in Pennsylvania as well as work with the NCGA for export programs and the development of new uses for corn.

See our application form in this issue and our special three-year membership plan.

Corn Grazing Supplements Cool Season Crops

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) – The "summer slump" is a predictable event for pasture managers using intensive grazing. When managing total feed resources in midsummer, the approach varies with the operation.

Some producers have enough acres per animal that they can increase paddock numbers and therefore can maintain feed intake from pasture. Some farm operations have high animal densities per acre. These producers must either provide supplemental stored feed with pasture or rest the dormant perennial pastures and rely on warm season crops.

In Berks County, we have cautiously been encouraging graziers that have acres devoted to summer annuals to experiment growing different warm season annual

Weather, High Yield Management At Corn, Soybean Conference

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — At the Pennsylvania Corn and Soybean Conference, scheduled Friday, Feb. 13 here at the Holiday Inn, weather patterns and high yield management are among the topics featured.

Weather patterns and their effects on crop production will be addressed by Paul Knight, Pennsylvania State climatologist. Knight is also known for his co-host role on Weather World, a popular weather television program produced by WPSX TV.

Managing for high yields will be addressed by Dr. Joe Heckman of Rutger's University. Heckman has managed a high-yield corn program at Rutgers for eight years and has regularly achieved yields of more than 250 bushels per acre. Heckman's research has shown responses to some unusual fer-

Gretchen spent four months last winter developing and designing the circular maze, doing library research for authentication of her ideas. Three story lines were planned as part of the maze, from the Mayan civilization's history of corn cultivation, then moving into the story of how fruit is grown, and ending with a history of Maple Lawn's 50 years of agriculture production.

Stay on the paths and don't cut through the ribboned sides of the 8,000-plus feet of hand-groomed trails.

Don't cheat, or another group might hit you with their "flag."

Don't hurt the corn!

So, off they would go, small groups of no more than a half-dozen, adults accompanying children and reminding them of the rules spelled out carefully by Hugh McPherson and his employee team on hand for several weekends last fall to oversee the $6 per person maize-maze challenge. Each group was given a small, brightly colored flag with a long pole, which could be held up in "surrender" if the group caved in and needed rescued from the intricate, criss-crossing conglomeration of paths through the six-foot tall corn.

"They were absolutely great," praised Hugh of the up to 10 employees, mostly in their early 20s, who made up the maze team, helping with everything from first layout to welcoming the last customers. "And they were excited about it."

Getting the corn tall enough in one of the area's worst drought summers was just one of the challenges tackled by McPherson and his maze creation team.

The design developed by artist Gretchen had to be laid out, block by graph-paper block; when the corn was a few inches tall. Maze-teammates spent nearly a month with hoes in their hands, hoeing out corn plants where the 8,000 feet of paths through two acres were plotted. Those paths were later tilled and raked smooth for easier walking.

During the hottest week of summer, the team constructed an 8-foot-high, 40-foot-long, self-supporting woodent bridge inside the maze; it was a winner with players because they could get a topside view of the layout. A central fountain, around which the entire maze revolved (since all agriculture revolves around and is dependent on water), was designed and constructed with farm-handy materials such as field-stone, black plastic sheeting, and a circulating pump.

Then, when the rains simply refused to come, the McPhersons ultimately made a choice to irrigate the plot from their four-acre pond, so that the corn would reach adequate height for maze use. It was an added expense for what was proving to be an already-then costly field of corn.

"I got too hot."

"Is this annual or perennial corn?"

Some visitors came back twice, or more, during Maize Quest's season, which ran Thursday through Sundays, Aug. 2 through Nov. 1. Some came to experience the night maze, made extra difficult by flashlight-navigation through the intricate, wandering pattern, then returned to see if it was any easier by sunshine and daylight.

About 80 percent of the participants, McPherson estimated, took time to read at least some of the dozens of signs and pieces of historic and educational materials about agriculture that were posted along the four-season-progression of the maze. Each season was marked with its own color of plastic tape strung along the maze paths to keep visitors on the paths. Most stayed inside the ribbons. Some didn't.

"Maintenance was a major effort," said McPherson. As the several weekends the maze was open progressed, the ribbons became increasingly tattered and in need of daily retying and replacing.

Maize Quest was especially innovative in that McPherson developed and designed a unique stamping system, with sections of the stamper scattered at 17 spots among the maze. As players reached that point in the maze, they stamped that portion of the map on a mapping paper they had been given, using a device which located it at the proper spot. If they collected a stamp from each of the 17 points, they had a complete map. Also, on entrance, each group was given a Maize Quest 13-point questionnaire, with the answers scattered throughout the educational information. Both the map and question sheet lent additional challenge and learning opportunities to negotiating the tricky, interwoven paths.

McPherson estimated that, on average, players took from 45 to 90 minutes to complete their trip through the complicated maze, including time to read the informational materials.

"People would help each other — and there were a few cheaters," he shrugged. "Once the corn began drying down and you could see through it, it was tempting for some to take shortcuts." Players observed taking shortcuts and knocking down stalks were asked to exit the game.

While mazes have become popular forms of fall entertainment in recent years, McPherson was quick to emphasize that the project was "not a big moneymaker." The number of participants was somewhat below expectations when rain finally came, it was on what were expected to be the two largest weekends of attendance, just before Halloween.

Despite the gliches of drought, followed by the ultimely rains, McPherson closed up shop at the maze registration booth with typical farmer optimism, looking ahead to the challenge of creating another one next year.

"It was the first to incorporate some of the special features we have," he noted, looking ahead with plans to add to and expand some of the unique properties of Maize Quest. For now, he's not telling any of his secrets.

If you want to know what surprises Hugh McPherson and his team have up their sleeves for this year, you'll have to take the maize-maze challenge this fall and see them for yourself.

Hugh McPherson and Jill Hershey register visitors for their turns at going through the maze.

Acres Bid Into CRP

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Preliminary estimates from USDA indicate that the 16th Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) sign-up, which concluded Nov. 14, was a successful one.

Data from Farm service Agency field offices show that USDA received approximately 125,404 offers to enroll 9,449,702 acres of land in the program, but USDA notes than final numbers may vary.

"Producers continue to show interest in the CRP," Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said. "I am confident this will allow the department to continue to enroll acres that provide significant environmental benefits relative to cost."

All land that is enrolled in the program must compete for acceptance based on an environmental benefit index that USDA says will ensure fair and equal consideration for all offers and all types of land. Producers will be notified of acreage acceptance by early February.

crops to supplement the cool season crops. This recommendation is for graziers that have high stocking rates or are on drought-prone soils.

Grazing corn is one such annual. We have experienced two seasons with grazing corn, grown on shale soils. In 1996, Brian and Karen Mohn, PAPA Farm, Bethel, successfully used corn for grazing with their commercial cow-calf herd.

Cows readily consumed corn planted on eight acres. The corns used were Baldridge Grazing Maize and the hybrid corn selected by the Mohns. Baldridge Grazing Maize is a corn selected for grazing and forage feed value and is available from Baldridge Hybrids, Cherry Fork, Ohio.

We were confident that cows would accept the corn, so we decided to expand our experience with grazing corn. In 1997, Pat Shea, Hamburg, planted 14 acres of corn for grazing, using three different planting dates. He also compared two different corns - a silage corn and Baldridge Grazing Maize. The goal of our trial was to 1) provide corn to lactating Jersey dairy cows for summer feed, 2) compare the nutritional value of Baldridge Grazing Maize and the farmer's own corn, and 3) evaluate the crop enterprise record for the crop.

Our experiences growing the corn were as follows:

1. Uneven emergence due to poor planting placement into shale soil decreased our population significantly. It is recommended to plant grazing corn at a population of 40,000 plants per acre. We would recommend that corn be planted using a corn planter in 30 inches and then doubling back between the row to create 15-inch rows. (This planting technique was used by Mohn in 1996 with success). A regular grain drill is not recommended.

2. Low population and cool temperatures that delayed plant growth and development, allowed annual weeds to emerge, thus necessitating a post-emerge weed control. This was an added cost, but something unexpected happened! Due to the lack of competition, annual crabgrass germinated and grew with the corn.

3. Initially, it took three days before the cows started grazing the corn.

4. The cows selected both corn and crabgrass. After milking, the cows would feed in the newly opened section of corn. They selected three to five mouthfuls of crabgrass and then one to three bites of corn. After two hours, the cows would feed on corn plants that were grazed previously.

5. The Jersey cows kept a tank production level of 45 pounds of milk on the corn and crabgrass, supplemented with 15 pounds of high moisture and/or dry ear corn, and minerals and vitamins. Grazing period was from July 28 to August 23.

6. Cows were reluctant to return to the new vegetation when the water source was over 500 feet. Instead, they returned to corn and crabgrass that was previously grazed. Thus, it is recommended that the water source be closer than 500 feet.

American Hero Keynotes Commodity Classic

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – U.S. Air Force Captain Scott O'Grady will keynote the 1998 Commodity Classic with an inspirational take of courage, faith, and patriotism.

The combined convention and trade show of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) and American Soybean Association (ASA) will be held Feb. 22-24 in Long Beach Calif.

O'Grady will speak at Monday's General Session, sponsored by DowElanco, about his incredible true-life struggle to evade captivity and survive in the hostile territory of war-torn Bosnia. In June of 1995, Captain O'Grady was helping enforce the NATO no-fly zone in the skies over Bosnia when a Soviet-made missile slammed into his F-16.

Captain O'Grady's presentation will focus on the story of how he managed to live through the missile impact, the techniques he used to survive in a barren and hostile landscape for six days, and the real story behind the daring rescue mission carried out by the U.S. Marines.

Corn Grazing Supplements

7. Acceptance and palatability of corn was high even after tassel. The current recommendation is to graze corn just before tassel for maximum nutritional value.

We collected the following data and are still in the process of compiling results: plant population stand, emerged tassels per treatment, fresh weight, dry matter weight, amounts rejected, nutritional analysis that includes protein, ADF, NDF, and minerals.

Our future plans include sharing results of this study with producers and setting goals for next year. Of particular interest is how the nutritional data compared among the two corn types. We would like to evaluate grazing corn with another warm season annual which is high in protein. We also would like to stockpile some of the corn.

To request a copy of our results, contact Mena Hautau and Clyde Myers, Extension Agent, Penn State Cooperative Extension - Berks County, PO Box 520, County Welfare Road, Leesport, PA 19533-0520, (610)378-1327, Fax (610)378-6971, e-mail berksext@psu.edu.

HIGH OIL CORN GETS MIXED REVIEWS IN 1997

During the past several years, high oil corn hybrids or blends have been introduced by the seed industry and marketed on a limited basis in our region.

The potential of these of added value corns is that they can be utilized by our poultry and livestock industry and could provide premium opportunities for corn producers as well.

Basically three factors influence the adoption of specialty corn as these high oils: markets, price, and agronomic performance. During 1997, we saw some activity in the development of local markets for high oil corn in addition to on farm feeding. That was a positive. We also saw some premiums offered for high oil corn, dependent on the oil content, in the 30 to 35 cents/bushel range. That too was a positive.

The difficulty was in the area of agronomic performance. There we saw some problems. These problems generally were centered on mediocre pollination in some, but not all, fields. The high oil corns on the market now are either hybrids or blends that utilize TOPCROSS technology. Historically, high oil hybrids have been difficult to develop that yielded competitively with normal hybrids.

A breeding method called TOPCROSS was developed by Dupont recently to introduce grain quality traits into corn without causing the yield drag. In the TOPCROSS technology, a high yielding hybrid is converted to a male sterile version (one that produces no viable pollen) and then this seed is blended with a high oil pollinator line. About 8-10 percent of the seed in the bag is the high oil pollinator line and these plants eventually are responsible for pollinating the entire field. The pollen from these plants causes the grain on all of the plants to have a larger than normal germ and an oil content of 7-7.5 percent compared to 3.5 percent for normal corn.

It may seem that relying on 8 percent of the plants for pollination is risky, but in most cases it is not, since the pollinator lines are heavy pollen producers and they shed pollen over a longer period than normal corn hybrids. The technology has been growing rapidly with over a million acres of TOPCROSS corn grown in 1997 in the U.S. and more acres expected in 1998.

The TOPCROSS blends are available from Dupont to many seed companies. Most have at least some experimental lines and some have had commercial products on the market for several years. Recently, Dupont acquired part of Pioneer, so now Pioneer has access to this technology as well. Performance studies are more difficult to conduct with the TOPCROSS blends since you need about 40 rows of isolation from normal corn. This makes it difficult to conduct many tests in our region where normal corn is everywhere and even more difficult to replicate TOPCROSS and normal corn comparisons.

Studies by my colleagues in Ohio and Wisconsin have shown that TOPCROSS blends perform comparable to normal corn, anywhere from about 10 percent lower to about 5 percent better. Industry data from Pennsylvania seemed to generally corroborate these results. Based on this information, it appears if we can get the TOPCROSS hybrids to yield similarly to the normal hybrids and get about a 10 percent premium, we should be able to come out ahead. This year, performance suffered since we encountered more pollination problems in some TOPCROSS fields than usual. Yields in some of these fields were off more like 30 percent compared to normal. These fields showed signs of poorer pollination than normal corn in adjacent fields, although in most of the situations I saw the normal corn did not have great pollination either. The poor pollination appeared to be a result of severe drought stress during July and rootworm beetle feeding on silks and tassels. In general, the pollinator plants were shorter than the grain parent plants and appeared tolerate the drought and rootworm damage less than the grain parent hybrid. Pollen shed may have been reduced or delayed more from the pollinator plants under these extreme conditions. Similar problems were reported in Ohio this year. We should also note that there were some good TOPCROSS fields throughout the state where pollination was good and yield appeared to be comparable to normal corn.

Between The Rows

Dr. Greg Roth
Penn State Agronomy Associate Professor

What does this mean for the future of high oil corn in our region? I think the TOPCROSS still provides us with an opportunity — but we have to cautious with it, continue to evaluate it, and learn to manage it carefully to minimize risks associated with the pollination process. If we can learn to manage it to improve yield during stress years like last year, the technology may have a place in our cropping systems.

Dr. Peter Thomison at Ohio State recently put together some management suggestions for TOPCROSS blends that I support. He suggests to try the following: 1) select fields with high yield potentials; 2) use crop rotations to minimize drought, rootworm, and disease stress potential; 3) isolate by at least 30 to 40 rows from normal corn; 4) select adapted TC blends with good yield potential; 5) prepare a uniform seedbed; 6) increase seeding by 2,000 plants per acre up to 30,000 plants per acre; 7) plant early to optimize oil yields; 8) scout fields during the season for potential pest problems, especially rootworm beetles; and 9) segregate the grain at harvest to preserve its identity.

As with any new hybrid, I would start conservatively on a few acres and evaluate the product compared to normal corns to determine the profit potential. If successful, I would gradually increase my acres accordingly.

So in 1997 reviews of high oil corn were mixed. In the future, we may see newer pollinators developed that contribute more to the final yield and are more drought tolerant. The technology may also bring us access to other grain quality traits. We should also gain more insight into the management needs of these blends under our conditions and where and when these products are a profitable alternative.

The 'Dead Zone'

Greg Roth
Department of Agronomy
Penn State

You may not have heard about the "Dead Zone" — or think it sounds like a horror movie title — but it may have serious implications for many U.S. corn producers in the future.

The Dead Zone is a 6,800-square mile area (slightly smaller than the state of New Jersey) in the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Louisiana and Texas that has appeared during the past four years.

Oxygen levels in the water in this area become so depleted that fish and shellfish in area either move out or die. The zone has reduced fish and shrimp catches in the region and is causing hardships among the those involved in fishing industry in Louisiana.

Scientists are not completely sure what causes the dead zone but many believe that fertilizers, manure, and sewage from the Mississippi River has caused an overfertilization of this area of the Gulf, which in turn causes a bloom of algae during the heat of the summer. When the algae die and decay, oxygen levels in the water are reduced to the point that fish and shrimp can't survive.

While the Dead Zone has appeared in the Gulf for some time, it doubled in size after the 1993 floods and has reappeared each summer since.

The American Farm Bureau and NCGA have both been actively monitoring the issue. Several articles in the press have drawn parallels between the Dead Zone problem and the Chesapeake Bay issue that we have experienced here in the Northeast. It may be that programs similar to those used in the Chesapeake watershed will be instituted in the Mississippi basin. This problem will be more difficult to manage than the Chesapeake, since the Mississippi watershed includes 31 states, most with an intensive agricultural base.

You can expect we will hear more on this issue in the future.

A premium quality galvanized auger designed for low maintenance operation.

Mayrath introduces the all new "InLine Drive" series of portable grain augers. Mayrath has combined operational efficiency with long term dependability providing you with a high quality, GALVANIZED auger at a very affordable price. The revolutionary "InLine Drive" system minimizes the number of moving parts ..greatly reducing costly downtime and maintenance in the future The unique "InLine Drive" design features an internally mounted gearbox inside of an expanded, bell shaped tube housing Auger flighting is positioned to allow a high volume of unrestricted grain flow around the internal gearbox. A new intake design utilizes double flighting and a cupped intake guard to offer a high capacity, complete cleanout operation. A specially engineered hopper bolts directly to top of the intake guard, further enhancing the augers capacity.

PENNSYLVANIA MASTER CORN GROWERS ASSOC., INC.

Corn Growers Called To Action To Shape NCGA's Future

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The NCGA has issued a call to action to corn growers at all levels to take an active role in defining and implementing programs of the new NCGA.

Growers are urged to act now to be a part of shaping their future, to get involved in determining and working on important national and international issues they care about while using their time and talents more efficiently.

The new NCGA features four Corn Action Teams (CATs), which are production and stewardship, customer and business development, public policy, and grower services. Each team's responsibility includes implementing programs, advising the Corn Board on policy positions, or requesting action from the board and appointing task forces to study focused problems or issues pertaining to that team.

The CATs will work on issues, programs, and positions that will result in improved profits for corn growers and the corn industry as a whole.

"We need to assess the talents and interests of corn growers and catalog areas of expertise so that they are readily available when issues arise," said Minnesota corn grower Gene Fynboh, chairman of the NCGA team which is overseeing the transition to the new NCGA.

"The application process will allow us to do just that. There are many talented, knowledgeable growers out there and we want to tap into their expertise and interests."

NCGA members, state association and corn checkoff members, and other prospective members can obtain application forms by contacting their state growers association, calling NCGA at (314) 275-9915 or by e-mailing NCGA at corninfo@ncga.

A FORCE Field Takes Corn To A New Level.

No other corn insecticide controls tough insect pests like rootworms, cutworms, wireworms and white grubs, better than a FORCE insecticide. But that's just one reason why farmers who've experienced a FORCE field of protection — in no till, minimum till and conventional tillage systems — stick with it year after year.

The other big reason is that FORCE is safe to birds, earthworms and you. Our 3G formulation lets you handle half as much FORCE as conventional granular insecticides, but it still gives you the same, tough, broad spectrum control.

'Mr. Membership' Honored By NCGA

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Minnesota corn grower Richard Peterson, long an avid membership recruiter for the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), was recently honored as "Mr. Membership" by the NCGA Board of Directors and President Ryland Utlaut for "being the man at the helm" as the organization's membership surpassed the 30,000 mark.

Peterson, chairman of the NCGA Field Services Committee for two-and-a-half years and past-president of the Minnesota Corn Growers Association, has been one of the nations' top NCGA recruiters year after year.

"He never goes anywhere without an application," said Utlaut, a corn grower from Grand Pass, Mo. "He is a credit to our membership program."

He noted that Peterson is unique in his ability to get corn growers excited about joining NCGA. "Just like the Nike commercial says, he just does it."

What is Peterson's motivation in his drive to constantly recruit new members?

"I'm sold on what NCGA is doing and the changes we're making. When I'm sold on something, it's easy for me to sell," Peterson said, adding that, as Field Services Committee chairman, he alone cannot take credit for taking NCGA past the 30,000 members level.

NCGA Warns Of Competitive Losses Because Of Poor River Infrastructure

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) has sounded the alarm regarding this country's inadequate river infrastructure.

The competitive edge the U.S. holds in world corn markets is seriously threatened and lost in the dust if corrective measures aren't taken soon, according to members of an NCGA transportation task force which recently returned from a fact-finding trip to Argentina to examine that country's improved corn production and marketing capacity.

"In a short time, they're going to be the tail that wags the dog if we don't get our infrastructure up to snuff," said task force member Greg Guenther, a corn grower from Belleville, Ill., referring to the $650 million upgrade of Argentina's barge system on the Parana River, the Argentinean equivalent to the Mississippi River. "They have 2,200 miles of river system with not one single lock. They don't have three-day waits to move 15 barges through. It's a superhighway to them."

Iowa corn grower Glenn Moeller, task force chairman, described Argentina's river infrastructure improvements as enthusiastic. "It was a wake-up call to American agriculture and the U.S. as a whole as to the competitive edge we could soon be losing," he said.

The comprehensive program undertaken by the Argentine government and shippers includes dredging to make way for larger ocean-going grain-hauling vessels and updating plants and terminals along 250 miles of the Parana.

"The issue for U.S. corn growers is the need to improve our river transportation system to move grain efficiently," explained John Green, NCGA's director of production and education. "In Argentina, we're seeing a river system that allows them easier and cheaper access to the oceans."

Attitude, said task force member Mike Randall, a corn grower from Dell Rapids, S.D. is a major contributing factor in Argentina's successful river upgrade programs. "They're willing to do what it takes to so that the river benefits agriculture, and that's what we should be striving for in this country."

Task force members also noted a federation of five South American countries dedicated to the development of the Parana River. In addition to Argentina, money for this development comes from Paraguay, Uruguay, Chile, and Brazil.

"I think that this fact-finding mission has given us a valuable firsthand view to take to Congress to try to impress upon them the importance of upgrading our river transportation infrastructure," said Guenther.

"It's imperative that the NCGA and corn growers of the United States personally learn the extent of these events (in Argentina) to help us in our lobby efforts," noted Green adding that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is studying the infrastructure on the upper Mississippi River, where many of the locks and dams are outdated and ill-equipped to handle the region's transportation needs. "We have encouraged the Corps to complete their navigation study and then move quickly on improving and upgrading these locks which are in terrible condition and a hindrance to navigation," he said. The Corps of Engineers study is due in late spring or early summer, 1998.

While the NCGA has taken a lead in pushing for improvements in the U.S. river infrastructure, the issue is not just an agricultural one, according to Guenther. "The fact that it's perceived to be (agricultural) is a tribute in a sense to the ag community," he said. "The NCGA and state corn grower organizations have been way ahead of the curve in recognizing the need to improve our transportation infrastructure, but there are a lot of other commodities besides corn that move on the river.

NCGA Passes 30,000 Membership Milestone

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — When historians take a look back at 1997 one conclusion will be clear. This had been a banner year for NCGA recruiting efforts.

The official tally in late October set a new record, going beyond the 30,000 mark to a record high of 30,360 members.

"Busting 30,000 has been something we've all been working to accomplish for a long time," said Mountain Lake, Minn., corn farmer Richard Peterson, chairman of NCGA's Field Services Committee.

Peterson points to efforts made by state associations as the primary reason for the new NCGA record.

"There was lots of hard work put in by many state recruiters and they deserve tremendous credit for making it happen," he said. Most notable, according to Peterson are states like Iowa, with the largest numeric increase and Kansas, with the highest percentage increase.

Peterson has been chairman of the NCGA Field Services Committee for the past two years and was re-elected at the August board meeting to again serve in this capacity through 1998.

He takes his NCGA recruiting job seriously and leads by example in September, he recruited 27 new members. "I figure if the chairman can't get new members, he can't expect others to do so," Peterson said.

State associations have devised different techniques to enhance their recruitment efforts. The Iowa Corn Growers Association uses the "divide and conquer" method. Most of Iowa's counties have an organized county association. From October to the end of March, a group of part-time staff field representatives helped recruiters in the counties by serving as sources of information and ideas as well as extra arms and legs.

"Our field reps serve as liaisons between membership staff and county recruiters," said Ray Hansen, Iowa's director of grower services. "The reps go to meetings and generally help the county association members feel like they are more in touch with our office. This helps a lot."

This year one Iowa county held an unusual call-a-thon, using cellular phones. "Recruiters would make calls on their cell phones while they were driving to a farm and tell the farmer, 'I'm on my way over and we really hope you'll renew your membership'," Hansen said. "Usually by the time they got there, the farmer would have the check already written out."

CORN ROW WIDTH STUDIES

Greg Roth
Department Of Agronomy
Penn State

Our past results with reducing row spacings have shown yield responses from about 0 to 10 percent, depending on the location.

It has been unclear what factors influence the response to row spacing, however. Some national summaries of research data on row spacing studies have suggested that the farther north you go, the greater the response to narrower rows should be. Positive benefits from row spacing studies in Michigan, Minnesota, and New York appear to confirm that.

This year we participated in row spacing studies at three locations: at the Steve Groff Farm in Holtwood, Lancaster County, at the Landisville research station in Lancaster County, and on the Tim Beardslee farm in Columbia Cross Roads, Bradford County. Each study had a little different objective and provided some more insight into narrow rows responses and management.

At the Groff farm, Steve Groff established replicated field length strips of Dekalb 618 at a plant population of about 25,000 plants per acre in both 15- and 30-inch rows in two different fields. Groff doubled-back using a Deere 7000 planter to achieve the narrow row spacings. We sampled the fields for silage yield by taking 1/500 acre hand samples prior to harvest.

Groff irrigated these two fields twice and, as a result, yields ran in the 21 ton per acre range. The narrow rows resulted in a 9 percent benefit or about 2.4 ton per acre advantage that was fairly consistent across the eight comparisons that we made on the farm.

We also tried to estimate the root mass resulting from 15- and 30-inch rows at two different times in the season, but were unable to show an advantage for the 15-inch rows at either time.

At our Landisville research farm, we conducted two studies with narrow-row corn. One was a weed control study to look at the benefits of narrow rows with a Roundup Resistant hybrid. In the second study we evaluated the effects of hybrid and planting date.

In the Roundup Ready narrow row study, we collaborated with Dr. Bill Curran and his team. Curran found only minor effects of row spacing on weed control with the 15-inch row spacing. Basically we found you pretty much need the same herbicide program in 15-inch rows that you do with the 30-inch rows.

The 15-inch rows provide a little more competition that may suppress weeds for future years but not enough to eliminate herbicides in this year. In this study, we saw no yield advantage to the 15-inch rows. Bill's studies also suggest that either multiple applications of Roundup or Roundup combined with a preemergence herbicide program may be necessary for acceptable weed control with the Roundup Ready corn hybrids.

In the planting date study at Landisville, we collaborated with John Yocum, Lancaster extension agent Bob Anderson, and Pioneer agronomist Joe Mayer to look at the influence of hybrid and planting date on row spacing response. Silage yield responses to narrow rows in this study averaged about 4 percent. The grain yield benefit was about 2 percent to narrow rows.

The upright leafed hybrid (33VO8) responded better to the narrow rows and high population than the 36K27 hybrid, with the less erect leaves. Increasing the population and reducing the row spacing resulted in a 2.2 tons per acre yield increase for the 33VO8 hybrid and a 1.3 tons per acre increase for the 36K27 hybrid.

Silage yields were also increased more with narrow rows when planted late, averaging a 1.7 tons per acre benefit from the late May and early June plantings and basically no benefit to narrow rows at the early and mid May planting dates.

At our Bradford County plot we evaluated the response to both row spacing and plant population. Here we saw a 2 tons per acre benefit to increasing the plant population from 29,000 plants per acre to 32,000, but no benefit from reducing the row width to 15 from 30 inches. The corn in this field was stressed because of the drought and delayed maturity and supports the notion that narrow row responses may be best in high yielding environments. Research conducted at Cornell seems to confirm this as well.

This is the third year we have done narrow row studies with Tim Beardslee and have found a yield benefit to narrow rows in one of the three years. However, we are still waiting for a normal year to occur in this area. The response to higher population this year agree with Beardslee 's philosophy on the need for 30,000 or more for silage production in his region.

The narrow row results from this year continue to suggest benefits occur in some but not all trials. Narrow row benefits may be greatest in high yield environments, at slightly high plant populations and perhaps corn for silage. Responses of different hybrids and planting dates will require more study. We hope to continue more research in this area next year.

Rail Crisis Continues To Draw Media Attention

WASHINGTON, D.C. — NCGA's lead in pushing for prioritization of grain shipments by the nation's railroads continued to receive national media attention in December.

CNN and CNN Financial News broadcast a news story which was taped Dec. 18 at an elevator co-op in Shenandoah, Iowa. The story featured excerpts from interviews with NCGA President Ryland Utlaut and Missouri Corn Growers Association President Charles Hurst and focused on some 150 million bushels of corn sitting on the ground as a result of inadequate rail transportation.

The story noted that, while farmers in the Midwest produced a near-record crop worth almost $30 billion in 1997, farmers could end up losing more than $100 million as a result of the systemic rail problems.

Now's The Time To Join Corn Growers

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) – PMCGA has announced continuing support for its Membership Incentive Program (MIP) being conducted in conjunction with a number of cooperating Pennsylvania seed companies.

The MIP with seed corn company sponsorship will entitle any corn grower who plants at least five acres of corn to a free bag of seed corn (standard size) with a three-year membership in PMCGA/NCGA.

This program applies to all three-year memberships, new or renewal. To participate, simply complete the membership form and indicate the brand of seed corn you would like to try. Remember the theme of the program is "Try Something New," so PMCGA hopes you will use this opportunity to experiment a bit and not just get a bag of free seed corn.

You will receive a certificate for a free bag of seed from the company chosen from PMCGA. You will make the ultimate decision about which hybrid he to receive in consultation with the local seed corn dealer for the company you selected. PMCGA will send the names and addresses by brand chosen to the appropriate seed corn company's statewide contact person and they will contact you.

Corn Utilization And Technology Conference Announced

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – The 1998 Corn Utilization and Technology Conference (CUTC '98), the corn industry's largest and most extensive conference, is scheduled for June 1-3 at the Hyatt Hotel, Union Station, St. Louis, Mo.

CUTC '98 is the premier forum for corn growers, corn refiners and researchers from around the world to explore new uses for corn, share technological know-how, equipment and supplies for the $27 billion dollar corn industry. This new industry meeting merges the popular Corn Utilization Conference, sponsored by National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) with the Corn Refiners Association (CRA) Technology Conference.

CUTC '98 agenda highlights include:

Coordinator· Rakesh Bajpai, University of Missouri

•Trade and Regulatory Issues
Coordinator: Bob Ashton, National Starch

•Emerging Technologies in Research Centers Coordinators: Larry Johnson, Iowa State University, Tony Pometto, Iowa State University

•Corn Traits and Genome
Coordinator: Jim McLaren, Inverizon International

•New Technology in Measurement Science
Coordinators: Marion Bradford, A.E. Staley, Venita Totten, CornProducts

•Novel Modifications
Coordinator: Brian Davison, Oak Ridge Laboratory

•Open Session

•Poster Session
Coordinator: Mike Tumbleson, University of Illinois

Many of the popular features from past conferences are included in CUTC '98. These include exhibits of corn processing equipment and technology and poster presentations on the latest university research related to corn and corn processing. In addition, a golf tournament sponsored by conference exhibitors and a tour of Monsanto's Biotech facility are being offered

For CUTC '98 registration information, contact NCGA's Amy Mercer at (314)275-9915, ext. 118, or by e-mail at mercer@ncga.com.

Biotechnology Is Focus Of First NCGA Issues Forum

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Biotechnology was the focus of an NCGA issue forum scheduled Jan. 8-9 in Washington, D.C.

The forum is part of a pilot project what will allow corn grower leaders to acquire in-depth knowledge of emerging issues.

The first forum is being held in early January in order to allow participants to use the information for NCGA resolutions and priority setting, focus on the legal, trade, scientific and policy aspects of biotechnology, featuring presentations by a number of experts in the field.

ESTABLISHING SWITCHGRASS IN CORN

Greg Roth
And Bill Curran
Department Of Agronomy
Penn State

A couple of years back we were asked to help out on a research project evaluating the potential for converting corn fields to switchgrass.

Switchgrass is a warm season perennial grass that provides excellent cover for pheasants, rabbits, and deer. It can also provide high yields of a medium quality forage during the August summer slump in production of the cool season grasses.

One problem with switchgrass is that it is slow to establish, with very low yields in the establishment year. It is difficult to take a year off of production just to get the crop established. In addition to the financial loss, there is the potential for weeds to invade during the establishment year, greatly reducing the potential success of the switchgrass.

Several conservation groups as well as other interest groups in the state would like to see more acres of switchgrass established to improve habitat and cover for some game species, used in riparian zones for soil stability and reduced nutrient runoff, as additional summer forage, or as a potential source for the biofuel industry. As a result, we have collaborated with Penn State researcher Dr. John Shaffer and USDA researcher Dr. Ron Schnabel to evaluate switchgrass establishment in corn.

Taking ideas from several farmers in the state who had tried this approach, we evaluated various herbicides, plant populations, hybrids, and nitrogen rates. Our basic approach was to no-till switchgrass into corn stubble in late April at a rate of about 13 pounds of switchgrass seed (pure live seed or PLS) per acre. In early May, we no-tilled corn into the field and treated it with a conventional Roundup plus 2 quarts per acre Bicep herbicide program.

In another part of the field we didn't plant any corn and instead evaluated a number of corn herbicides for their injury potential on the emerging switchgrass. There are a number of effective broadleaf herbicides that provide adequate safety to switchgrass. Therefore, we were particularly interested in examining herbicides that control annual grassy weeds such as foxtail.

Our switchgrass stands in the corn were adequate, but not as good as expected in the first year of establishment. However, on the positive side we were able to produce silage yields of about 20 tons per acre with minimal effect on the corn. None of the corn management factors appeared to have a major impact on the switchgrass, except our preemergence herbicide program (Bicep), which appeared to greatly reduce our first year switchgrass stand.

Even though our stands were thin the first year, the switchgrass filled in well during the second year in both fields we worked with. Now these fields are in their second and third years of production and the stands are providing excellent wildlife cover.

This fall a we got our reward from the project by seeing a fat doe bound out of the switchgrass on a December afternoon. We evaluated a number of herbicides for switchgrass tolerance including preemergence applications of atrazine, Bladex, Princep, Dual, and Bicep as well as post applications of Accent, Beacon, Basis, and Pursuit. In general, any of the treatments containing Dual or any of the post applied herbicides reduced the establishment year switchgrass stand or growth by at least 50 percent.

The three triazines (atrazine, Bladex, and Princep) caused little or no injury to the switchgrass. However, as in the corn trial, by the year after establishment, switchgrass stands had greatly improved in all treatments, although the best stands were still in the triazine treatments (I believe that some switchgrass plants recovered from the herbicide treatment, and other new plants emerged later in the season and the following year.)

Based on these results, several herbicide programs may be possible for establishing switchgrass in corn. However, the safest herbicide program should be based on the triazine herbicides. Atrazine plus Bladex, or Atrazine plus Princep applied at 2 to 3 pounds (total triazine) per acre should provide adequate safety for switchgrass establishment as well as some grassy weed control.

Although switchgrass in the nontriazine treatments appeared to recover somewhat by the second year, the reduction in switchgrass stand during establishment certainly raises concern about their utility in this cropping system. Perhaps increasing the switchgrass seeding rate or changing other management inputs might help the success of other corn herbicides, but these variables should first be adequately tested.

The best advise is to avoid establishing switchgrass in fields that had heavy annual grass populations (foxtail and panicum) within the previous two seasons and to use the triazines when necessary for suppression of susceptible weed species. While switchgrass is a great wildlife cover, it can be a challenge to control in no-till corn and soybeans. It is dormant in the spring when conventional herbicides are applied and, once established, tolerates most residual materials.

So in some of our continuous no-till corn and soybean fields switchgrass has spread via tillage and/or harvesting equipment has been become a problem. In tilled fields, it is not a

USDA Projects Record Corn Use This Year

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Despite a reduction in corn export numbers, USDA has again projected record corn use for this crop year.

The recent USDA figures project a total use of 9.415 billion bushels, 10 million bushels higher than the previous annual use high of 9.40 billion bushels in 1994-1995.

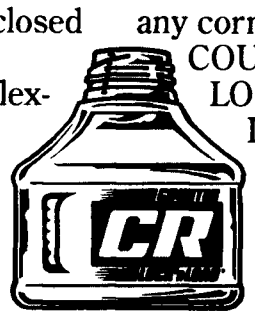
Exports are down 125 million bushels from last month's estimate, but domestic feed use is up 200 million bushels. Food, seed, and industrial use is also up 40 million bushels, due in part to higher than expected demand for ethanol and high fructose corn syrup.

National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) President Ryland Utlaut said he is encouraged, optimistic, and pleased with the USDA numbers.

"This shows there is excellent demand domestically for our crop," said Utlaut, noting that corn growers will continue working to expand this demand. "Figures showing higher domestic use than production paints a bright future for our commodity. At the same time we have some work ahead of us in the export arena, especially in Asia."

COUNTER® CR® LEAVES YOUR HERBICIDE OPTIONS OPEN.

When choosing an insecticide, it's important to keep your weed control options open. COUNTER® CR® systemic insecticide-nematicide in the LOCK'n LOAD® closed handling system offers herbicide flexibility, including the sulfonylurea (SU) herbicides. Field performance proves it. On more than 14,000,000 corn acres treated with COUNTER CR since 1992, results have shown superior insect control and flexibility with virtually any corn herbicide.



COUNTER CR LOCK'n LOAD. Longer lasting. Safer to handle. You can count on it.

Nation's Top Producers Set Sail For Commodity Classic

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – It's "anchors aweigh" for nearly 4,000 of the nation's top-producing farmers and industry leaders who are making plans to "Set Sail" in Southern California for the 1998 Commodity Classic.

The third annual combined convention and trade show of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) and American Soybean Association (ASA) will be held Feb. 22-24 at the Long Beach Convention Center in Long Beach, Calif.

"The continuing growth of the Commodity Classic and increasing quality of a diverse variety of educational sessions and exhibits makes it an outstanding event," said Tim Burrack, NCGA board member and convention chairman, "It is increasingly becoming the place to be."

"Each year there is an even greater wave of interest among fellow farmers and corporate partners in participating in Commodity Classic. Much of this combined event's success is due to Classic's unique opportunity to provide the latest information and technology at a sun and fun winter-get-away location," said Gordon Wassenaar, ASA executive committee member and convention co-chairman.

The joint convention program will feature profit-impacting educational sessions on a variety of topics including marketing, biotechnology, contract negotiations, farm management, profiting with new crops' enhanced traits, buffer initiatives, farm safety, risk management, farming with tracks, finding farm solutions on the World Wide Web, and other key "need-to-know" information.

The registration package includes:

•An opportunity to preview the latest technology at more than 540 trade show spaces. This high-quality trade show also serves as the convention's hub of activity with sponsored meals and special events.

•Monday's General Session keynote speaker, Captain Scott F. O'Grady will share his inspirational tale of courage, faith and patriotism based on his true-life struggle to evade captivity and survive in the hostile territory of war-torn Bosnia for six days after his F-16 was shot down by a missile in 1995.

•NCGA's and ASA's Awards Banquets, held separately Monday evening, feature good food and fun.

•Tuesday evening's Finale Feast and Fun features food, fun and more!

•Frankie Valli of the Legendary Four Seasons will show you "Oh, What a Night" at Tuesday's concluding evening of entertainment. Accomplishing chart singles in every decade since the 1950s, Valli has sold 100 million records over his career and continues to dazzle audiences throughout the world.

problem. Switchgrass may also be controlled with late postemergent Roundup applications either between crops or in Roundup Ready corn and soybeans.

Our research has confirmed what some farmers were telling us — it is possible to establish switchgrass in corn and end up with a field of great wildlife cover or alternative forage. However, be sure you plan things out carefully in order to ensure success.

Incredible, Edible Corn

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

We all eat corn — as a vegetable, popped, on the cob, in soup, or in fritters.

We fry in corn oil, sweeten with corn syrup, and corn starch is used to thicken puddings. Read the labels of various food items in the grocery store and you will find that most contain corn.

Other somewhat unexpected uses for corn are fireworks, crayons, aspirin, chewing gum, candles, ceramics, inks, soaps, and for theatrical make-up. These are only a few of the several hundred listed by the Illinois Corn Marketing Board.

There are other uses for corn still in the developing stages.

According to the Illinois Corn Marketing Board, a new material in which to pack materials that might break in the mail or with rough handling is called "eco-foam." This is a combination of more than 95 percent corn starch and a small amount of synthetic additive.

Eco-foam will not harm the environment. You can reuse it, put it on a compost pile, or flush down the toilet.

Or how about a fun word to say — "SuperSlurper," sometimes called "Hydosorb."

SuperSlurper is used in the blue plastic reusable ice packs most people keep in their freezers for a picnic or to place on a bruised muscle.

This unusual corn product can actually absorb up to 2,000 time its weight in water and is used to keep underground storage tanks dry.

Even baby diapers can include corn-based SuperSlurper.

"Salting" the roads on an icy winter night is usually done with chloride salt. An environmentally safer alternative is calcium-magnesium acetate, which is now made from petroleum. However, scientists are looking into making this product from corn, which reduces the price by about $250 per ton.

And still, more research is being done on making butanol from corn which should be produced at 34 percent less than the present oil based butanol.

Butanol is used in plasticisers, resins, lacquers, food extraction, and brake fluids.

Corn Cobs

Those are unusual uses for corn, but there are also strange uses for corn cobs.

Ground up corn cobs are used to heat muscles in order for physical therapy to be more effective.

Inside a machine, minute particles of corn cob are heated and swirled about the injured body part. "It is much more effective than using any other type of heat," said Joe Petlock, an occupational therapist at the Altoona Hospital.

The same product and almost the same process is also used by jewelers to clean and shine jewelry.

Other uses for corn cobs include kitty litter and as an anti-skid material.

Is it any wonder there is concern over the disappearing farm lands?

Larry Breech, newly elected vice president of the Pennsylvania Farmer's Union, said, "Corn is very important and we need to be doing more research on developing heartier strains."

As Mary Eubanks wrote in a recent article in "Discover" magazine in which she traces the roots of corn, "Corn is an incredible puzzle, and the story is just unfolding.

Studying the history of corn could help us keep up with the demand the future is sure to bring.

At present, each kernel of corn has the potential to grow an ear containing nearly 800 kernels, and a single acre of land can produce more than 13 million kernels of corn. With the increasing productive capability of our nation's farmers, the number of new uses for corn is only limited by imagination.

NCGA Announces Contest Winners

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) has announced corn farmers from 13 states took top honors in the 1997 National Corn Yield Contest (NCYC).

To corn farmers, the CYC is the annual equivalent to participating in the World Series, the Super Bowl, or the Stanley Cup. The corn yield entries tabulated from the farmers who took first, second and third place in the popular contest ranged from an impressive 215 bushes per acre to a whopping 334 bushels per acre.

"These are some truly amazing yields," said NCGA President Ryland Utlaut, a corn grower from Grand Pass, Mo. "Farming is an occupation that really demands a lot of skill and timeliness of operation, and the people who have obtained these yields certainly demonstrate those characteristics."

Utlaut noted that the range of yields reflects the variation in yields experienced by farmers throughout the nation. "Rains were quite spotty everywhere, and that showed up in our yields," he said.

Winners of this year's contest will be recognized at the annual Commodity Classic, the combined convention and trade show of the NCGA and American Soybean Association, Feb. 22-24, in Long Beach, Calif. Along with national recognition, winners receive significant prizes from participating seed and crop protection companies.

Contest participants also improve their operations by getting a unique opportunity to compare their own proven corn production capabilities with other farmers in their state and across the country. The NCYC's goal is to educate farmers on improving their methods of production to increase profitability while addressing environmental concerns.

More than 3,200 farmers participated in this year's contest.

Class AA States: This class combines corn growers from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin. Class A States: The 41 continental U.S. states not included in the list of AA states.

The winners according to the contest class and agronomic practices are:

A Non-Irrigated Class

1. JM Souza Farms Inc., Lodi, CA–271.4 bu/acre - Pioneer 33R87

2. Wittler Farms Inc., Talmage, NE–261.0 bu/acre - Pioneer 3237

NC GA In Commodity Roundtable Meeting

WASHINGTON, D C. – The NCGA was among 10 commodity organizations meeting in Washington Dec. 2-3 to discuss major issues which will be addressed in the upcoming session of Congress.

NCGA representatives incl-uded President Ryland Utlaut; executive vice president, CEO Chris Wehrman, and vice president, public policy, Bruce Knight.

"NCGA's participation in this meeting helped reinforce the Corn Growers' viewpoint on these and other important issues," said Wehrman. "The most critical issues addressed are the need for Presidential Fast Track authority to allow corn to continue to move into world markets, as well as Congressional support of research and energy issues with a particular focus on ethanol."

She added that teamwork among commodity organizations is critical to cooperate on major agricultural issues and to gain perspective with one another on these issues of mutual interest."

An added benefit, she concluded, "was the opportunity to meet with key staff within the Administration and Congress and get a look ahead to what the next session will hold."

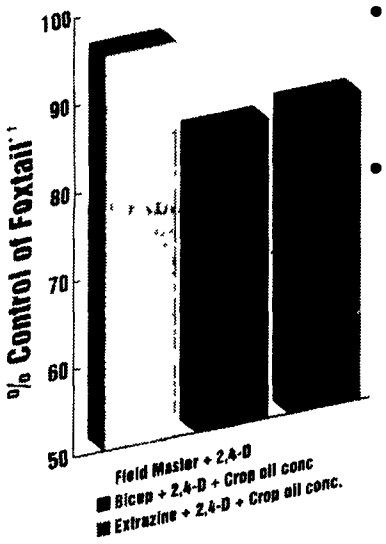
A Product Update From MONSANTO

Master™ The first complete

Field Master™ herbicide is the first complete corn herbicide that provides both the best burndown plus broad-spectrum, season-long residual control of grasses and broadleaves.

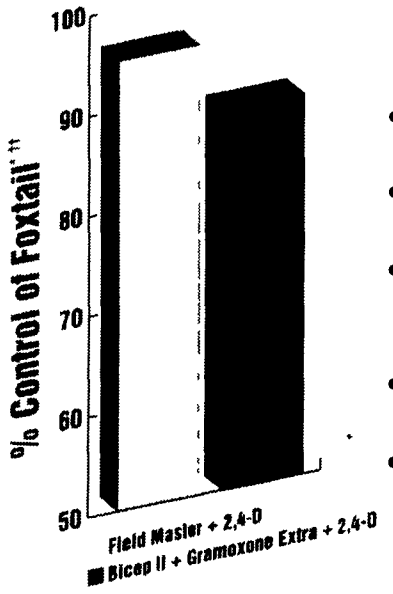
Master GIVES YOU:

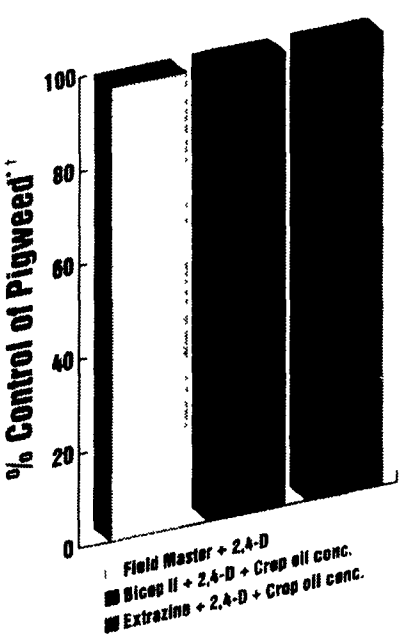
- The powerful combination of burndown and residual control in one herbicide.
- Broad-spectrum, shoots-to-roots burndown of weeds up to six inches tall.
- Control of the broadest spectrum of weeds, plus proven control on the largest number of grasses and broadleaves.



- More complete control of tough grasses and broadleaves compared to Extrazine® and Bicep® II.
- Added convenience. Field Master is complete and premixed, so it requires only one application for minimum-till and no-till fields.

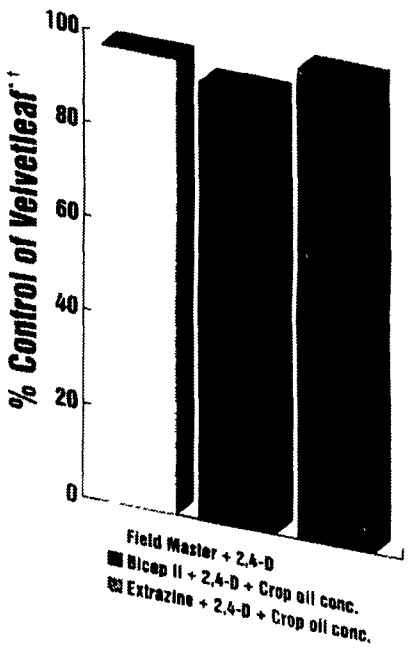
By combining burndown with a residual, Field Master provides lasting control and helps fields start clean and stay clean.





Master FACTS:

- Field Master provides the best burndown.
- Field Master provides the best residual control.
- When a grower switches from Extrazine to Field Master, there's no need to change current management practices.
- Field Master offers burndown performance that Bicep II doesn't have.
- Field Master also provides unmatched residual, broad-spectrum control all season long.



Master™ is designed to give growers better performance in limited tillage operations from no-till to stale seed bed situations, or as an "Aide to Tillage".

"Aide to Tillage"
Large weeds left on the surface or only partially buried after 1 or 2 tillage passes often grow back. These show up as complaints later in the season. Growers, who till ground can utilitze one tillage pass before planting to save time and get back on schedule. FieldMaster will kill the remianing green weeds lying on the surface.

BENEFITS:

- Broad spectrum burndown and residual weed control.
  - Fewer tillage passes –> helps growers get back on planting schedule
  - One product to spray –> treat more acres with less mixing hassles
- Better residual control in a broad range of weather conditions.
- Outstanding crop safety.
- No need for additional surfactants.
- Weed & Feed in one operation.
  Apply in 10 to 50 gallons/acre 28%N
- Rainfast in 1 to 2 hours.

The goal of the National Corn Yield Contest is to encourage corn growers to develop new, efficient production techniques that improve corn profitability. Farmers can study the yields and production practices in the "1998 Corn Yield Guide," which can be obtained from NCGA at (314) 275-9915.

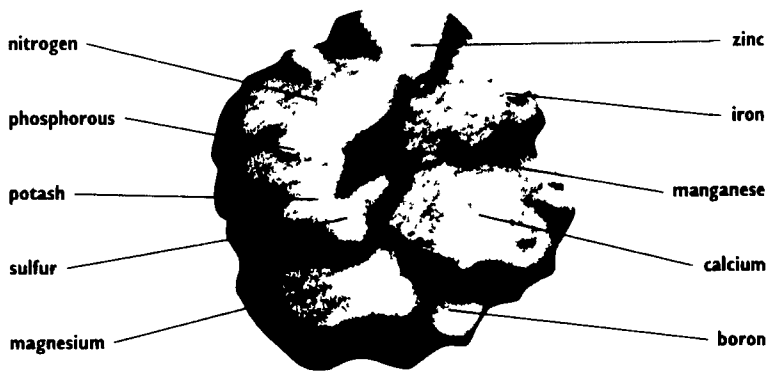
Lebanon Extra Plant Food

For over 50 years, farmers have been choosing Lebanon Extra for premium homogeneous/ammoniated plant food. Lebanon Extra is ideal for use in row applications where nutrient safety and consistency is crucial to yields. And its homogeneous/ammoniated granules offer superior performance over so-called "Custom-formulated" blends.



A blend of raw materials can result in uneven feeding. Unlike homogeneous/ammoniated granules which deliver all the primary nutrients and micronutrients in each particle — ensuring even distribution for consistent performance.

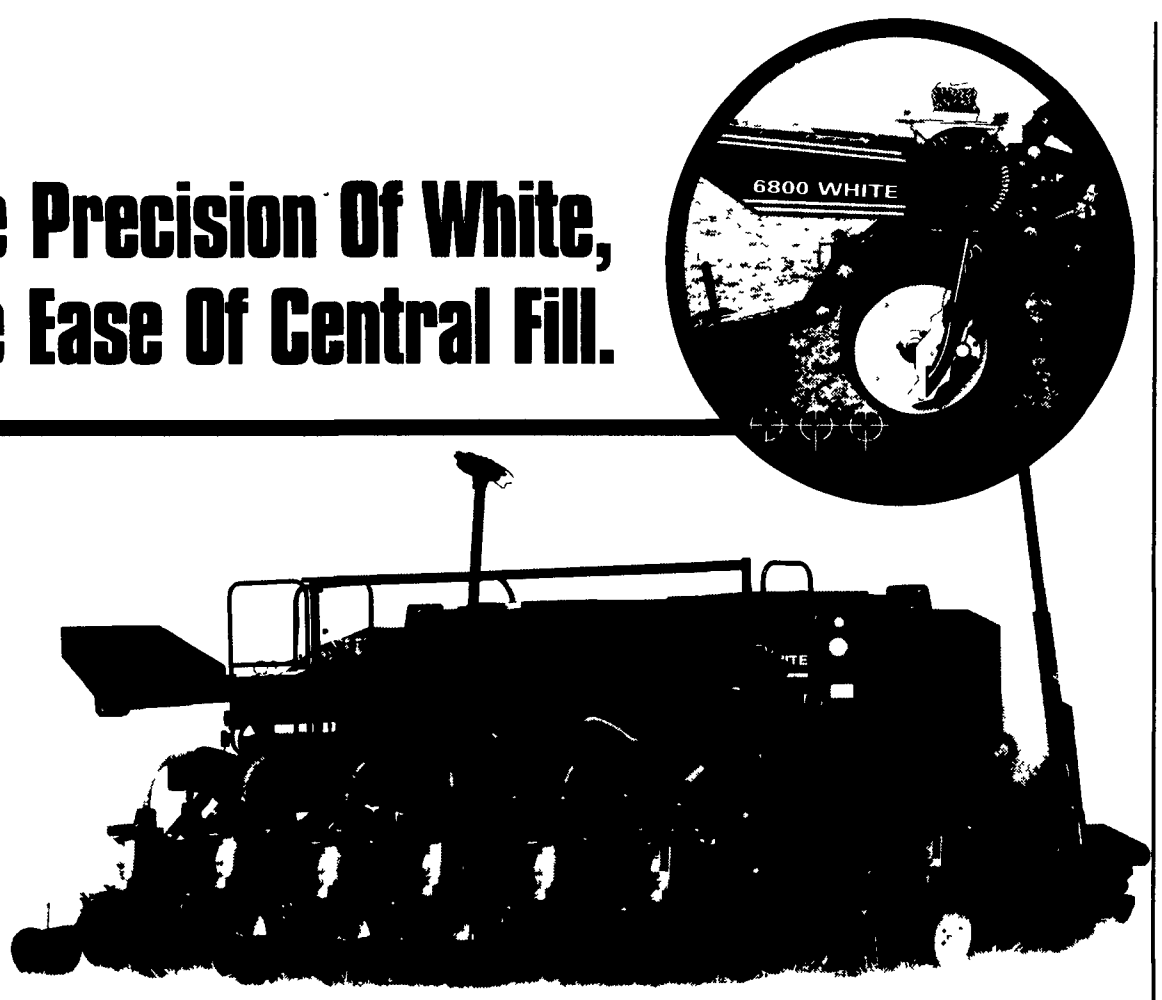
The Precision Of White, The Ease Of Central Fill.



The 6800 Series Central Fill Planters.

With the White 6800 Series planters, you get accurate seed placement, precise depth control, narrow row spacing, and central fill convenience in one planter. Its unique rigid frame positions row units at 30" for corn and 15" for soybeans and 10" for soybeans, wheat and other seed. The convenient seed meter control lets you adjust the seeding rate as you go, matching seed population to the yield potential of the soil

Up to three gangs of row units power through thick, standing stalks and other heavy residue, while accurately and gently placing seed in the ground. A large, 35 bushel, single seed hopper is quicker to fill than individual row units, and it's more cost-efficient.

To see how your operation can benefit from the most advanced planting system available, stop by your AGCO® White Planter dealer today.

Early Season Corn CD-ROM Available

Mark Antle
Department of Agronomy
Penn State

A multimedia CD-ROM program entitled "Corn Growth, Development and Diagnostics — Germination To Knee High" has recently become available from Purdue University.

This easy-to-use CD-ROM program incorporates sound and video into a complete diagnostic and reference tool for early season corn growth and development. The program also includes detailed descriptions and high quality photos of early season injury from diseases, herbicides, insects, nutrient deficiencies, and more.

Other features of the program include an economic threshold table for various pests and a guide used in making replant decisions.

We have obtained a copy and have found it to be very useful for troubleshooting early season corn problems and helping to make management recommendations. The program was developed under the direction of Lee Schweitzer, professor of agronomy at Purdue University, as a teaching tool for students and farmers.

The program could also be useful for crop consultants as an educational tool or, if used with a laptop computer, an in-the-field reference manual. The overall format is easy to follow and could be used by anyone with a basic knowledge of agronomy and computer operation.

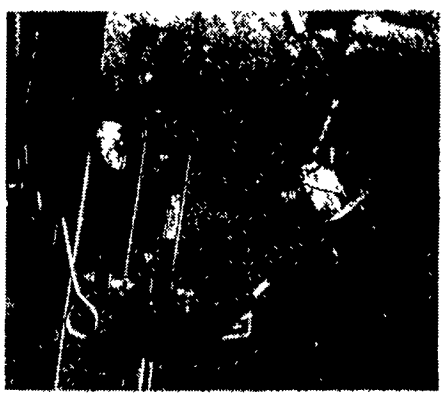
The minimum computer setup needed to run the program is as follows: a 486 processor, 25 Mhz, Windows 3.1 or Macintosh, 8 MB of RAM, 4X CD-ROM drive, Color video display card and monitor (256 colors), sound card/speakers. The price of the program is $80 per copy (includes shipping and handling) and can be ordered from Purdue University Media Distribution Center, 301 South 2nd Street, Lafayette, IN 47901-1232, phone (toll-free) (888) 398-4636. When ordering, please specify whether using a Macintosh computer or, if Windows, which version.

Ag Leader® Technology
THE POWER TO IMPLEMENT PRECISION FARMING YEAR 'ROUND
A New Generation in Monitoring

Ag Leader Technology provides accurate, reliable, and user-friendly tools for precision agriculture. The flexibility of these tools allows each producer to build a system to fit a wide array of types and brands of farm machinery to fit individual needs. And, Ag Leader Technology continues to provide the best customer support in the industry.

The Ag Leader PF3000 Precision Farming System is a general-purpose monitor/controller. On a combine, the PF3000 system measures and displays yield, moisture, combine speed, grain flow, and acres per hour. The PF3000 also displays and records average yield, average moisture, acres, distance, wet bushels, and dry bushels of each load as well as field totals.

It organizes data by year, farm, field, grain, and load for easy identification. Data can be transferred to a computer to print a summary of all fields. Also, print yield and moisture maps if you are using GPS and a memory card.



The optional elevator-mount moisture sensor provides accurate moisture readings even in the toughest conditions.

White House Goes Green

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The White House recently demonstrated its support of the E85 alternative fuel program by adding 30 1998 Chrysler minivans to its fleet.

The vans are used by a variety of federal employees who work on Capitol Hill.

"The White House purchased these vehicles on their own, obviously as a result of their research on alternative fuel vehicles," said Sandy Hentges, associate project coordinator for NCGA's E85 program. "This is a real feather in the cap for the alternative fuel vehicle program, particularly E85, because this is such a high profile fleet."

The new Chrysler vans are operating on regular gasoline. "As NCGA representatives, we are working with the federal government and the White House staff to get fueling facilities near them," Hentges said, noting that there are two nearby stations that could accommodate the E85 vans. "We're negotiating with them so they can eventually provide E-85 fuel to the White House fleet," she said.

NCGA/Top Producer Seminars Help Plan For Future Success

ST. LOUIS, Mo. – Corn growers can pick up some valuable tips on ensuring the success of their operation, as well as some of the most innovative ideas in agriculture, at two upcoming Top Producer seminars sponsored by DuPont Agricultural Products and the NCGA

The seminars, scheduled for Jan. 27-28 in Minneapolis and March 24-25 in Denver, offer farmers' creative financial strategies, details on the new math of marketing plans and the secrets of building a brand.

Farmers also have an opportunity to meet leaders featured in Top Producer Magazine and hear expert advice on plotting strategies for the future. "This is a great opportunity for corn growers," said Gerald Tumbleson, president of the Minnesota Corn Growers Association. "Corn growers today have gone from driving combines to driving major businesses, and these seminars are a roadmap to improved management and profitability."

The seminars will incorporate a number of money-making topics, including "Make the numbers dance," "Keep your share and more," and "Your marketing strategy for 1998."

"These seminars are quite progressive as they look down the road in terms of trying to improve agriculture in the future," said Tumbleson.

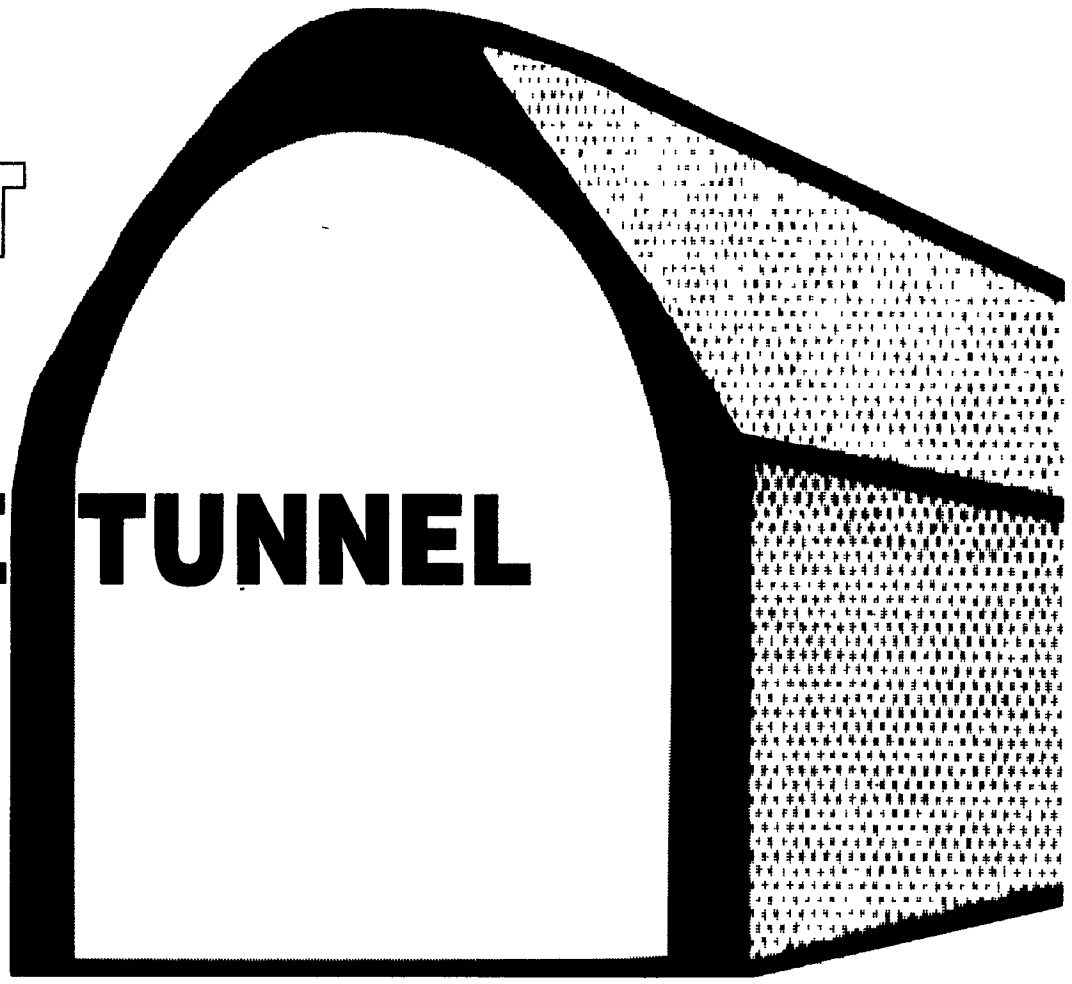
FULL TIME™ FORAGE THE LIGHT AT THE END OF THE TUNNEL FOR DAIRYMEN



Last year Ervin Hostetler, Belleville, PA fed FULL-TIME™ Forage and was pleased with the 9.5 lb. increase in milk production he received. He compared FullTime™ Forage to 7301FQ as part of Cargill's on farm feed trials. This year he is even more convinced FullTime™ Forage is the wave of the future for dairymen.

Currently, Ervin is getting 86.5 lbs. of milk and making $9.00 income over feed costs/cow/day. His ration on an as fee basis consists of:

75 lbs.	FullTime™ Forage
20 lbs.	Balage
12 lbs.	High Moisture Corn
8.5 lbs.	Protein
1.25 lbs.	Minerals
.3 lbs.	ByPass Fat

But there is a lot more to his story. On November 17, 1997 his cows were milking 57 lbs. He was out of corn silage and was getting ready to move to his new barn and milking parlor on a different farm. After the move, the cows dropped to 49 lbs. The cows were started out at 50 lbs. FullTime™ Forage and gradually moved to 75 lbs. FullTime™ Forage. On December 24, the cows were producing 72 lbs/cow/day. On December 26 Ervin started milking 3 times a day. One week later, they were at 86.5 lbs./day.

Will Ervin be planting more FullTime™ Forage in 1998? ABSOLUTELY!

He and his Young's nutritionist, Dave Martin are doing their own research project. How much forage can these cows eat utilizing FullTime™ Forage in the ration and what effect will this have on feed cost savings, milk production and income over feed costs?

Ervin already sees FULLTIME™ as the light at the end of the tunnel for dairymen, but could it even get better?

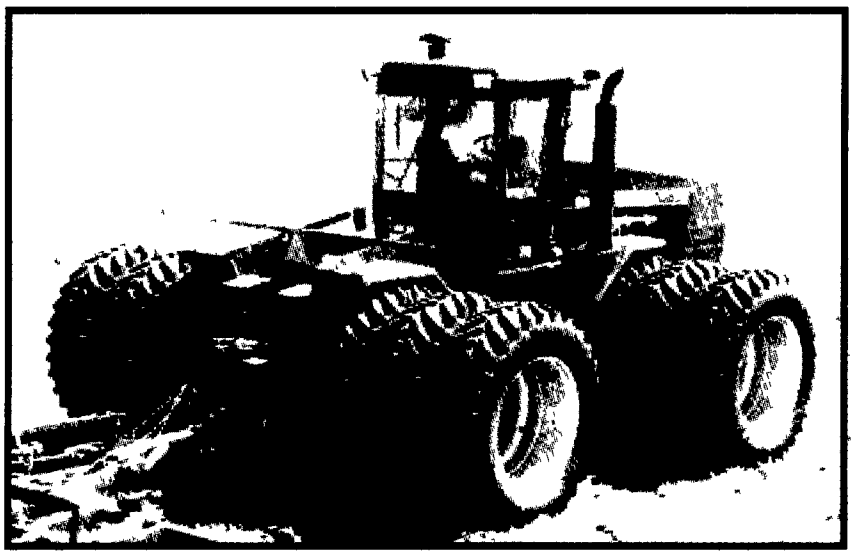
THERE IS NO TRACTOR THAT COMPARES TO THE MODEL 9330

MORE THAN A TILLAGE TRACTOR. Pull your BIG BALER or Pack Sillage or Pull your PLANTER or GRAIN DRILL or ANYTHING Else you want to do - A 9330 STEIGER 4 Wheel Drive Tractor Will Do It.



CHECK IT OUT:

1) A smaller frame than other 4WD tractors under 300 Horsepower allows it to handle easily in small Eastern fields.
2) A rugged 505 cubic inch engine with high torque rise pulls through the tough spots.
3) The articulated steering allows it to turn in less space than any front wheel assist tractor.
4) A price that is lower than most 225 HP front wheel assist tractors.

And the STEIGER'S Fuel Efficency is Legendary...
